The ART of Receiving

Art Monk received the actual record-breaking football from referee Jerry Markbreit when he caught his 102nd pass. The Redskins' '84 Most Valuable Player went on to catch four more passes in the Week 16 St. Louis game to finish his historical season with 106 receptions. The football and Art Monk's name are now on display at Pro Football's Hall of Fame to mark the epic accomplishment.

General Manager

To highlight Bobby Beathard's accomplishments with the Redskins, a simple check of the "end" results will do.

In 1980 he drafted Art Monk. Now although it was in the first round, 17 other teams did have a shot at the NFL's record-holder for catches in a season (106). In 1981, Alvin Garrett was aquired as a free agent; a year later he would become a playoff star in helping Washington to the Super Bowl XVII Title.

Even more significant in '81 was the drafting of Charlie Brown— in the eighth round! After a year on injured reserve, Charlie went on to the Pro Bowl his next two seasons. But then last year downtown Charlie Brown went down, suffering a stress fracture in his ankle in Week 5. What's a general manager to do??

If you're Beathard, you trade. Three days later, Calvin Muhammad became a Redskin. Eleven weeks after that he had 42 catches, 729 yards (2nd-best behind Monk), and the respect of all.

As for Beathard, he'll just claim the latter.

And climb the ladder, too—of success, that is. He's reached the top rung by building a three-time division Champion without all that many draft choices, instead winning with free agents and several shrewd trades. This year's big deal was for RB George Rogers and three draft picks for a first round pick (23rd).

He has worked on five Super Bowl teams, with four victories. In 1983, two of his free agents—Joe Jacoby and Jeff Bostic—made the Pro Bowl. Also in '83, selecting last in the first round, Beathard chose Darrell Green who went on to be the runner-up in Defensive Rookie of the Year voting. Then last year, Darrell was named a Pro Bowl starter. A carbon copy occured in '82 when Vernon Dean (the 49th choice in the draft) was voted Football Digest Defensive Rookie of the Year. No wonder Beathard was named NFL Executive of the Year in 1982 and 1983.

Amazingly, of the 49 Redskins who took part in Super Bowl XVIII, 26 were free agents, and 11 more were players drafted in the fifth round or below. And 35 of those 49 arrived in Washington in just three seasons! That's some high speed construction. In his finest hour, Beathard chose six current starters in the 1981 draft, traded the number two choice for Joe Washington, and also drafted key reserve Larry Kubin.

A 21-year veteran of professional football, Beathard "finds" include three-time Pro Bowler Mike Nelms in Canada, and free agents Neal Olkewicz (Redskins' leading tackler), Mel Kaufman, Rick Walker, Jeff Hayes, Otis Wonsley, and Ken Huff. The best Beathard find of all, however, had to be recommending Joe Gibbs to owner Jack Kent Cooke in 1981.

Among Beathard's other fine trades are a 1979 deal for Tony Peters a Pro Bowler in 1982, an '82 swap for Tony McGee who became a leader on two Super Bowl defenses, and a 1984 preseason deal for center Rick Donnalley whose presence saved the Redskins' season when Jeff Bostic was lost.

A native of El-Segundo, California, Beathard quarterbacked Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo to 9-1 records in 1957-58, teaming with CBS color man John Madden. He signed with the Redskins in 1959, but did not make the club. He also tried out with Minnesota and later played five games with San Diego in 1960. The Kansas City Chiefs hired Beathard in 1963 as a part-time scout and he stayed with them until 1966, when he moved to the AFL front office headquarters, working with Al Davis. Kansas city hired him full-time after three months at the League office and he then moved to the Atlanta Falcons in 1968 as a personnel scout.

In 1972, Miami named Beathard Director of Player Personnel, and over the next six years he was a key force for Miami's consistently top teams. In fact, Beathard was responsible for several of the leading players who guided Miami to Super Bowl XVII. On February 24, 1978, he was named Redskins' General Manager.

Born January 24, 1937, Beathard is an avid runner. He has run several Boston Marathons, plus many other road races, and usually runs 10-15 miles daily.

Beathard and his wife, Christine, reside in Oakton, VA. He has four children: Kurt, 22, a star quarterback at Towson St.; Jeff, 21, a fine running back at Towson; Casey, 19, also a college football player, and Jamie, 17.

Head Coach

It doesn't take too many fancy words to tell the success story of Joe Gibbs at the Redskins' helm. Of all active NFL coaches, his .723 winning percentage (47-18, including playoffs) is tops.

In the last three seasons, he has guided the Redskins to an NFL-best 39-10 record, including three Eastern Division titles, two trips to the Super Bowl, and one NFL Championship.

And as if any topping was needed on this record of Sundays, the Redskins are the only NFL team to have won the last four games of each of the last three regular seasons. In other words, when the Division is on the line, a Coach Gibbs team reels it in.

The Redskins made a big catch when they landed Joe Jackson Gibbs four years ago. Since beginning at 0-5 in 1981, he has adjusted his headset and tilted his Redskin cap on the sidelines for 47 wins in 60 games. He was the first Head Coach since 1961-62 to be named AP Coach of the Year in successive seasons (1982-83). Pro Football Weekly and The Sporting News also honored him with that award in 1982 and '83.

Last season, with 1) 30 players on injured reserve, 2) no same starting lineup for 15 weeks, and 3) the loss of four Pro Bowlers, the Redskins had every right to crumble. But the only "right" Coach Gibbs gave the team was the "right stuff," as they stuck together to capture the Eastern Division by two full games.

Even Hawkeye couldn't keep his M*A*S*H Unit in such tip-top shape.

Under Gibbs, the Redskins have set the NFL record for points in a season (541 in '83), enjoyed the fifth-best record in NFL history (12-1 in '82), posted the third best sack total of all-time (66 in '84), set the NFL record for turnover ratio (43 in '83), and posted winning streaks of 11 and eight games. He has also maintained the Redskins' excellent special teams tradition. In the hotly contested Eastern Division, the Redskins have now won 18 of their last 23 games. Again no fancy words, just facts, tell this story.

The first chapter for Gibbs came under Don Coryell, where he played tight end, linebacker, and guard on San Diego State teams that were 22-6-1. From 1964-66, he served as a graduate assistant coach (offensive line) under Coryell, as the team won 27 of 31 games including a perfect 11-0 in 1966. Florida State's Bill Peterson selected Gibbs as his offensive coordinator in 1967; the Seminoles compiled a 15-4-2 record with a pass-oriented team that saw Ron Sellers set receiving records that stand today.

Coach John McKay brought Gibbs to his USC staff in 1969 to serve as offensive line coach, and the Trojans were 15-4-1 in his two years there. The year 1971 saw Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles offer Gibbs his next job, and the Razorbacks went 14-8-1 with QB Joe Ferguson at the command.

The NFL and Coryell welcomed Gibbs to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1973 as offensive backfield coach. From '73-'77, the Cardinals were 42-27-1 with two NFC East titles. The NFC's number one offense featured Jim Hart, Terry Metcalf, Mel Gray, and Jim Otis. In '78, Gibbs became the offensive coordinator of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers under friend John McKay. Coach Coryell called again in 1979 and Gibbs became the Chargers' offensive coordinator. In two seasons there, he helped them to two AFC West titles, setting offensive records en route.

Born in Mocksville, NC, on Nov. 25, 1940, Gibbs moved to the West Coast as a child and graduated from Sante Fe Spring High. He attended Cerritos (CA) Junior College and then transferred to San Diego State.
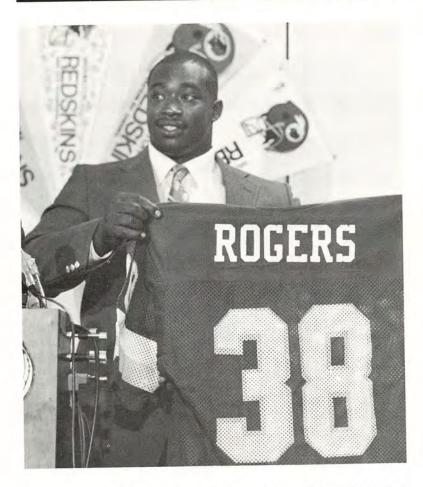

Gibbs and his wife, Patricia, have two sons, Jason Dean (JD), 16, a quarterback at Oakton (VA) High, and Coy Randle, 12. The family resides in Vienna, VA.

A racquetball enthusiast, Gibbs was a 1976 national champion (35-over) and ranked second in 1977. He is very active in church and youth programs, with much of his efforts of late directed towards the Paul Anderson Youth Home, a group of homes for wayward teenagers. The Redskins/Frito-Lay "Challenge For Children Program" will bring in over $20,000 for the D.C. Area Home. Also, NFL Charities recently donated $20,000 towards the construction of the newest home in Prince William County, VA. Coach Gibbs has been very instrumental in raising necessary funds so ground could be broken in June, 1985.
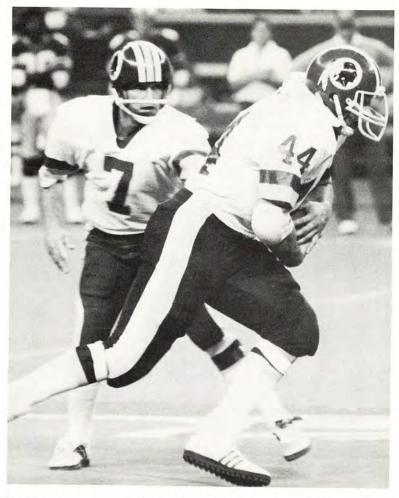

By George, A Trade Was Made

Former Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers officially became a Washington Redskin April 26. The four-year veteran (two-time Pro Bowl pick) of the Saints has gained 4,267 yards in his NFL career. Washington received three 1985 draft picks from the Saints as well, surrendering their number one pick.

Rewriting the Redskin Records Register

Joe Theismann and John Riggins have both taken over the Redskin career record books in their respective categories. They have been teammates since 1976 and appear headed as future teammates to Pro Football's Hall of Fame.

Games Played Streak: 13

1984 Season: Defensive line was one position the Redskins felt secure at going into 1984. But injuries to top draft choices Bob Slater and Steve Hamilton in preseason, and then to Todd Liebenstein in the regular season left a void. Welcome Tom Beasley. "Beez" came in and immediately filled that void for the Redskins, soon starting two games for the injured Dexter Manley, and playing a large role in the team's drive to the Division title. Able to play every defensive line positon, Tom proved a valuable asset right away, getting four tackles and one assist in the Redskins' rout of Dallas, and then a recovered fumble the next week in St. Louis. He enjoyed his best game of the season in Week 13 against Buffalo, with four tackles and two assists, as he started in place of a bed-ridden Dave Butz. On the season, "The Colonel" finished with 10 tackles, nine assists and four quarterback hurries. He also had two sacks, one against Indianapolis and one against Atlanta.

Pro Career: A third-round draft choice of the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1977, Tom is the proud owner of two Super bowl rings (for 1978 and '79 seasons). He spent the '77 season on injured reserve with a broken toe. But he made team as reserve to Greene and Greenwood in '78, starting two games. In '79, he started the first six games for Greenwood at left end, setting a team record with 11 solo tackles and a sack vs. Houston to win NFL Defensive Player of the Week Honors. In '80, Beez again played Super-Sub role, starting one game for Greene, and three for John Banaszak. After missing time early in '81 with leg and neck injuries, he returned to start the final nine games, eight at left tackle and one at left end. In '82, Tom excelled with six sacks (career high), fourth in the AFC as he started seven games, missing two with neck injury. In '83, he played in all 16 games, starting 15, coming up with 3½ sacks, 38 tackles (17 solos), and was one of five players to recover two opponent fumbles. He was released early in preseason of '84.

College, Personal: A four-year starter at defensive tackle for the Hokies, Tom played in the Blue-Gray game and all-American Bowl after earning all-South honors (1976). An Industrial Arts Major at Tech, he was Varsity Club President and a standout athlete at Northfolk High (WV)...He and his wife, Margie, have three children: Kerri Lynn,8; Thomas Chad,7; and Jared Scott, 3. The Beasleys have a 196-acre working farm in Prosperity, PA.

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, Sept. 2, 1980
Games Played In/Games Started: 65/49—1980 (16/0); 1981 (16/16),1982 (9/9) [4/4]; 1983 (16/16) [3/3]; 1984 (8/8)

1984 Season: Coming into Week 8 of 1984 (in St. Louis), Jeff had played in 64 straight games—never missing one— and started 48 straight. He was the National Football Conference's starting Pro Bowl center in '83, and of course, an essential member of the world-famous Hogs. But on the last play of the third quarter against the Cardinals, Jeff's season ended, as he tore three of the four ligaments in his left knee, The first person to come to Jeff's side on the field was his brother Joe, a starting guard for St. Louis. From that point, Jeff has been on a rehabilitation schedule which he and the Redskins hope will have him ready to start 1985. According to Coach Bugel, Jeff was on his way to another Pro Bowl season. His efforts against Dallas in Week 7 helped produce John Riggins' season-high 165-yard rushing effort, and a game of no sacks. Prior to his injury, Jeff had been alongside Hogmates Jacoby and Grimm for 49 straight starts, including playoffs; and one Pro Bowl game.

Pro Career: Less than five years ago, Jeff was a free agent hired to play special teams. But in January of '84, he played on the most special team of all—the NFC Pro Bowl squad. Jeff has been the center of attention for the Redskins now since 1981. The Philadelphia Eagles had their chance, signing him as a free agent following the 1980 draft. But on August 26, the Redskins got good news when the Eagles released him. He was officially signed by the 'Skins on Sept. 2, for all the snaps of punts and field goals. He earned his first game ball vs.San Diego when he caused a fumble and made numerous hits on special teams. In 1981, emerging as one of the stars of training camp, Jeff earned the starting slot and kept it, precipitating Russ Grimm's move to left guard. A tribute to his hustle, he led the punt coverage team in total tackles that season. In 1982, Jeff was on the verge of all-Pro. In addition, his flawless snaps were a key to Mark Moseley's record field goal streak. In 1983, Jeff reached the upper echelon of the game, as he opened enough holes for the Redskins to finish third in the NFL in rushing (164.1 yards per game). He was also voted all-NFC by UPI, and recognized for his outstanding play by the Redskin Alumni Association. He also contributed 13 tackles on punt coverage, downed two punts on the one yard-line—including one in the NFC Championship—and recovered three fumbles. An excellent technique blocker, Jeff has developed a near-flawless rapport with QB Theismann on snaps.

College, Personal: At Clemson, Jeff earned all-ACC honors as a center, and then switched to guard his senior year. He had followed brother Joe to Clemson and then to the NFL. The son of a police officer, Jeff was born in Greensboro, NC, and graduated from Benjamin L. Smith High in that city...In the offseason, Jeff spends much time working for the March of Dimes Foundation. He has also appeared in a McDonalds commercial. Jeff and his wife, Lynn Smith, reside in Oakton, VA.

69 PERRY BROOKS
DEFENSIVE TACKLE

Southern
8th Year

Ht: 6-3 Wt: 270
Born 12/04/54

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, March 1, 1977

Games Played In/Games Started: 92/24—1978 (16/2); 1979 (12/0); 1980 (12/4); 1981 (15/12); 1982 (5/5) [2/0]; 1983 (16/0) [3/0]; 1984 (16/1) [1/0]

Games Played Streak: 32

1984 Season: Right in the heart of the Redskins' team of role players lies Perry, who has developed into an excellent pass-rushing specialist. He displayed his finely tuned art last year to the tune of 5 1/2 sacks (tied for 5th on team). Perry started the opener against Miami (with Darryl Grant sidelined), and then saw considerable action in each of the following games. His best day of work came against Buffalo, as he had four tackles and three assists, and two sacks. He also had a key sack in each of the two last games— vs. Dallas and St. Louis. "Sweet P" finished the year with 25 tackles. Very durable, he has now just missed five games in the last four seasons. His large presence on the defensive line helped the defense come up with a team-record 66 sacks (2nd in NFC).

Pro Career: Another of the famed Redskin free agents, Perry was a 1976 seventh-round choice of the New England Patriots, but was released two days before the season opener on the final cutdown. Washington signed him in 1977, but a knee injury in a preseason contest in Miami sidelined him for the entire campaign. In 1978, Perry played all 16 games as a reserve, recording three quarterback sacks along the way. After a torn biceps in '79 training camp, he came back to play 12 games, registering 20 tackles, four QB sacks, and a fumble recovery. In 1980, Perry started four games, made 45 tackles and had three quarterback sacks before an ankle injury placed him on injured reserve the final four weeks. In '81, Perry started 12 games, played in 15, led the club with 6 1/2 sacks and four forced fumbles. He was second among defensive linemen and seventh on the team in tackles with 81 1/2, while also recovering two fumbles. A sprained neck forced him to miss one game but Perry came back strong to start the final ten games. In '82, Perry was enjoyng an excellent season until he broke his leg in the Dec. 5 loss to Dallas. The injury occured on the Cowboys' first offensive series, but Perry went on to play the entire game. Perry came back on Jan. 21 to play in the NFC Championship and Super Bowl XVII. Prior to the injury, he had made 21 tackles, including 17 first hits, recovered a fumble, had one sack, and also forced a fumble.

In '83, Perry began his role as pass-rushing specialist and immediately succeeded. He recorded 2 1/2 sacks, and added 18 tackles (11 solos). In the playoffs, he added four more tackles and one forced fumble (in the Rams contest).

College, Personal: Perry earned all-SWAC honors for two seasons at Southern (LA) University. He was a fullback at Wesley Ray High in Angie, LA, gaining over 1,000 yards rushing. A graduate in agricultural agronomy, Perry spent much of the offseason in a suit and tie, working as a consultant for the Heritage Financial Group, an Alexandria, VA. firm dealing in investments, real estate, and stock, etc. He also worked in the personnel department of Giant Foods; and Perry and his wife, Vergie, have opened a Speedy Printing Shop in Falls Church, VA. (6300 Leesburg Pike). The Brooks have three children: Ahmad is 1; Krsunthia is 10; and Perry Jr. is 5. Born in Bogalusa, LA, Perry, and his family now reside in Fairfax, VA.

DESTINED FOR SUCCESS... In 1957, Redskins' Coach Joe Kuharich had a very coachable group of players. They included left cornerback Joe Walton (now Jets' Head Coach), a journeyman right cornerback named Don Shula (now Dolphins' Head Coach), and linebackers named Tom Braatz (current Falcons' General Manager), and Torgy Torgeson (current Redskins assistant coach), plus halfback Norb Hecker (former Falcons' Head Coach and now 49ers assistant), guard Dick Stanfel (assistant Coach Chicago Bears), tackle Eddie Khayat (assistant Coach New England Patriots), Freddie Wyant (NFL Referee) and Viking Scout Johnny Carson...

87 CHARLIE BROWN
WIDE RECEIVER

South Carolina State　　Ht: 5-10 Wt: 179
4th Year　　Born 10/29/58

How Acquired: Selected in eighth round of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 33/26—1981 (0-injured reserve); 1982 (9/9 [4/4]; 1983 (15/13) [3/3]; 1984 (9/4) [1/0]

1984 Season: In 1983, Art Monk spent four weeks on injured reserve; last year he exploded. In 1984, Charlie spent four weeks on injured reserve; this year watch out! After two years in the Pro Bowl, Charlie landed on some hard luck last year, otherwise known as injuries. After catching six passes for 60 yards against Miami in Week 1, Charlie injured a hamstring in Week 2 against the 49ers, after scoring his first TD of the season. That injury hobbled him until Week 4 when he scored his second touchdown, in a victory over the Patriots. Then trouble struck again in Week 5 against the Eagles. On a crossing pattern, Charlie was taken down from behind. The defender falling directly on his ankle. He missed Weeks 6, 7 and 8 with what was originally thought a severe sprain. But a further examination revealed a slight stress fracture, and Charlie was placed on injured reserve. He came off that list for the Week 13 contest against Buffalo, catching four passes for 68 yards and a touchdown. He also had a long catch of the season of 36 yards in that game, and took a hit which made everyone's year-ending highlight film. The next week, in practice, Charlie hurt a knee, and was never 100 percent again for the season. He finished with 28 catches for 200 yards. Redskin coaches are really looking forward to having healthy Monk, Muhammad, and Brown on field together.

Pro Career: Like his nickname, "Downtown," Charlie made a habit of catching passes many, many yards beyond the line of scrimmage his first two years. After sitting out the 1981 season with a knee injury, he burst upon the scene in '82, catching a 78-yard touchdown pass in his first game of the season (vs. Eagles). By year's end, his name was listed eight times in the Redskins' ten longest gains of '82 with receptions of 78t (touchdown), 65t, 58t, 57t, 45, 43, 39t, and 38. His 21.6 yard average per catch was the NFL's best for anyone with over 20 catches. Earning a Pro Bowl trip, the '81 eighth-round pick finished the season with 690 yards receiving (3rd in NFC), and eight touchdowns (best in NFC, 2nd in NFL). Highlighting that season was the TD he caught in the NFC Championship Game, and then the clinching touchdown in Super Bowl win over Miami. Charlie was also named to the Second-Team UPI all-NFC team, and to the Pro Football Writers all-Rookie Team (though he was really a first-year player). He caught six passes in Super Bowl XVII for 60 yards. All this from an unsung player ignored in the first 200 picks of the '81 draft until the Redskins made him 201.

In '83, Charlie exceeded even his own expectations. He became the first Redskin since 1966 (Charley Taylor) to total over 1,000 yards receiving. His 1,225 yards (4th in NFC) of zigs and zags was the third-highest total ever by a Redskin, trailing only Bobby Mitchell's 1,436 (1963) and 1,384 (1962). Charlie's 78 catches (tied for NFC best with Ernest Gray and Roy Green—a very colorful tie) trailed no one in Redskin lore, however, until Monk's 106 last year. Again voted to Pro Bowl, he had 70-yard TD grab against Niners in NFC Title Game. He led receivers in playoff action with 14 catches for 401 yards (imposing 28.6 yard average). He was third-best Redskin scorer in regular season with eight TD grabs (4th in NFC), longest being 75-yarder versus Eagles at RFK. An original Fun Bunch celebrator, he had six catches over 40 yards, and was voted Second-Team UPI all-NFC once again. His biggest '83 days were against Raiders (11 catches, 180 yards), Rams (with eight catches, 140 yards), and Chargers (eight catches, 101 yards). In all, he enjoyed six 100-yard games in '83.

Charlie has caught seven career passes over 50 yards, all for TDs. In eight playoff contests, he has now caught 31 passes for 643 yards (2.07 average) and three TD's for excellent 3.9 catches and 80.4 yards per game.

College, Personal: At run-oriented South Carolina State, Charlie caught 61 passes for 1,533 yards,. The 4.45 speedster averaged 25 yards per catch (career) with a 26,7 average his senior season. Charlie scored 19 touchdowns for a good program which has placed several top players in the NFL (Deacon Jones, Harry Carson, and Dextor Clinkscale among others). Born in Charleston, S.C., Charlie has seven brothers and sisters. A graduate of St. John's High, John's Island, SC, Charlie earned a Bachelors Degree in Physical Education. The city of Charleston once gave Charlie his own day. Charlie plays on an offseason basketball team with some teammates. (At 5-10, he can dunk from standing start.) Charlie devotes much time to helping others; he attended the No Greater Love Christmas Party, and has visited hospitals on numerous occasions. Charlie resides in Herndon, VA.

65 DAVE BUTZ
DEFENSIVE TACKLE

Purdue
13th NFL Year
11th Redskins

Ht: 6-7 Wt: 295
Born 06/23/50

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, Aug. 5, 1975 (from St. Louis) in exchange for three draft choices (two #1's and one #2). In addition to Butz, the Redskins also received a fifth, sixth, and 15th round pick. This is considered the largest compensation deal in NFL history.

Games Played In/Games Started: 156/129—1973 (12/10); 1974 (1/1); 1975 (14/1); 1976 (14/8) [1/1]; 1977 (12/7) 1978 (16/16); 1979 (15/14); 1980 (16/16); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9) [4/4]; 1983 (16/16) [3/3]; 1984 (15/15) [1/1]

1984 Season: It used to be a big secret why the Redskins clogged the middle so well on defense. Now the reason is still big, but he's no secret. Dave stopped traffic again and again last year, on his way to being voted 2nd-Team all-NFL by AP. Thanks in large part to Dave, the Redskins finished second in the NFL in rushing yards allowed in '84, and the 89.9 yards average they've given up over the last two years is tops in the NFL. Quietly and by example, Dave is the leader. He has now played 143 of a possible 147 games for the Redskins. Last season, he finished with 72 tackles (50 solos), had 4 1/2 sacks, forced two fumbles, and recovered one fumble. On his forced fumble against the Giants (Week 3), Curtis Jordan scooped it up and raced 29 yards for a game-clinching TD. Playing on most every down, Dave tied Darryl Grant for second on the team with 13 quarterback hurries. He earned the team's Defensive Player of the Week against the Eagles. Dave also came up big in the first Dallas contest, making four tackles behind the line, one sack, and a team season-best five QB hurries. Against Atlanta, Dave had a sack and forced fumble on the same play, the victim QB Mike Moroski. He had a regular season streak of 83 straight games played halted when he missed the Buffalo game with a severe flu, spending the day in the hospital. That must have been some strong flu to halt Dave. He was named as an alternate to the Pro Bowl squad.

Pro Career: The fifth player picked overall in the 1973 draft (by St. Louis), Dave earned all-NFL rookie honors for the Cardinals. In the first game of the 1974 season, he suffered a knee injury and missed the entire season. After playing out his option, Dave accepted the Redskins offer and the compensation was completed to sign him. He has intercepted two passes in his career (both vs. the Bears), recovered four fumbles, and returned one kickoff for 23 yards. In 1981, Dave was honored as the Redskins' Defensive Player of the Year by the Brookland Club (repeating his 1978 honor). Dave was the alternate for the Pro Bowl in the player balloting in the NFC in 1981. In 1980, the Monday Morning Touchdown Club honored him as "Outstanding Redskin." For the 1979 season, Dave was a second-team all—NFC pick of UPI. In 1982, Dave was the leader of the NFL's stingiest point defense (128). He led the defensive line with 55 regular season tackles and 19 post-season stops, and was a unanimous "Why didn't he get picked for the Pro Bowl?" selection. He also recorded 4 1/2 regular season sacks, forced one fumble and recovered a fumble. In the playoffs, Dave forced two fumbles, and recovered a very big one. It was David Woodley's fumble after Dexter Manley knocked the ball loose in the Super Bowl. A Moseley field goal shortly followed. He was given a Timmie Award from the Washington Touchdown Club.

In '83, had Dave been left off the Pro Bowl team again, a revolt might have erupted in Washington. Rarely has a defensive lineman enjoyed a finer season. He made 69 tackles (2nd among defensive linemen), piled up a team-leading 11 1/2 sacks, forced a team-best five fumbles, and even recoverd one. He was the anchor of a defense which led the NFL in stopping the run (80.6 yards per game). And, of course, there was the game Redskin fans won't soon forget. Week 15. Redskins versus Cowboys for Division title. Dave is everywhere, getting 2 1/2 sacks, stopping three running plays for lossses, and adding four more tackles for a total of 9 1/2, including even catching Tony Dorsett from behind on a screen pass. Final: Washington 31, Dallas 10. Besides his trip to Hawaii, Dave was named to the AP all-Pro team, Pro Football Weekly all-Pro team, the UPI all-NFC Second Team, and the Sporting News all-Pro team. He also received awards from the Washington DC Touchdown Club, the Kansas City 101 Club, and the NFL Alumni: (defensive lineman of the year).

College, Personal: An all-American at Purdue, Dave was a three-year starter. He obtained a double major in Physical Education and Health and Safety with a minor in Speech. In high school at Park Ridge (IL) Maine South, Dave was State shot put champion and played basketball, once shattering a backboard, before Darryl Dawkins made it fashionable. His biggest problem may be finding shoes to fit him with a 12 1/2 length to go with a 7EEEEEEE width. Dave is the nephew of former Secretary of Agriculture, Earl Butz. Formerly Dave has worked for James Madison Banks in Marketing Home Banking Systems, and for PEPCO in the public relations department dealing with energy conservation programs. His commercial two years ago for a heat pump was a huge success, with Dave sitting on the pump and the old woman coming along. His chief hobby has become decoy (duck) carving, with a local Virginia jewelry store (Reston International Jewelers) selling several of Dave's carvings. Other hobbies include hunting, boating, wine-making, fishing, camping, hiking, and computers. Dave and his wife, Candyce, have two children: David II 8; and Kiffin, 3. The Butz family resides in Belleville, IL in the offseason. Dave was born in Lafayette, AL., but moved to Illinois at an early age. He remains very active on the speaking circuit. Dave is also a regular attendee at the No Greater Love Christmas parties.

48 KEN COFFEY
STRONG SAFETY

SW Texas State　　　　　　Ht: 6-0 Wt: 198
3rd Year　　　　　　　　　Born 11/07/60

How Acquired: Selected in ninth round of 1982 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 25/12—1982 (0-injured reserve); 1983 (13/5) [3/3]; 1984 (12/10) [1/1]

Games Played Streak: 12

1984 Season: Playing in just 12 games, Ken still managed to finish sixth on the team with 96 tackles (61 solos). He missed the first four games recovering from a shoulder separation he suffered in training camp. So actually, he got injured before it was the "in" thing for the '84 Redskins to do. Always the trend-setter, Ken returned quickly to the lineup, which was very good news to the Redskins with Tony Peters hampered by a stomach pull. Ken helped solidify the secondary, forcing two fumbles (Detroit and Dallas [Week 15]), getting one interception (vs. Minnesota for 15 yards), and recovering one fumble (vs. Atlanta). His best games were against the Giants (Week 9, 15 tackles), and Atlanta (13 tackles). Ken also finished tied for third on the team with six deflected passes, including three against Dallas in Week 15, to tie the Redskins' 1984 single-game high. He also contributed on special teams, returning a short punt against Dallas (Week 15) to the 50 yard-line, and making a big play in the first Eagles game—deflecting a punt in his first game of the year. Coaches feel that with a healthy season, Ken can be a premier player.

Pro Career: After being drafted on the ninth round of the '82 draft, Ken suffered a blood disorder and was placed on injured reserve Aug. 24, 1982. He remained there all season, though returning to practices and becoming familiar with the system. The work paid off for him in '83 when he stepped in to play a lot of strong safety for the Super Bowl-bound Redskins. He was the team's third-leading interceptor with four for 62 yards (a long of 29). The thefts came against the Eagles, Raiders (a diving grab), Eagles and Falcons, plus another in the playoffs vs. the Rams. He also added a fumble recovery and sack to his impressive stats. He finished year with 64 tackles, and three forced fumbles (2nd-best on team). He also had two other very pivotal plays. Ken stopped Ron Springs on the forgotten third down play in Dallas (Week 15) which set up the famous fouth-down play. And he showed his special teams value, blocking a Bucky Scribner (Packers) punt in the score-a-thon in Green Bay. Ken moved up to start all three playoff games, and finish second on the team in tackles with 21.

College, Personal: Helping to lead the SWTS Bobcats to the NCAA Division II Championship, Ken was a first-team all-Lone Star Conference selection in 1981. He paced SWTS with eight interceptions, including a 41-yard return for a touchdown against Abilene Christian. A defensive captain, Ken was a main cog in the defense which recorded four shutouts in '81, including a 62-0 blitzing of Northern Michigan in an NCAA Playoff Game. He transferred to SWTS from Tyler College in 1980. He was twice named all-District split end at Big Spring (TX) High and lettered three times in track and was District long jump champion. A graduate in Finance from SWTS, Ken is a voracious reader from the Bible (his favorite book) to Robert Ludlum to James Clavell. Previously, he has spent some time at the D.C. Association of Retarded Citizens, and also visiting the Drug Rehabilitation Center in Washington. He comes from a large family of four brothers and a sister, with one brother, Wayne, now playing football for SWTS as well. His father is a retired Air Force officer, now a firefighter. Last offseason, Ken visited the V.A. Hospital on Valentine's Day to say hello. And he also led the Redskin chorus at the annual No Greater Love Christmas Party. Ken and his wife, Brenda, reside in Reston, VA.

51 MONTE COLEMAN
LINEBACKER

Central Arkansas   Ht: 6-2 Wt: 230
7th Year   Born 11/04/57

How Acquired: Selected in 11th round of 1979 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 78/28—1979 (16/0); 1980 (16/10); 1981 (12/11); 1982 (8/2) [4/0]; 1983 (10/0) [3/0]; 1984 (16/5) [1/0]

Games Played Streak: 26

1984 Season: The word on Monte before the 1984 season was, "If he stays healthy for a full year, watch out!" The word after the 1984 season is, "I hate to say I told you so..." Opposing quarterbacks did not watch out enough last year as they were sacked 10 1/2 times by the blitzing Monte (2nd-best on team). Playing on all passing situations, run situations for the five games he started, and special teams, Monte became one of the Redskins' prime weapons. He single-handedly turned the first Redskins-Dallas game around, picking off a Gary Hogeboom pass and returning it 49 yards for a touchdown. It was the second TD of his career; he had 52-yard return in '81 vs. Eagles. In the Redskins' first win of season, Monte sacked Phil Simms of Giants twice. He kept after Phil in second contest, getting 2 1/2 sacks and three pass deflections. In that first Dallas contest, Monte was named the Redskins' Defensive Player of the Week, as he also made nine tackles with one sack and QB hurry. It was the first year since 1980 that Monte played a full slate of 16 games. It's ironic that season most Redskins get hurt, Monte stays healthy. Overall, he finished 7th on team in tackles with 88 (59 solos), and also forced two fumbles, one in the season finale against St. Louis. His other was part of a football "hat trick," when Monte sacked Patriot quarterback Tony Eason, forced a fumble, and recovered it. His best tackle game of the season came against Minnesota (12). Washington was 4-1 in the five games Monte started. On special teams, he often played one of the outside men on punts, utilizing his 4.45 speed. He also used that speed to ramble 27 yards with a Mike Nelms lateral from a punt return against Detroit; and to run 25 yards on a kickoff reverse to open the playoff game with Chicago. In all, it was a splendid season for the man they call "Super."

Pro Career: Monte is the type of athlete who coaches conduct tugs of war over. He could probably play any position. Another of Bobby Beathard's excellent late-round picks (11th round of '79), Monte has turned into one of the finest linebackers in the NFL—a distinction only a couple nagging injuries denied him of in earlier seasons.

As a rookie, he recovered three fumbles, intercepted a pass, had two sacks, and made 37 tackles. His second season saw him replace Brad Dusek at left linebacker and then later Pete Wysocki on the right side. He started 10 games and recorded 115 tackles (second on the team).

In 1981, Monte suffered a fractured shoulder in Week 2 vs. the Giants, missed four games, but then came back strong to finish third on the team in total tackles (114 1/2). His biggest moment came in Week 14 against the Eagles when he picked off a pass in the fourth quarter and returned it 52 yards for the game-winning touchdown. In addition, he had 3 1/2 quarterback sacks, a fumble recovery, and three pass interceptions for the year.

In 1982, Monte was the starting outside linebacker (left side) until he suffered a shoulder injury before the New York Giants' game (Nov.21). Although never fully recovered, he played every game but one (Philadelphia—Nov. 28) and made 27 tackles. Coming in on passing situations in the playoffs, Monte excelled, getting a sack in the Detroit game, making eight tackles, and then causing and recovering a fumbled punt against Dallas in the NFC Championship Game. He recovered that in the end zone but the ball was brought back to the 11. The Redskins scored a touchdown soon after. He also led the team in getting downfield first on punt returns.

After missing the first six games of '83 with a thigh injury, Monte returned to become a big-play man for the Redskins. His hit and forced fumble on Giants quarterback Jeff Rutledge in the season finale literally clinched the Eastern Division title for the Redskins. He recorded 29 tackles, two sacks, and two recovered fumbles. He also contributed heavily in the playoffs, making 13 tackles adding two more sacks, one forced fumble, and one recovered fumble. He was used on a reverse kickoff return in the NFC Championship Game that gained 40 yards but was called back by penalty. He had a fine game in that 49er affair, making five tackles, defending two passes, and recovering a fumble. He also contributed on special teams, with 22 hits, and eight tackles on punt coverage.

College, Personal: After earning NAIA honors at little-known University of Central Arkansas, Monte became his school's first NFL draftee. He recorded a school mark of 22 interceptions as a safety and linebacker. He enrolled at UCA to follow his brother, Sam, a running back, who also had a tryout with the Redskins. Monte majored in Commercial Art and enjoys landscape painting. He stays active in the offseason playing softball and basketball, hunting, and especially fishing which he indulges in most often (a lot of bass fishing, he says). He graduated from Pine Bluff High, but now resides in Reston, VA. Monte has two children: a son, Corry, 8; and a daughter, Londie, 5. He remains a very popular figure in the Washington area, doing much public speaking, and making several visits to area hospitals.

Games Played Streak: 3

1984 Season: Pete was one of the first casualties in the Redskins' M*A*S*H Unit last season, fracturing his ankle during punt coverage in the Redskins-Raiders preseason game (Aug. 10). The injury sidelined him for the better part of the season, as he was placed on injured reserve Aug. 14. Pete did recover, though, and when the Redskins were having some special teams trouble, "Cronan the Barbarian" was called upon. To be activated, he had to go through the waiver process before the Redskins could add him to the roster. In the final three games, he had 22 special teams hits, with a high of eight in season finale against St. Louis. He was noted for his extra effort in that game, with two blocks on the play that resulted in Rich Mauti's punt block. Even when injured, Pete helped Special Teams Coach Wayne Sevier with his weekly preparation. Pete is considered a real on-the-field leader for these 'Skins.

Pro Career: A second-round draft choice of the Seattle Seahawks in 1977 (51st overall), Pete played in 45 games his first three seasons there. He missed the entire 1980 season, suffering a herniated disc in his neck in August. His career best for tackles was 16 in a 1979 start vs. Denver. He was credited with 58 and 53 tackles, respectively, for the 1979 and '78 seasons. He has recovered six fumbles, intercepted two passes for 15 yards, had two quaterback sacks, and blocked a punt in his NFL career. In 1981, Pete was active for the Redskins in the final 10 games, and started the last two when Neal Olkewicz was injured. For the season, he was credited with 20 tackles and 57 total hits on the specialty units. Named captain of the special teams in 1982, Pete responded by leading the group to the best kickoff and punt coverage in the NFC. He was an intimidating force in the Redskins' first seven games before a hamstring injury put him on injured reserve. He returned for the NFC Championship against Dallas and Super Bowl against Miami. At the time of the injury, Pete was third on the team with 46 hits and led the kickoff coverage with 12 tackles and eight assists. He had a key fumble recovery in the 'Skins' first victory over the Giants. As a reserve linebacker, he made one tackle. In 1983, Pete was a star. He tied with Otis Wonsley for most hits (157, a team record), and led the team in punt return blocks with 53. His high day for hits came in the Redskins' 31-10 win over Dallas when he had 12. His 16 "First hits" on kickoff coverage led the team. His 52 blocks on kickoff returns was third-best on the team. The inspirational leader of the "teams," Pete has a knack for firing up a crowd.

College, Personal: At Boston College, Pete was named the East's Player of the Year by the ECAC in 1976, New England Sportswriters Outstanding Player, and Sports Illustrated Lineman of the Week for his 22-tackle effort vs. Texas. BC's captain, he was winner of the Swede Nelson Sportsmanship Award, presented nationally by the Boston Gridiron Club. A four-year letterman, he received his degree in Elementary Education with a minor in Sociology. Pete lettered in five sports (football, basketball, hockey, baseball, and track) at Marian High in Framingham, MA. During the offseason, Pete took a job selling commercial real estate in the Boston area. He and his wife, Debbie, also welcomed a second child, Nicholas Peter, born in May. Allyson, their first child, is 2 1/2. Pete also finds time to operate a camp (the All East Football Academy) in Framingham with some fellow pros. "Our motto is to get pros in touch with kids," he said. He has a securities license, and is a busy speaker in both the season and offseason. The Cronans were on hand for the No Greater Love Christmas Party in December, and in fact, Pete was the main attraction, as Santa Claus himself. Previously, he has worked with the Muscular Dystrophy Association and the Arthritis Foundation in the offseason. The Cronans reside in Framingham in the offseason.

32 VERNON DEAN
CORNERBACK

San Diego State
4th Year

Ht: 5-11 Wt: 178
Born 05/05/59

How Acquired: Selected in second round of 1982 draft (1st Redskin pick; 49th overall)

Games Played In/Games Started: 41/35—1982 (9/8) [4/4]; 1983 (16/13) [3/0]; 1984 (16/14) [1/1]

Games Played Streak: 41 (14 starts)

1984 Season: Call him the "Dean of the School of Interceptions." For after only three seasons, this Dean already has 15 air thefts to his credit. His biggest one of the team-leading seven he had in '84 (tied for 2nd in NFC, 4th in NFL) came in the second half against the Giants (Week 3). The 0-2 Redskins, in dire need of a win, had just moved out in front, 16-14. A strong-armed Phil Simms looked confident enough to lead the Giants back until Vernon stepped in front of his next pass, caught it, and then steered a tricky course 36 yards into the end zone. With a 23-14 lead, the Redskins had their first 1984 victory in sight. Vernon's third career touchdown (he had one in '83) came in Week 13 of the season as he stepped in front of a Joe Ferguson pass and took it 11 yards for the score. The TD made Vernon the only Redskin defender of '84 to have two scores under his Burgundy and Gold belt. The season did not begin so bright, for Vernon, however, as he played only on special teams and nickel packages. But in Week 2 in San Francisco, he replaced Anthony Washington and looked like the same confident Vernon Dean who manned the corner spot during the Redskins' Super Bowl winning '82 season. His two TD returns tied the club record for most in one season, shared by Dale Hackbart (1961) and Dan Sandifer (1948). On the season, Vernon finished fourth on the club with 99 tackles (his career-high). For his effort against the Giants—he had two more interceptions to go along with his TD return—he was named the NFC Defensive Player of the Week. The score against Buffalo earned Vernon the Redskins' Defensive Player of the Week. Vernon also had a forced fumble (vs. 49ers) and a recovered fumble (in finale vs. St. Louis; set up Monk touchdown and 13-0 lead). His biggest tackle of the season came in Week 15 in Texas Stadium against Dallas. With the Redskins up 30-28 and the Cowboys attempting to rally, Vernon rose to the occasion and stopped Tony Dorsett cold on a second-and-four screen. The seven-yard loss made it 3rd-and-11, and two incompletions later the Redskins had a pivotal win. Vernon also contributed on special teams, making 10 hits on the year.

Pro Career: Though 48 players were chosen ahead of him in the '82 draft, Vernon made geniuses of the Redskin brass, finishing as runner-up to Cleveland's Chip Banks in the balloting for AP NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year. He was the Redskins' third-highest draft pick since 1971. His three interceptions tied him for the team lead as he also contributed 47 tackles, replacing Joe Lavender (injury) in the second game of the season. He was well-honored for the fine season: Football Digest NFL Rookie of the Year, second-team UPI all-NFC, and first-team all-NFL Rookie Team by the Pro Football Writers Association. In the playoffs, Vernon was third on the team with 24 tackles, and contributed a sack. In '83, Vernon made some clutch plays to help the Redskins to their second straight Super Bowl. He recovered a Cardinals fumble in the end zone for his first NFL touchdown. And he ended the Redskins-49ers Championship Game by intercepting a long Joe Montana heave. His five interceptions were second on the team, and his 69 tackles eighth. Playing all season despite assorted injuries, he also forced three fumbles and recovered three fumbles.

College, Personal: A first-team all-WAC selection at San Diego State in 1981, Vernon earned AP Honorable Mention all-American honors. He took part in the Blue-Grey game, the Olympia Gold Bowl, and the East-West Shrine Game. In his first game with San Diego State after transferring from US International University, Vernon broke Brigham Young (and now Chicago Bear) QB Jim McMahon's string of 152 pass attempts without an interception. He graduated from Los Angeles High and entered Los Angeles Valley Junior College where he started in 1977 and '78 before transferring to USIU. In his final season there he had 10 air thefts for 179 yards. In '81 he led the WAC with six intercepts (89 yards), while making 52 tackles and batting down eight passes. . . A bachelor, Vernon moved his residence from Los Angeles to Reston (VA) last year to take some offseason classes at George Mason University. His Major is Business Administration. Vernon was one of several Redskins present at the No Greater Love Party held last Christmas for children whose fathers were killed in service to their country.

1984 Season: Clint's first home is Kenwick, Washington; his second home is the end zone. And he just might spend more time in the latter. Even when Clint broke the fibula bone in his right leg on the first play of the Redskins' preseason duel with the Raiders, he did not come out until scoring the game's first touchdown. The injury sidelined Clint until Week 6 of the season, but then, talk about making up for lost time. In the remaining 11 weeks, the shifty tight end caught 30 passes for 350 yards (both 3rd-best on team), and five touchdowns (2nd-best). In his three year career, Clint now has caught 41 passes for 513 yards and 10 TD's. That's one score in just about every four receptions! Clint displayed his nose for the end zone against the Cowboys in Week 7, catching two passes, both for scores. He enjoyed a season-high five receptions and one touchdown against the Eagles in Week 12, and just missed making an acrobatic game-winning catch with time running down.

His 44-yard catch against the Cardinals in the season finale set up the game's first touchdown, and was his long play of the year. Clint also had a superb effort against the Bears in the playoffs, catching four passes for 85 yards in a starting role. (He moved into the starting lineup in Week 15.) His over-the-shoulders, 26-yard grab in the third quarter set up a short Riggins TD run. Clint caught at least one pass in each of the 11 games he played. He also finished fourth on the team in scoring with 30 points. Clint really worked on his blocking to become a complete tight end. Given a full season, he could rejoin college quarterback Neil Lomax on another team: the Pro Bowl team.

Pro Career: In the 1981 draft, Clint was 18 picks away from being feted in that annual award for the last draft pick. He was the 314th player chosen, but suffered a pulled hamstring in training camp grounding him for the season. But as Clint's future would reflect, he had already scored a touchdown by that time, hauling in a 37-yard pass against AFC-champ Cincinnati in preseason. In '82, he had an excellent training camp and became one of Washington's best special teams players that season. Clint scored his first regular season TD in the finale with the Cardinals (a two-yard score). In Super Bowl XVII, Clint had perhaps the biggest block of the Redskin season, as John Riggins sped for his game-winning touchdown. He played well in Pasadena, filling in for Don Warren who was injured in the game. He was often the first man downfield on punts (10 times—second-best on team), and made a great play in the first Giants game, leaping into the end zone to keep a punt from falling there, knocking the ball out to the one. (Just get Clint near the end zone.) Clint saw more playing time in '83, catching nine passes for 153 yards and four touchdowns. He scored TD's on a 40-yard pass play (in Dallas), a 29-yard play (vs. KC), an 18-yard reception (vs. Atlanta), and a seven yard catch (in finale vs. Giants). He added a fifth season TD when he recovered John Riggins' fumble in the end zone for a TD vs. Green Bay. Those five scores made Clint the team's fifth-leading scorer (tied). He then excelled in the playoffs, grabbing nine more passes for 133 yards (14.8 average), as the Redskins' second-leading playoff receiver. He was one of few to have good Super Bowl, catching five passes for 65 yards with a long of 20, taking advantage of one-on-one coverage. His 17.0 average per catch was team-best for anyone over five catches. He had three catches for 61 yards in NFC Championship win over 49ers, including 46-yard bomb. He started two games in place of injured Don Warren that year.

PLAYOFF FEVER... The Redskins have now appeared in playoffs for three consecutive seasons, and in eight of the last 14 seasons. Since the merger in 1970, Redskins remain only team to win more than one NFC Championship Game (three) without losing an NFC Championship Game. Only five teams have competed in more Super Bowls than Washington's three. All totalled, since '70 merger, the Redskins are 8-7 in playoffs, 7-1 at home...

College, Personal: A superior athlete, Clint earned the nickname "Frog" by running a 4.5 40-yard dash, leaping 33 inches in the vertical jump, and leading all players with a record 35-feet plus standing triple broad jump...At Portland State, Clint caught 118 passes for 1,963 yards from Cardinal QB Lomax. As a senior he had 67 catches, a 16.3 average per catch, and scored 12 touchdowns. He transferred to Portland from Columbia Basin (WA) Junior College. Born in Pasco, WA, Clint graduated from Connell High where he was track hurdler as well as a football player. The son of a farmer, Clint spends his offseasons working at home. He has three brothers and a sister. One brother, Curt, signed as a free agent with the Raiders in 1980. Clint and his wife, Kristie, welcomed a new addition to their family last year, Travis, who will soon be one. Travis has one older sister, Brandie Rae. Travis was born following the Redskins contest in St. Louis; a police escort was waiting at Dulles airport to rush Clint to the hospital for the birth. The Didiers, as was mentioned at the top, reside in Kenwick, Washington (the state).

1984 Season: Necessity, it is said, is the mother of invention. But in Rick's case, it is also the mother of bona fide NFL starters. The necessity of using Rick came when Jeff Bostic tore ligaments in his knee in Week 8 in St. Louis. Rick stepped in, picked up the ball, the slack, and a few awards as well for his second-half efforts. The starting center the last eight games and the playoff game with Chicago, Rick was voted The Offensive Player of the Game against the Falcons in Week 10 (27-14 win). Asst. Head Coach Joe Bugel, in charge of the offensive line, complimented Rick each week on his progress at center, and feels he should only get better. Earlier in the season, Rick displayed enough athleticism to play special teams for the Redskins, manning the wedge on kickoff returns. He had 23 hits on special teams including game-highs of six against Indianapolis and Dallas. (He was pulled off special teams once moving into the starting lineup.) By the end of the season, Rick looked like a real veteran. The Redskins feel Rick can handle either guard or center position, so future looks very bright for the strong, young man. According to Dan Riley, Strength Coach, Rick is second-strongest on team behind Jacoby, of course.

THE SKIN-SIDE-STORY: "Rick is a very smart player with a great ability to learn. Obviously, he's quite strong and talented as well. It will be fun to have him for an entire training camp this year."—Joe Bugel Pro Career: A third round draft choice of the Steelers in 1981, Rick had a strong first training camp before a broken right thumb put him on injured reserve for the year. Then in June of 1983, he won the "Strongest Man in NFL" contest, lifting a total of 42,000 pounds in four events. Rick saw his first action in the 1982 season, playing in five games towards end of year. But in 1983, Rick's star finally began to rise. He earned his first pro start at Cincinnati (10/10) for Steve Courson in Monday Night win. He started six games in a row, five at right guard, and then one at left guard for Craig Wolfley at Baltimore 11/13. He then started again at left guard against Detroit (11/24). With ironman Mike Webster in front of him, Rick really had nowhere to go in Pittsburgh.

College, Personal: Playing guard and center for the Tar Heels, Rick was a four-year letterman, three-year starter, and senior co-captain. He was a unanimous pick to the 1980 all—ACC team. A National Football Foundation Scholar Athlete award winner and three-time Academic all-ACC, Rick was a Phi Beta Kappa with a 3.6 collegiate average. He played in the Senior Bowl as well, and graduated North Carolina with a B.S. in Business Administration. A native of Wilmington, Delaware, he was a heavyweight wrestling champion and standout fullback and linebacker at Sanderson High (Raleigh, NC)...He's currently working on his Masters in Business Administration. He and his wife Patty are the proud parents of a little girl, Cortney, born 10/2/84. The Donnalleys reside in Herndon, VA.

DEFENSIVE TACKLE

Rice   Ht: 6-1 Wt: 275

How Acquired: Selected in ninth round of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 55/35—1981 (15/0); 1982 (9/4) [4/4]; 1983 (16/16) [3/3]; 1984 (15/15) [1/1]

Games Played Streak: 15

1984 Season: To put it as succinctly as possible, if Darryl wanted to clog a sink, forget the Drano; better find another sink. Opposing runners found this out once again last year, rushing for just 99.3 yards per game, the 2nd-lowest total in football. And in short yardage it gets even harder: over the last six games the Redskins gave up just one rushing TD. With Darryl and Dave Butz in the middle, it's best to go around. Darryl managed to get around enough in '84 to make 74 tackles, second on the team among defensive linemen. Even more impressive though was Darryl's sack total of 7 1/2 (career-high), considering he comes out in most passing situations. That total was also tied for 3rd-best on team. After missing the opener with a knee sprain, Darryl returned to start the remaining 15 games. In four seasons, he's missed just two contests. Darryl showed his nose for the ball again last year, recovering a team-high four opponent fumbles. One of those became the highlight of his season, as he returned it 22 yards for a touchdown (Week 14 in Minnesota). It was the first regular season touchdown of his career. His other recoveries came against the Niners, Giants (Week 3), and Eagles (Week 5). Darryl also forced two fumbles, against Atlanta and Dallas (Week 15). When he wraps his arms around you, it's time to give up. Thanks in part to Darryl, only one opposing runner over last 30 games (regular season) has exceeded 100 yards. Darryl also took over some of the snapping duties when Jeff Bostic went down with a knee injury.

Pro Career: If two-way players were at all feasible in the pros, Darryl would definitely be one. As the 231st player picked in the 1981 draft, he earned a roster spot as a reserve offensive guard. In the season finale that year, he was tried at defensive tackle and made the switch in the offseason. As a member of the special teams in '81, he ranked third overall with 84 points and led the club with 42 blocks on kickoff returns. He began 1982 as a reserve, but when starter Perry Brooks went down with a broken leg in the Dalllas game (Week 5), Darryl stepped in and hasn't let up since. There was one time when Darryl had one foot back on the offensive side—in '83 training camp—but Richie Petitbon insisted that experiment be a short one . In '82, Darryl made 37 tackles and three sacks, and then 11 tackles and one fumble recovery in the playoffs. But he also made perhaps the biggest defensive play of the Reskins' season when he caught a Dexter Manley-deflected pass against Dallas in the NFC Championship Game and high-stepped into the end zone for a 31-17 lead. The play simply put the Redskins into Super Bowl XVII. In '83, Darryl didn't miss a start or a tackle; he had 101 (67 solos) in all to lead the defensive line and place fifth on the team. He also chipped in with 2 1/2 sacks, three forced fumbles, and two fumble recoveries. In the playoffs he had 14 tackles and one sack. His game-high was 11 tackles against San Diego. Playing the wedge on kickoff returns Darryl also had 39 blocks. His force in the middle of the Redskins' run defense helped the team to a League-leading 80.6 yards average.
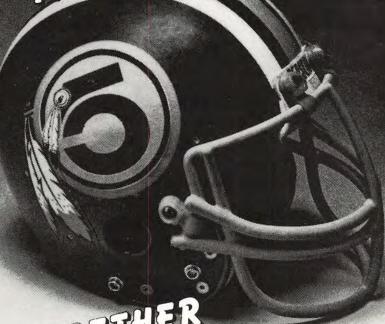

College, Personal: Seemingly to prepare for his life as a pro, Darryl played several positions at Rice, tackle and center on offense, and linebacker and noseguard on defense, earning four letters. His speed and quickness enabled him to play many positions. In high school (Highlands in San Antonio), he was an all-American center...Darryl and his wife Mary welcomed the addition of a new Grant in the offseason, Darryl Jr. The couple also has a daughter, Nicole, who is 5. Darryl has been nicknamed "World" by his teammates as in all—World. His interests include singing, especially a cappella, computers, and karate which he took up in the offseason. The Grants reside in Reston, VA.

CORNERBACK

Texas A&I
3rd Year

Ht:5-8 Wt:170
Born 02/15/60

How Acquired: Selected in first round of 1983 Draft (28th player)

Games Played In/Games Started: 32/32—1983 (16/16) [3/3]; 1984 (16/16) [1/1]

Games Played Streak: 32 (all starts)

1984 Season: Week 15. Texas Stadium. "It's all or nothing," says Coach Gibbs. Halftime: Dallas 21, Washington 6. Final: Washington 30, Dallas 28. Color the first half red, as in Redskins, as in stop. Color the second half Green, as in Darrell, as in go. Though the Redskins stall on their first third-quarter drive, Green steps to the forefront, intercepting a Danny White pass and returning it 32 yards for a touchdown. It's a big lift to the team and for Darrell, who is hoisted into the air by a host of teammates. Later in the quarter Darrell picks off another pass to end a Cowboys drive. He is named as the Defensive Player of the Game with eight tackles including one behind the line. The performance, seen by a national television audience, cements the PRO BOWL nomination (as starter) which he played so well all year to earn. As the Redskins' own "Little Big Man," Darrell was the only Redskins defensive player to make it to Hawaii in '84. He was also one of just two defenders to start every game, and he has still never missed a start in his two seasons. On the year, Darrell finished with 87 tackles (8th on team), with a season high of 10 against the 49ers in Week 2 (seven solos). He also deflected a team-high of 14 passes, including three in Week 3 against the Giants. Darrell's five interceptions were second on the team to Vernon Dean's seven. The speedster was robbed of a 103-yard touchdown against Detroit when the official ruled he was down in the end zone with his interception. In all, Darrell had 100 yards of interception returns, highlighted by an exciting, half-ending 50-yarder. Nicknamed "MX" as in the missile, Darrell also gives the Redskins a return weapon, if they so choose. As it was, he retuned just two punts with a long of 13 yards, though he retreated back on many an occasion, including the playoff game with Chicago. It's hard to remember Darrell missing any action all year. It's also hard to recall just how many touchdown-saving tackles he made, but it had to be in double figures. In the Pro Bowl, Darrell broke up several passes and also returned kickoffs in what willl most likely be the first of many such games for him.

THE SKIN-SIDE STORY: "Some guys get beaten and it destroys them," said Master Builder Bobby Beathard. "Darrell has that great heart, along with great speed and great reactions. You just know he'll come back and make a big play. He may be small but he plays about 10 stories high."

Pro Career: When Darrell sped 61 yards for a touchdown in 1983 preseason opener in Atlanta, the Redskins knew they had something special. The number one pick moved right into the Redskins starting secondary and stayed there all year. His excellent play was well-rewarded: runner-up for AP NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year, and the Football Digest and AP all-rookie first teams. Darrell's biggest plays came in the postseason where he ran back an interception 72 yards for a TD against the Rams, had a forced fumble and seven tackles against San Francisco, and then ran back a punt for a Super Bowl record 34 yards against the Raiders. He finished as the team's fourth-best tackler (109), though leading the team in solo stops (79). Another highlight for Darrell came when he ran Tony Dorsett down from behind in Week 1, keeping the Cowboys to a field goal. He also had two interceptions, one against Cowboys in Dallas (that's three in two games there). He added 19 tackles in the playoffs; had a high regular season game of 12 against Atlanta; and forced two fumbles while recovering one. He also returned four punts for 29 yards, with a long of 18. A 4.3 40 runner, Darrell sped 53 yards with a lateral (ruled forward) in the NFC Championship Game. His 32-game start streak is the fifth longest on the team.

College, Personal: A 10.08 100-meter man in college, Darrell averaged an incredible 20.6 yards on 19 punt returns for Texas A&I, to lead all of Division II in 1982. He was named to Football Coaches all-American Division I team, after turning in a splendid season for the Javelinas, which included 56 tackles and four interceptions. The Lone Star Conference Defensive Player of the Year, Darrell was also selected for AP 1st Team Little all-America (in reference to his college, not size). An all-America track performer as well, Darrell was clocked only behind Carl Lewis that season in the 100. Equipped with a 32-inch vertical leap, he returned two punts for TD's as a senior (76 and 96 yards). An all-State Track and all-City football star from Jones High in Houston, Darrell still has family in that area... He is very active in local youth groups while serving as a local VP of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. His big news in the offseason was his marriage, March 16, to the former Jewell Fenner. The couple now resides in Centreville, VA. A Physical Education Major, Darrell is a spokesperson for Big Brothers of America in the DC area, having filmed a Public Service Announcement for them.

MONDAY NIGHT TV...The Redskins have appeared 23 times on Monday Night TV, tied for fourth-most in the NFL. Their 14 victories are tied for third-most with Pittsburgh, behind the Raiders and Dolphins. Washington played the fifth game in the series beginning (Week 5, 1970 vs Oakland). At home, the Redskins are 9-2 on Monday nights. Their 48-47 loss in Green Bay two years ago still stands as the highest scoring game ever on Monday Night...

Games Played Streak: 16

1984 Season: Keith was the Redskins' secret weapon last year, carrying the ball and the load when John Riggins and Joe Washington were not able. As one of just three rookies on the team, Keith showed veteran savvy, rushing for 408 yards on 97 carries (second on team). His 31-yard run against Dallas in Week 7 was the team's longest of the season. But Keith's major spotlight-grabbing day came later. It was Week 11 versus the Lions with Riggins on the sidelines when RFK fans learned the name Keith Griffin. He rushed for 114 yards on 32 carries, setting up three short Wonsley touchdowns and a Redskins victory. It was the first 100-yard game by a Redskin rookie since Mike Thomas accomplished it in 1975. For his effort, Keith was chosen the Redskins' Offensive Player of the Week. His second-best game occurred two weeks later against the Bills, as he carried 25 times for 92 yards in another big Washington triumph. Keith also caught eight passes on the season for 43 yards. Keith's other major contibution to the '84 Redskins was on the special teams. Flanking Mike Nelms on kickoff returns, he ran back nine kicks for 164 yards with a long of 31. Keith's combined yardage of 615 ranked fifth on the Redskins behind Monk, Nelms, Riggins, and Muhammad. Also playing on coverage teams, Keith finished sixth on the team in hits with 76. His best games came against Miami and the Giants (in New Jersey), with nine hits in each. Redskin coaches feel Keith has all the tools to be an excellent running back in this League. Only a 10th round draft choice, he worked hard in training camp to earn a roster spot, excelling in the third preseason game, against the Patriots. He became the third Griffin brother to play in the NFL, following Ray and Archie. Keith was named the Alexandria Grandstand Club's Rookie of the Year for 1984.

THE SKIN-SIDE STORY: "I really think Keith can be an exceptional runner in this League. Last year, the guy got every yard he possibly could. And his work habits are great." — Joe Gibbs College, Personal: Having gained 1,167 rushing yards at Miami, Keith also caught 41 passes for 265 yards. As a senior, he helped Miami to national championship. His 20-yard run set up winning field goal to beat Florida, 17-16, in Tallahassee. He was called on to be the primary rusher in the late-season. In the Orange Bowl over Nebraska, he carried nine times for 42 yards, and caught three passes for 35 yards. As a junior, he rushed for 473 yards and caught 15 passes. That was a little short of his 19 receptions as a senior. He scored TD on national television versus Notre Dame as a sophomore. As a freshman for Hurricane, Keith ran on record-breaking 400-meter track team. He played in Japan Bowl senior year. Keith attended Eastmoor High in Ohio, and was named to the National High School Coaches All-American squad as a senior. He rushed for 1,100 yards with 10 TD's that season. For his prep career, Keith accumulated more than 2,800 yards, with 30 touchdowns. He also wrestled in high school... The youngest of seven football-playing brothers, Keith is a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Ray plays with the Cincinnati Bengals now, while Archie works at Ohio State. Archie, of course, was a two-time Heisman Trophy winner for the Buckeyes. Keith enjoys reading the Bible, video games, weight lifting, listening to jazz, following the stock market, and going to movies. He was a finance major at Miami. He and his wife, Gail, expect their first child in September. They reside in Fairfax, VA., and enjoy the Washington area.

How Acquired: Selected in third round of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 55/54—1981 (14/13); 1982 (9/9) [4/4]; 1983(16/16) [3/3]; 1984 (16/16); [1/1]

Games Played Streak: 51 (all starts)

1984 Season: Over the past couple years, a Grimm Approach has taken shape amongst defensive linemen around the NFL. In a word, it's "Help!" Peruse the year-end all-everything lists from those who compile them, and try to find one without the name, "Grimm." Just try. You can eliminate these from your search: Pro Bowl starter (2nd straight year); USA Today NFC Offensive Lineman of the Year; First-team AP NFL all-Pro; First-team UPI NFC all-Pro; Sports Illustrated NFL All—Pro team; Pro Football Writers Association all-Pro Team; and John Madden's all-NFL Team (his proudest achievement). He was one large and very important reason Redskins finished 4th in NFL in rushing yardage (142.1 yards per game). An original ground Hog, Russ was chosen as the Redskins' Offensive Player of the Game in Week 7 vs. Dallas. In that contest, team rushed for 241 yards (season-high), held Cowboys' flex without sack, and was perfect inside the 20 with four scores in four such possessions. Russ also recovered a key fumble, when Joe Theismann coughed it up in second Dallas contest on the Redskins' 30. One of just eight Redskins to start every game, Russ rarely allowed sack. He was one of just eight players to start every game last season; his 51-game start streak is second-best on team (to Theismann); and his 51 straight games as a Redskin are the fourth-highest total on team. Without Russ, Redskins would have had a hard time scoring amount of points they did (426-3rd in NFL). When any short yardage situation arose, it was no guessing game as to where Redskins would go: right over Grimm and Jacoby. Such logic helped Redskins convert 11 of 15 fourth-down attempts, and key fourth down in playoff game with Bears (in 1st quarter). Russ also played some center in game Bostic went down.

THE SKIN-SIDE-STORY: "Russ is a player from the old school," said Redskins offensive line coach Joe Bugel. "He leads by example and knows the difference between pain and injury...If Russ didn't play guard, there's a chance he'd be an all-pro center or an all-pro tackle."

Pro Career: The 69th player selected in the '81 draft, Russ was pegged right away as a starter for the Redskins—but at center, not guard. Injuries along the way, plus Bostic's fine play necessitated his move to left guard in training camp, a move no one has regretted. Despite a knee injury and the new position, Russ earned a spot on the NFL all-Rookie Team. In '82, the Hogs were born, and Russ was a Second-team all-NFC selection by UPI. The Hogs capped off a great season by helping the Redskins to 276 rushing yards in Super Bowl XVII, their highest total of the season. He also was able to neutralize Randy White in the NFC Championship Game, allowing John Riggins to surpass 100 yards for the third straight playoff game. In '83, Russ was recognized by everyone for an outstanding season: he was a starting Pro Bowler, 1st Team all-NFC by UPI, 1st Team all-NFL by AP, and all-Pro by Pro Football Weekly. Starting every game, he was major reason why Redskins were able to lead NFL in time of possession (33:48 per game) and points scored (541-new NFL record). He also played center in season finale against Giants when Bostic was hurt. Theismann was sacked just 35 times (tied for 2nd-best in NFL) thanks to Hogs.

To get Russ, the Redskins traded away their 1982 first-round choice in exchange for a third in '81 (Grimm), a second in '82 (Dean), and two fifths in '81 (Manley and Gary Sayre).

College, Personal: Russ earned Honorable Mention all-America status as a two-year starter for Panther teams that were 22-2 and nationally ranked. He also was a snapper for extra points and a reserve punter for Pitt. At Southmoreland (PA) High, Russ was the quarterback, played linebacker, and punted. He earned nine letters while once scoring 41 points for the basketball team, and was a National Honor Society student. . .Born in Scottdale, PA, Russ and his wife Karen reside now in Oakton, VA. The couple welcomed a new son last May, Chad Russell. An avid golfer, Russ has done work for Annheuser Busch the last two years.

64 STEVE HAMILTON
DEFENSIVE END

East Carolina　　　　　　　Ht: 6-4 Wt: 253
1st Year　　　　　　　　　　Born 09/28/61

How Acquired: Selected in second round (55th overall) of 1984 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 0/0—1984 (0-injured reserve)

1984 Season: Steve was playing well for the Redskins in the preseason, when he broke his ankle playing special teams against the Patriots. He was soon placed on injured reserve and remained there the entire season. He did come back to practice with the team, however. Defensive line Coach Torgeson has high hopes for Steve in this coming year.

College, Personal: An AP Second-Team all-South Independent choice as a junior, Steve was hampered by an ankle injury his senior year. Despite that, he still played in 10 of 11 games for the Pirates. He had a five-tackle effort in a 13-6 defeat of Missouri and a fumble recovery in a loss to Florida. On the season, he had 26 tackles (14 assists). As a junior, he had 46 tackles, four quarterback sacks, two forced fumbles, and one fumble recovery. Voted the Pirates' Defensive Player of the Week against NC State, East Tennessee, and West Virginia, Steve was voted the team's Most Improved Defensive Player. As a sophomore, he had 18 tackles, and as a freshman, 31 stops. Steve spent one year at Fork Union Military Academy after graduating as all-Division TE from Williamsville East High (NY). He also lettered as member of the state basketball championship team as a senior. A business major, Steve was born in Niagara Falls. He remains a bachelor, and now resides in Reston, VA.

Games Played In/Games Started: 41/0—1982 (9/0) [4/0]; 1983 (16/0) [3/0]; 1984 (16/0 [1/0]

Games Played Streak: 41

1984 Season: He wasn't exactly being called "Big Foot" last year, but Jeff showed the NFL that his leg meant business. He remained the only punter in football to handle the kickoff chores as well. And handle them he did. Over 50 percent of his kickoffs sailed inside the five, with 17 resulting in touchbacks. He had a season-high five touchbacks on kickoffs against New England, including his most spectacular one of the season. On that play, Jeff kicked off from the Redskins' 20 after three consecutive penalties. But probably worried that his cover team would be out of breath, Jeff hammered the kick which flew out of the end zone (85 yards) for a touchback. His punts may have not been the furthest in the League, but more important than that, their height made them very difficult to return. In fact, of 73 punts Jeff had, the longest return against him was an incredible 14 yards. The opponent averaged a mere 4.9 yards per return, the 2nd-lowest average in the NFL. Jeff also induced 15 fair catches, 2nd best in the NFC and the highest Redskin total since 1979. The Cowboys will surely remember Jeff for his exploits against them last year. In the Week 7 game, he had five kicks land in the end zone with two others touching down at the one and three. The Cowboys did not start a drive (after a kickoff) from past their 23-yard line. Jeff duplicated that feat in the Week 15 game, as six of his seven kicks landed in the end zone (four touchbacks). With his athletic ability, Jeff also gives the Redskins another dimension: that of the run. His 24-yard run for a first down on a fake punt in Minnesota put the Vikings into a Purple Hayes. Jeff has now made a perfect four of four fourth-down runs in his career resulting in four first downs and 101 yards. His 24-yarder was tied for the fourth-longest run of the Redskins season. Jeff had a long punt of 59 yards, and had 13 land inside the 20, one of his specialties.

THE SKIN-SIDE STORY: "I believe that Jeff is the best punter in football at putting the ball inside the 20," said Coach Gibbs. "In three years, I can't remember one of his punts landing in the end zone. Not one. And I can't begin to tell you how important field position has been for us."

Pro Career: Jeff came into training camp in 1982 as an unknown free agent, but with a superb summer won the job outright from incumbent Mike Connell. His ability to kick off was immediate help to Redskins, as a fresher Mark Moseley connected on his first 20 field goals of the season. In addition, the Redskins kickoff coverage unit ranked number one in the NFL. Jeff kicked extremely well in Super Bowl XVII, punting four times for an average of 42 yards, dropping one inside the 20, and booming another for 54 yards. On the season, Jeff punted 10 times inside the 20 with a long of 58. In 1983, Jeff honed his fine art of punting inside the 20, leading the NFL (tied) with 29. He also dropped four of his eight postseason punts inside the 20. Of his 72 regular season punts, only two sailed into the end zone for touchbacks. The 29 inside the 20 tied the club record (Mike Bragg). He also had three runs in '83: a 48-yarder against San Diego on Monday Night which brought the ball to the two yard-line and set up a key Riggins TD; a 15-yard romp against Detroit for a first down; and a 14;yard burst for a first down in the NFC Championship- against Niners. The 48-yard run was the longest from scrimmage all year. He also booted a successful onsides kick ("power kick") against the Raiders in the fourth quarter of the regular season game, helping the Redskins overcome a 15-point deficit.

College, Personal: A multi-purpose kicker at North Carolina, Jeff handled all the punting, kicking off and PAT's in 1981. He averaged 41.8 yards on 54 punts on a Tar Heel squad that led the ACC in net punting and finished eighth in the nation in that category. Oppponents returned just 17 of his 64 kickoffs, and he made 45 of 46 PAT's, his only miss coming after he had run 70 yards on a fake punt for a touchdown. . .Jeff devotes most of his offseason time to the managing of an Italian resturant called Rocco's, of which he and Curtis Jordan own three area franchises: in Springfield, Fairfax, and Wood-bridge. Jeff is one of the select few who knows how to make "the secret sauce," as he calls it. A graduate of Elkin High in Elkin, NC., Jeff also found time to play on Art Monk's basketball team. He and his wife Mary are expecting their first child in September. The couple resides in Centreville, VA.

61 KEN HUFF
GUARD

North Carolina
11th NFL Year   Ht:6-4 Wt: 265
3rd Redskins   Born 02/21/53

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, August 25, 1983

Games Played In/Games Started: 128/89—1975 (9/0) [1/0]; 1976 (8/0) [1/1]; 1977 (14/9) [1/1]; 1978 (16/16); 1979 (14/14); 1980 (16/16); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/8); 1983 (11/1) [2/0]; 1984 (15/9) [1/1]

1984 Season: Ken symbolized the Redskins' season in 1984: he was the first player hurt in a game (dislocated kneecap in preseason opener), the last player hurt in a game (fractured ankle in playoffs), and played his heart out inbetween. After being inserted at right guard at various times in the first five games, Ken started against the Colts (Week 6), and then got the call in the final eight games as well. He again displayed his tremendous run-blocking abilities, moving opponents out. Ken also played some left guard in the game at St. Louis (with Bostic hurt) and in the game at Dallas (with Grimm out). Even before season, Redskins Assistant Head Coach Joe Bugel called Ken one of his six starters. One of the strongest players on team, Ken might have moved into starting lineup earlier if not for first injury. The fractured ankle occurred on fourth-and-one play against Bears at end of first quarter. John Riggins made first down, but fell right onto Ken. He spent offseason recovering and should be in fine shape for training camp. Only five Redskins have played more NFL games than Ken.

Pro Career: The third pick overall in 1975 draft (by Colts), Ken had longest tenure of any Colt (nine years) before becoming a free agent after the 1982 season. He has started 45 straight games until missing the starting assignment in the '82 season opener. Ken had been a starter at right guard for the Colts since replacing Elmer Collett in middle of 1977 season. Colts went on to win Division that season with 10-4 record. He started all 16 games in 1978, and then 14 of 16 in 1979 missing Tampa Bay and Cleveland games because of kidney injury. He again started all 16 games in 1980 and '81, plus serving on the kickoff team in '81 as one of the three blockers in the wedge. He started the final eight contests of '82. He signed with the Redskins just prior to the start of '83 season, and proved to be a valuable reserve. He started one contest (Atlanta), and earned praise from the coaches for his performance. He appeared in 11 games, often at crucial times, such as the last game when Jeff Bostic could only play the first quarter. He had a couple "KAYO" hit against Atlanta.

College, Personal: A three-year letterman and starter at guard for the Tar Heels, Ken was a consensus all-American there his senior year. A captain and all-ACC also that year, Ken played in two Sun Bowl games, and the 1975 Hula and Senior Bowls. He earned a degree at UNC in psychology. Born in Hutchinson, Kansas, he lived in Japan, France, and many areas of the U.S., his father being a career officer in the Navy. He attended Coronado (CA) High School and then Deerfield (MA) Academy before Carolina. An all-American Prep swimmer, he was offered more scholarships for swimming than football... He enjoys scuba diving, often vacationing in the Caribbean to do so. His wife, Sue, works for Shannon and Luchs real estate. Ken has a General Contracting Business for home improvements. The Huffs have one son, Matthew, 7, and reside in Oakton, VA.

66 JOE JACOBY

Ht: 6-7 Wt: 305
Born 07/06/59

Games Played In/Games Started: 55/54—1981 (14/13); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/16); 1984 (16/16)

Games Played Streak: 49 (all starts)

1984 Season: For Joe, who played in his second straight Pro Bowl in January, the 1984 season was one huge "block" party. He has combined technique with awesome strength—each year the battle is for second-strongest Redskin, according to Strength Coach Riley—to rank as one of the game's premier tackles. It would take a slew of accountants to audit Joe's plaudits for '84: starting Pro Bowler, First-team AP NFL All-Pro team, First-team UPI all-NFC Team, NFL Sporting News all-Pro team, Pro Football Writers NFL all-Pro team, John Madden's all-NFL team ("a great honor," said Joe), runner-up to Hogmate Russ Grimm as USA Today's NFC Lineman of the Year, and runner-up to John Hannah as the NFL Alumni's NFL Lineman of the year. Whew! He let few safeties catch their breath, let alone catch the running back, on the Redskins famous Counter Trey plays. (That's where Jacoby shows off his speed and pulls with Grimm to the right.) Of the Redskins' 142.1 rushing yards per game (4th in NFC), much of it followed those giant footsteps of "Big Jake." Which reminds us of Joe's crowning achievement of 1984: the first touchdown ever by a Washington Redskin offensive lineman. It happened in the game at Minnesota (Week 14). When Keith Griffin fumbled the ball just before stepping into the end zone, there was Joe to pounce on it. His subsequent earth-moving spike became known as the "JAKE QUAKE!" The TD gave the Redskins a 24-0 second quarter lead. With all the injuries on offensive line, Joe was immovable object, and should remain as such for years to come. He was one of just eight players to start every game for '84 Redskins; and his 49 straight starts are third-best on team (behind Theismann and Grimm).

THE SKIN-SIDE STORY—Said John Riggins on Jacoby: "It's very comfortable having Jake in front of you. It's like being on Rte. 66 and not being able to see what's coming. But oncoming cars can't see you either."

Pro Career: Joe's NFL career has been a real Cinderella story with one major difference: the clock is not anywhere near striking midnight. For after a humble beginning as a free agent signed after the 1981 draft—primarily because of his huge size—Joe has become the toast of pro ball. (He's even featured on an NFL poster celebrating the five best free agents.) All did not start swine and roses for this Hog, however. At first sighting, Coach Gibbs mistook him for a defensive lineman, and after learning his true position, nearly released him. Coming to camp with five draft picks and seven veterans as competition, Joe won a spot despite having to leave camp because of the death of his mother. He then filled in at left guard and right tackle over the first half of '81 before settling in at left tackle next to Grimm. And a star was born. A hard worker, he had built himself up to 300 from 270 when he reported to training camp, as a result of weightlifting. Joe's rise paralleled the team's in 1981 and '82, and then both were near unbeatable in '83. He reached his first Pro Bowl; UPI, AP, Pro Football Weekly, and the Sporting News all honored him with first-team selections, and he helped the club to a team-record, NFL—high 30 rushing TD's.

College, Personal: Joe co-captained Louisville his senior season, earning a second-team all-South selection in leading the Cardinals to an Independence Bowl berth. (He says he had no hand in Schnellenberger hiring there.) Joe received all-American high school honors in both football and basketball at Western High in Louisville...This past March 23rd, Joe left the bachelor ranks, marrying Irene Verhoeff. The couple resides in Oakton, VA. Joe also was the host for the 1st Annual Joe Jacoby Golf Classic for the benefit of the American Heart Association. He is an annual spectator at the Kentucky Derby, and is an avid golfer. Joe travelled to Okinawa, Japan during the off-season to visit some U.S. Marines over there. The messages on his answering machine are most creative on team.

82 ANTHONY JONES
TIGHT END

Wichita State
2nd Year

Ht: 6-3 Wt: 248
Born 05/16/60

How Acquired: Selected in 11th round of 1984 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 16/0—1984 (16/0)

1984 Season: Anthony emerged from a large group of tight ends to become one of just three rookies on the Redskins in '84. He then provided valuable reserve strength at the position, playing much of the game against Indianapolis as the Redskins switched to a three tight end offense. As the year progressed, however, "AJ" began excelling in another area: special teams. He had 10 hits in three straight games, against the Colts, Cowboys, and Cardinals. And then Anthony capped off the season by being named Special Teams Player of the Week in each of the final two games (Dallas and St. Louis). He had a season-high 13 hits against the Cardinals in that all-important finale, an incredible feat considering Anthony injured his neck in the first quarter. The injury was severe enough that AJ couldn't take part in the playoff game, though he played that entire Cards' game. AJ was a terror in the Week 15 showdown with the Cowboys, getting in on seven of the eight special teams tackles, and finishing with 11 hits. Overall, Anthony was third on the team in special teams hits with 122, trailing only standouts Otis Wonsley and Greg Williams. As a tight end, he caught one pass, a six-yarder against the Giants (Week 9) from quarterback Jim Hart. Anthony showed good hands in practice, and coaches are looking for him to develop into fine all-around tight end.

College, Personal: As a senior with the Shockers, Anthony had 27 catches for 292 yards and two TD's. His best performance came against Texas Arlington, as he had seven catches for 105 yards. He also had six receptions covering 68 yards (1 TD) in finale vs. Southern Illinois. He was selected First-team all-MVC by AP as a junior and senior. AJ had 18 catches for 316 yards as a junior, including five-catch, 125-yards outing against Illinois State. As soph, he caught 16 passes for 409 yards, and incredible 25.6 yard average. As a senior at Patterson High in Baltimore, AJ gained 124 yards on nine receptions, and lettered three times in track. An Engineering Major, he began collegiate career at Maryland-Eastern Shore, but transferred when that school dropped football. A bachelor, Anthony finds time for movies and basketball, playing in the offseason with some teammates on a touring team. He resides in Reston, VA.

1984 Season: There were several Bad News-Good News stories for the Redskins football team/M*A*S*H Unit last year. One such tale told about a veteran finally getting a chance to play his natural position, and responding with a Pulitzer-quality effort. Title it, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan." The bad news was that all-Pro free safety Mark Murphy injured his knee in the second game of the season; the good news was that Curtis Jordan was there to replace him. Curtis, who had played mostly strong safety and special teams in his brief Redskin career, filled in so well that the big-play Redskin defense didn't miss a beat. In his first start the next week (vs. the Giants), he returned a fumble 29 yards for a fourth-quarter touchdown to cement Washington's first 1984 win. He proceeded to start every remaining game (even when Murphy was healthy), call the complicated defensive signals, and finish second on the team in tackles with 144—a career high. The Redskins finished 11-3 with Jordan starting. He had a season-high game of 16 tackles against Atlanta, which earned him Defensive Player of the Week and tied him for the best tackle game by any Redskin (Rich Milot had 16 in Week 16). Curtis also had 15-tackle games against the Giants (Week 3) and Minnesota. He increased his career interception total to nine with two thefts: one against Detroit which he returned to the Lions 45 to set up a Wonsley TD and a 21-0 lead; and one against Buffalo, returning it to the Bills' 38 to set up a Riggins score and a 17-0 lead. In the Patriots game, Curtis had a hand in another turnover forcing a fumble which Tony Peters pounced on, leading to a Moseley field goal. He earned Defensive Player of the Week for that game, too. So for the four turnovers Curtis was involved in, the Redskins came away with 24 points. He accomplished all this despite suffering a broken thumb (for the second straight season) in the final minute of action in Washington's 20-0 whitewash of the Eagles in Week 5.

THE SKIN-SIDE STORY—"Curtis gave us a real steady performance at free safety last season," said Assistant Head Coach/Defense Richie Petitbon. "Give him credit for stepping in, and then playing right through the broken thumb. He's a tough player."

Pro Career: A sixth-round choice of Tampa Bay in 1976, Curtis played five seasons there before a series of events led to his arrival in Washington. In 1981, he suffered a broken collarbone in the Bucs' first preseason game, and was kept there until the final two weeks of the season. That's when Tampa Bay tried to activate him by passing him through waivers. Nothing doing, said the Redskins who claimed him. He was on the Redskin roster for the final two games, seeing action against the Rams. He earned a little revenge against his old team in 1982 when he blocked a punt and recovered for the game-winning touchdown in Tampa Bay. That earned him a game ball, and put the 'Skins at 2-0 in their Super Bowl championship year. Of the 58 games Curtis has started in the NFL, 23 have been at left cornerback, one at right corner, 19 at free safety, and 15 at strong safety. That's versatility! He had played in 50 straight games prior to that injury in '81, and in 71 of the Bucs' 76 regular season games. In 1980, Curtis started every game, breaking up 21 passes (most in club history) and making 85 tackles. A rock solid hitter, Curtis has had seasons of 85, 70, 105, and 144 tackles. He has had seven career fumble recoveries, including a game-saver in a 16-14 win over Detroit (11/11/79). In '83, Curtis found himself starting at strong safety for 11 games, finishing fifth on the team in tackles (105). He missed just one game despite the broken thumb, playing in emergency duty in the Week 15 win in Dallas, when Ken Coffey got hurt. (Murphy was already sidelined as well.) He had a forced fumble, two recovered fumbles, and interception against the Raiders, and an acrobatic tip of a Neal Lomax pass which Mel Kaufman intercepted and returned 70 yards for a TD. Of current Redskins, Curtis has been on the winning side for the most playoff games (7). He is also seventh on the team in games played (112).

College, Personal: At Texas Tech, Curtis earned all-Southwest Conference honors his final two seasons. He intercepted seven passes with four of those coming his senior year to lead the team. He graduated with a degree in advertising and public relations. Curtis starred as school MVP at Monterey High (Lubbock, TX)...His offseason time is now almost entirely devoted to the managing of a restaurant called "ROCCO'S," specilizing in Italian food, and Curtis specializes in making the special sauce that only a select few know how to make. He also enjoys skiing and basketball, and is an avid Bullets fan. Curtis resides in Oakton, VA., and has two sons, Matthew (6) and Zachary (4).

55 MEL KAUFMAN

Cal-Poly San Luis Obispo   Ht: 6-2 Wt: 218
5th Year   Born 02/24/58

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, May 5, 1981

Games Played In/Games Started: 51/44—1981 (11/6); 1982 (9/7) [4/4]; 1983 (16/16) [3/3]; 1984 (15/15) [1/1]

1984 Season: Ever so quietly, Mel was one of the defensive leaders for the Redskins in '84. He started all but one game (missed Minnesota with sore shoulder), and finished tied for fourth on team with 99 tackles. His best game occurred in Week 12 against Philadelphia (12 tackles), and Week 10 against Atlanta (two sacks, one forced fumble). His forced fumble against the Falcons was a key to the Redskins win, as Neal Olkewicz recovered the Mike Moroski fumble; soon after John Riggins scored a touchdown for a 20-14 third-quarter lead. His other forced fumble on the year came against the Eagles (Week 12). Charles Mann recovered, leading to a Didier touchdown and a 7-3 advantage. Mel's one fumble recovery of '84 came in Week 15 versus Dallas, leading to a Moseley field goal and a 23-21 Redskin margin. His 5 1/2 sacks tied Perry Brooks for 5th-best on team. Mel also contributed on special teams (on kickoff returns mostly). Coaches say he continues to improve each year.

Pro Career: The Mel Kaufman Story began when Bobby Beathard travelled to his alma mater (Cal-Poly) to check out a much-hearalded running back. Needing someone to cover the back Beathard asked an undersized linebacker on the sidelines to help him out. Well, the GM was more impressed with the linebacker (Mel) than the back, and signed him as a free agent. Mel beefed up that offseason, and proved to be one of the major surprises at 1981 training camp, winning a spot on the squad and being thrust into the starting lineup in Week 2 due to injuries to Brad Dusek and Rich Milot. In Week 3, he started at another spot to replace injured Monte Coleman. All told, he played in 11 games and started six before suffering a shoulder separation, which put him on injured reserve. His top game was against St. Louis in Week 9 when he intercepted two passes for 25 yards, made eight tackles, had a quarterback sack, and deflected a pass in the Redskins' 42-21 win. He also accumulated 37 points on the special teams, proving to be a good blocker for all-pro Mike Nelms on punt and kickoff returns. He was credited with 33 1/2 tackles for the season. In '82, Mel highlighted a fine season by picking off the biggest pass of his life, one from the hands of Gary Hogeboom of the Cowboys in the second half of the NFC Championship Game. The theft helped preserve Washington's spot in the Super Bowl. Stepping in again for the injured Coleman, Mel began starting in Week 3 and never relinquished his spot. He finished sixth on the team in tackles with 49, adding 17 in the postseason. Mel also had one recovered fumble and two key sacks during the regular season. A member of the Airborne Rangers, he had an excellent Super Bowl, making two solo tackles and assisting on three others.

In '83, Mel's nickname became Touchdown Mel as he led the Redskin defense with a pair of touchdowns. The first came on a 70-yard interception return against the Cardinals, as Mel was alert enough to see Curtis Jordan tip Neal Lomax's pass in the air, collect it in, and sprint for the end zone. The second one occurred when Dave Butz stripped Moroski of the ball, and Mel picked it up and ran 30 yards for the TD. But his season consisted of more than two plays. He finished fifth on the team in tackles with 105, and also contributed 1 1/2 sacks, one forced fumble, and two interceptions. His 70-yard interception return was longest of year for 'Skins.

College, Personal: A three-year starter at Cal-Poly, Mel helped his team to a Division II National Championship. Despite averaging 13 tackles a game at Santa Monica High, he was shunned by major colleges and opted for Cal-Poly, which wanted to switch him to safety. Tutored by ex-Charger linebacker Bob Lane, Mel developed into an excellent linebacker at Cal-Poly. He has devoted a day during the last four Christmas times to be at the No Greater Love Party, an annual event for children of fathers killed in service to their country. Mel hasn't missed one yet. He was married this past off-season (July 6) to Karen Matthews; whose father, Billy, is offensive coordinator/running backs coach of the Indianapolis Colts. He was also John Riggins' running backs coach at Kansas. The Kaufmans reside in Culver City.

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent Oct. 23, 1984

Games Played In/Games Started: 25/1—1982 (1/1); 1983(16/0); 1984(8/0)

Games Played Streak: 8

1984 Season: After being released by the Redskins last Aug. 27, Bruce was re-signed when Jeff Bostic was lost for the year with knee surgery. Like he did in 1983, Bruce proved to be a major addition to the Redskins special teams, contributing 28 hits, 26 of those coming on kickoff return blocks. His best game was six hits, in Week 16 against St. Louis. The veteran also had two "Big Hits" on kickoff returns against Atlanta. Because of his versatility, Bruce remained with the Redskins through the playoffs. He also saw limited action at his more-familiar guard position.

Pro Career: For a while, Bruce seemed to have "Jinxed" as his middle name. He was signed by the Giants in 1981 as a free agent after spending two seasons as a starter with the Toronto Argonauts of the CFL. He showed great promise in training camp, but then suffered torn knee ligaments in an '81 squad scrimmage, sidelining him until 1982. He came back stronger that year, and with some fine preseason efforts, won the starting right guard spot. Then, in the season opener against Atlanta, he broke his leg on the first play of the game and was out for the rest of the season! A strong conditioning program built Bruce back up in the '83 offseason, and he impressed Coach Bugel enough in a late-preseason tryout to earn a spot on the team. He immediately became part of the three-man wedge on kickoff returns and led the team in blocks with 55. His 107 total hits on "teams" tied him for 5th on the NFC Champions. He played in all 16 games, two playoffs, and Super Bowl XVIII.

College, Personal: At UMass, Bruce accumulated four varsity letters as a guard. A co-captain his senior year, he started since the middle of freshman season until graduation. He earned selection as AP College Division First Team all-American and New York Times all-East as a senior. A two-time ECAC all-Yankee conference First-Team choice, Bruce was a Kodak all-American as well in 1977. Born in Beverly, MA, Bruce played high school football at Triton Regional in Byfield, MA...He has spent offseasons working for Midlantic Bank of New Jersey, but with wife Diane, recently moved up to Rye, New Hampshire. One of the strongest members of team, Bruce can press over 500 pounds.

Games Played Streak: 20

1984 Season: If the Redskins played a 3-4 defense like most of the teams in the NFL, Larry would be a starting inside linebacker. But since the Redskins are a 4-3 team, Larry's situation is that of a role player, and superb one at that. Redskins Defensive Chief Richie Petitbon installed a 3-4 defense a couple years back for certain situations, and mainly to get Larry into the game. "Kubs" also saw time last year when outside LB's Rich Milot and Mel Kaufman missed time. He saw enough time to record 29 tackles on defense, with six against the Colts and five against the Vikings. Larry's other major role with the team is on special teams. He excelled there once again last year, finishing 7th on the team with 65 hits, leading the team with 52 blocks on just 60 kickoff returns. He has "best games" of eight total hits against San Francisco and Dallas (Week 15). For one kickoff return against Dallas in which he made two blocks, Larry was noted by Coach Wayne Sevier for an "extra effort." He is well-liked by teammates, and a tremendously hard worker.

Pro Career: A sixth-round choice in that now-famous Redskin '81 draft, Larry spent the entire season on injured reserve, rehabilitating his knee from surgery in 1980. The year also gave him a chance to learn the Redskins system. In '82, he surfaced in fine shape to help the Redskins defense and special teams rank near the top of the League. He recorded 14 tackles, was in on a quarterback sack, and recovered a fumble in '82. His 66 special teams hits were fourth on the club. In '83, Larry made the highlight film when he helped stop Ron Springs on a key fourth-down play in the Week 15 showdown with Dallas. It was one of the biggest plays of the Redskins season. He again excelled on special teams, recording 69 hits, many coming on kickoff returns. A nagging ankle injury forced Larry to miss four games.

College, Personal: If ever you are asked what school a certain linebacker hails from, guess Penn State and your chances of being right are probably around 50-50. Yes, Larry is another in that long succession. He set a school mark for career quarterback sacks (50 for minus 310 yards), while registering 128 tackles. Larry played defensive end and linebacker during his career that was shortened when he tore knee ligaments in practice after three games into his senior season. He was eligible to remain for another year, but opted to turn pro instead. He was a 1980 preseason all-American pick after being an Honorable Mention all-American in 1979. He was a baseball pitcher for the Nittany Lions, and had been all-State in baseball at Union (NJ) High, as well as an all-State fullback in football. A Marketing Major at Penn State, Larry has previously worked for Annheuser-Busch in Washington. He and his wife, Mary, welcomed their first child in June, Jared Lawrence. The Kubins reside in Reston, VA. along with their very huge but friendly dog, Simba.

Ht: 6-2 Wt: 196
Born 12/05/59

How Acquired: Selected in sixth round of 1983 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 0/0—1983 (0/0), 1984 (0-injured reserve)

1984 Season: Babe was involved in the battle for the number two quarterback spot behind Theismann when he strained his throwing shoulder in preseason. The injury, while not serious, was painful enough to keep Babe sidelined for the season; doctors advised rest as the best cure. He did get to play in one preseason game, against New England, almost rallying the Redskins to victory. He completed 10 of 17 passes for 154 yards, a 36-yard touchdown, and one interception. He also ran once for a seven-yard gain, and showed tremendous poise in the two-minute offense. Babe drove the team to the Patriot 28 before being stopped with :20 to go.

Pro Career: A sixth-round draft choice in '83, Babe had a fine camp and made the 49-man roster. He had a stint in the preseason against Miami, completing 9 of 17 passes for 86 yards and a long of 29.

College, Personal: Babe set an Indiana record for passing yards (2,468) in 1982, completing 60 percent of his passes for 11 touchdowns. An East-West Shrine Game and Japan Bowl performer, Babe ranked 14th in Division 1A in total offense. He emerged as a fine quarterback in two years as a Hoosier after stints at Stanford, Missouri, and Pierce Junior College (Los Angeles). The '82 Indiana MVP, Babe redshirted in 1978 behind QB Steve Dils (Vikings), and then lost his spot to John Elway (Broncos) the next season. He set Hoosier records for most passes completed season (217), game (34), and career (361), and enjoyed two 300-yard passing games in '82—vs. Ohio State (362) and Michigan State (309). As a junior, Babe passed for eight touchdowns, having streaks of 11 straight completions in the first game (Northwestern), and 12 straight in the last game (Purdue). At Pierce, he threw for over 1,600 yards in seven games before hurting an ankle (1980). An all-Conference athlete at Crespi High (CA), Babe completed 110 of 201 passes as a senior there. He was dubbed Babe as a youngster by older brother Jeff: his real name is Brandon Hugh Laufenberg. A business major, Babe resides in Canoga Park, CA., in the offseason.

79 TODD LIEBENSTEIN
DEFENSIVE END

Nevada-Las Vegas
3rd NFL Year

Ht: 6-6 Wt: 255
Born 01/09/60

How Acquired: Selected in fourth round (99th overall) of 1982 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 25/16 — 1982 (9/0) [4/0]; 1983 (15/15) [3/3]; 1984 (1/1)

1984 Season: Todd's season was cut quite short last year by a rare bacterial infection that triggered inflammatory arthritis in his knee and ankle and also caused him to lose 20 pounds. He started against Miami in Week 1, making four tackles; but then was placed on injured reserve Sept. 10, remaining there all season, though returning to practices.

Pro Career: Todd came along to the Redskins during a very good time, at the start of '82, the team's Super Bowl-winning year. The 99th player chosen in '82, he had five tackles and one sack that year, and another in the playoffs. He backed up Dexter Manley most of the year, and then played most of the season finale against the Cardinals when Manley was ejected. He was also a special teams player, finishing with 35 total hits including 20 blocks on kickoff returns. In '83, he earned a starting berth with a solid training camp. He started 15 games, missing only the Rams game (Nov. 20) with a sprained knee. He played mostly on running situations, compiling 50 tackles and making 1 ½ sacks. He recovered two fumbles (St. Louis and San Diego), and then started all three playoff games, making eight tackles.

College, Personal: Todd was regarded as a legitimate Lombardi Trophy candidate entering his senior year, but suffered a knee injury in the fourth game and missed the rest of the season. Despite the injury, Todd was still named Honorable Mention all-West by the UPI. An excellent pass-rusher, he was nicknamed "Sackenstein" by UNLV teammates. He led all Rebel linemen with 45 tackles and 10 sacks in 1980. He had 23 tackles and four sacks in just 3 games in '81. A football and basketball star at Valley High in Las Vegas, Todd gained all-American status in both sports his junior and senior years. He originally considered basketball scholarship offers from such schools as Texas and Ohio State, but decided to remain close to home and family at UNLV. A Business Adminsration Major, he completed his degree requirements just this past spring at George Mason University in Fairfax, VA. Over the last couple years, Todd has spent some time helping Children's Hospital, visiting some patients there. A bachelor, he resides in Reston, VA.

DEFENSIVE END

Ht: 6-3 Wt: 250
Born 02/02/59

How Acquired: Selected in fifth round of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 56/48 — 1981 (16/9); 1982 (9/9) [4/4]; 1983 (16/16) [3/3]; 1984 (15/14) [1/1]

1984 Season: Dexter was the Redskins' resident doctor of "Sacks Therapy" in 1984, applying his knockdown advice 13 ½ times, tops on the team and 4th in the NFC. It was a personal high in the sack department for Dexter, who has now finished either 1st or 2nd on the team in each of his four NFL seasons Dexter also finished with a flair last season, getting two sacks in the Week 15 Showdown in Dallas. But then Dexter does everything with a flair. He of the former Mohawk and "Mr. D" image earned Defensive Player of the Game honors twice in '84: with a two-sack, one forced fumble, and three QB hurry performance against the Eagles (Week 5); and a five-tackle, three-sack outing against the Lions. That three-sack performance was a regular season high for the '84 Redskins. Tied for second on the team with two forced fumbles, Dexter also recovered a fumble. His second-half sack and recovered fumble sparked a rally against the 49ers; and he also forced a fumble against Atlanta. Dexter's 12 quarterback hurries placed fourth on the team. Playing in all but one game, Dexter compiled 51 tackles. He injured an ankle in the Colts' game and sat out the first Cowboys contest. It was the first game he had missed in pro career, after playing in 47 straight (40 starts). Dexter's season-high tackle game was seven against Falcons, and he enjoyed another two-sack game against Giants (Week 9). When healthy, Dexter was one of few defensive players to remain in game every down. And he, of course, was leader of Redskins' Sack Attack which netted team-high 66, 2nd in NFL, 3rd in NFL history. All-pro status is definitely knocking at Dexter's door.

Pro Career: Dexter has shown a keen sense of timing in his Redskin career, making the big play at the right time. His capabilities were apparent immediately, as the pass rush and special teams took a quick upswing when he arrived in '81. A pass rush specialist, he worked his way into the starting lineup and finished with six quarterback sacks from the right end position. Utilizing his 4.6 speed, Dexter lined up as the outside man on the punt coverage unit and earned 23 special teams points. Despite double-teaming, he was the first man downfield on 24 punts. He ended the season eighth on the team with 63 total tackles and one forced fumble. In 1982, Dexter established his reputation for making the big play. He had a playoff series to remember, first knocking out Dallas quarterback Danny White in the NFC Championship on a great rush; then deflecting a Gary Hogeboom pass in the fourth quarter which fell safely in the arms of Darryl Grant, who scored the clinching touchdown; and then knocking the football away from Miami quarterback David Woodley in Super Bowl XVII for Dave Butz to recover, and the Redskins to recover from an early deficit. He had forecasted himself as MVP of that Super Bowl, and if it not for John Riggins' heroics, might have been a true prophet. Miami was threatening to make the game 14-0, but Dexter's forced fumble led to a Moseley field goal and a small 7-3 Dolphin lead. He led the Redskins in '82 with 6 ½ regular season sacks and three more in the playoffs. He recorded 48 tackles and forced one fumble, before adding 14 more tackles, one forced fumble, and one fumble recovery in the playoffs. He had an interception against the Giants as well that season. Sporting a Mohawk and "Mr. D" label in '83, Dexter was hard to miss, especially with his 11 sacks, 2nd-best on team. His 55 tackles were third among defensive linemen. He excelled against the Lions, getting 2½ sacks, and intercepted a pass against the Giants. Dexter also rose to the occasion in the playoffs once again with a sack against the Rams, and several pressures versus the 49ers. His first half of the season was as good as any defensive end in football. Dexter now has 37 career sacks in just 56 games.

College, Personal: Dexter paced Oklahoma State in tackles for losses for three consecutive seasons with 39 for minus 231 yards. He had 198 total tackles, caused 10 fumbles, and batted down five passes in four seasons. He had a top college game of 17 tackles against Kansas. Dexter was an all-American schoolboy at Yates High in Houston . . . Previously, he has served as a Fairfax County Deputy Sheriff, and has had his own radio shows on WRQX (Q-107) and WOL. Last offseason, Dexter attended George Mason University; he is a Marketing major. He also owns his own company called Mr. D Enterprises, and is an Honorary Member of Comptex Association as an employment counselor in Washington DC. A first-cousin of Rams' running back Eric Dickerson, Dexter also filmed a commercial in March for The Washington Post. Previously, he had done a spot for a Dallas newspaper. Dexter also owns a Professional Automobile Detailing company, "Auto Brite," based in Marlow Heights, MD. He has contributed time and money to Easter Seals and to the Epilepsy Foundation. Dexter and his wife, Glinda Joy, recently welcomed a new addition to the family, Dexter Keith II (born Feb. 4, 1985). Dexter has another son, Derrick Keith, 8, who lives in Texas. The Manleys reside in Reston, VA.

71 CHARLES MANN
DEFENSIVE END

Nevada-Reno
3rd Year

Ht: 6-6 Wt: 270
Born 04/12/61

How Acquired: Selected in third round of 1983 draft (84th player)

Games Played In/Games Started: 32/16 — 1983 (16/1) [3/0]; 1984 (16/15) [1/1]

Games Played Streak: 32 (15 starts)

1984 Season: When Todd Liebenstein contracted an infection after the first game, Charles became the Mann of the hour for the Redskins. And that hour turned into a Mann for all season with Charles' outstanding play each week. To be specific, Charles led the defensive line in tackles with 85, tied Darryl Grant with 7½ sacks (3rd on team), led the team with three forced fumbles, and also led the team with 15 quarterback hurries. Not bad for starters, especially starters who are just in their second pro season. Charles enjoyed his best game in Week 5 against the Eagles when he paced the team with 11 tackles. He also had 10 against Giants in Week 9 contest. In the first Giants game, Charles forced two fumbles, helping the Redskins to first win of year. He recovered only fumble of season in Philadelphia, leading to Didier TD and 7-3 Redskin lead. His best sack day came against Atlanta as he had two. His forced fumble in Minnesota stopped Vikings drive on Redskins 3 (with score 31-17) as ball bounced out of end zone. Charles also contributed on special teams, covering some punts and kickoffs with his good speed. He forced Danny White to shank a short punt in big Week 15 Dallas win. Charles was helped by added bulk he put on in last offseason, thanks to hard work and Dan Riley's conditioning program. Only the brightest of futures lies ahead.

Pro Career: The 84th player chosen in 1983 draft, Charles began season as special teams extraordinaire, but played more and more at defensive end as year wore on. Highlight for him came in lone start against Rams (11/20) when he sacked quarterback Vince Ferragamo in the end zone for a safety, Washington's only one of season and first since 1976. He had three sacks in all (4th-best on team) and finished with 18 tackles and forced fumble. In the playoffs, Charles added four tackles and a sack. His 116 special teams hits were fourth-best on team, and 14 tackles on punt coverage third-best. Charles forced Ron Springs to go wide on famous fourth-down play in Texas Stadium. He saw much time against run, especially on short yardage.

College, Personal: Voted Most Valuable defensive lineman in the Big Sky in 1981 and '82, Charles had 14 sacks his senior year to lead the conference. A Division 1-AA all-American, he finished third on his Wolfpack team with 76 tackles, in addition to his 83 yards of QB sacks. Third in line of Nevada-Reno defensive linemen (behind Doug Betters and Don Smerek). He made 59 tackles as soph and 55 as junior plus two sacks. Playing tight end on offense and tackle on defense at Valley High School in Sacramento, Charles received Honorable Mention all-State. His brother, Michael, played basketball at Stanford. He possesses good speed for lineman, and excellent athletic ability (31'8" triple broad jump). A business major, Charles has resumed his education at George Mason University in Fairfax, VA. He has spent time working with Special Olympics and visiting Children's Hospital, as he enjoys doing all he can for children. Charles and his wife, Tyrena, reside in Reston, VA.

How Acquired: Selected in first round (20th overall) of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 56/48 — 1981 (16/8); 1982 (9/9) [4/1]; 1983 (15/15) [3/3]; 1984 (16/16) [1/1]

1984 Season: "MayDay" was the star performer of Redskins' Musical Chairs last year, playing four different positions on the offensive line. It seemed that whenever the action stopped, Mark would find himself at another position. Which makes his feat of giving up the fewest sacks of any offensive lineman (3) sound even more incredible. Breaking it down, he allowed just one sack for every 5⅓ regular season games! Mark started the first eight games at right guard but then switched to his more natural right tackle position when George Starke's knees started ailing. He also saw time at left guard and left tackle in showdown in Dallas (Week 15). Several of Redskins' 20 rushing touchdowns (4th in NFC) went right over big Mark. He has now missed just one start in the last three regular seasons. Coach Bugel calls Mark a "solid force" on the line: "The guy has just improved tremendously since he first came here. Mark is such a hard worker though, that it's to be expected. Jacoby and Grimm may get the headlines but Mark had a super season in '84, too." An original Hog, MayDay is always one of the hardest offseason workers on the team. Mark, Joe Jacoby, and Russ Grimm all joined the Redskins in '81 — a year the scouting department should list at the top of their resume.

Pro Career: The 20th player selected in the 1981 draft, Mark was only the Redskins' second first-round draft choice since 1968. He was immediately thrust into a starting position when Terry Hermeling retired at the start of training camp in 1981. Mark had to learn to play left tackle after playing right tackle throughout college. Despite suffering a broken nose and hip pointer. Mark played in all 16 games, starting eight. With the development of Jacoby, Mark then had to learn the right guard position in '82, and did a splendid job. He fought off opposition and injury to become an integral member of one of the NFL's best offensive lines. He was a key blocker in John Riggins' 140-yard effort against Dallas in the NFC Championship Game. In 1983, Mark became firmly entrenched in the right guard position, starting 15 games there. He used his tremendous size to help the Hogs open holes for the NFC's second-best rushing attack (164.1 yards per game). He made a key fumble recovery in second quarter of Detroit game, diving on Theismann's mishandle on the Lions' 8, to set up a Joe Washington TD the next play. Despite suffering a sprained knee in Eagles game in RFK, he missed just one game (Atlanta), returning to help the Redskins to 336 yards of total offense against Dallas the next week.

College, Personal: Winner of the 1980 Outland Trophy awarded to the Nation's top interior lineman, Mark was a first-team all-American choice by AP, UPI, Sporting News, Football Coaches, Football Writers, and College and Pro Newsweekly. He helped the Panthers to a 38-8-1 record with four postseason bowl appearances and three top ten rankings. As Pitt's lineman of the week 16 times, he did not allow a quarterback sack over his final two seasons . . . A History Major at Pitt, Mark is one of the most popular and articulate Redskins on the speaking circuits, and never one to turn down a worthy charity. He presented the Golden Panthers (Pitt's Booster Club) with a $10,000 check three years ago in gratitude for the opportunity the school gave him. Raised in Oneonta, New York (upstate), Mark has three older sisters and one older brother. He has written his own cookbook, naturally titled, "Mark May's Hog Cookbook." He is also President and Owner of Mayfare Catering, a subsidiary of the Mark May Company. An avid traveller, Mark embarked on an NFL USO trip for the second straight offseason, this time visiting South Korea. Last year, he travelled to Germany to visit troops there. It is considered an honor to be invited on the trip. For his charity work, Mark was voted the Juvenile Diabetes Sportsman of the Year for 1984, and was a recent recipient of the Ed Block Memorial Trophy. This year he is the Honorary Chairman of the Washington Chapter of Juvenile Diabetes. Mark is also very much involved with the White House's Team Up Against Drugs Campaign, and the Gateway Program, a drug rehabilitation program for teens. As a Hog, he has attended the National Pork Convention in Kansas City, and appeared in a McDonalds commercial (tap-dancing his way to Hog Heaven). Mark resides on his Clifton, VA. horse estate with his fiance Annie, horse Shilo, Great Dane Mouse, Mutt Sheba, bird, cat, and approximately 50 fish. His hobbies include fishing, horse riding, training, and breeding. Mark has also worked as a Sports Assistant at WJLA-TV in Washington (Channel 7).

83 MARK McGRATH
RECEIVER

Montana State
4th NFL Year   Ht: 5-11   Wt: 175
3rd Redskins   Born 12/17/57

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, Sept. 18, 1984

Games Played In/Games Started: 21/2 — 1980 (0-injured reserve); 1981 (6/0); 1982 DNP; 1983 (2/0) [1/0]; 1984 (13/2) [1/0]

Games Played Streak: 13

1984 Season: Like the cavalry, Mark came to the rescue last season after injuries to Charlie Brown and Alvin Garrett. After being waived on Aug. 22, Mark was re-signed on Week 4 of the season, and proceeded to make large contributions to the team. He got his first pro start in Week 6 against the Colts, and responded with an outstanding game: seven receptions for 82 years and one touchdown. That touchdown, on a fade pattern, was the first of his career. The performance won Mark the confidence of Coach Gibbs, and he saw much action in the receiver slot over the remainder of the season. He got a second start the following week against the Cowboys. In Week 9, Mark had an 18-yard catch against the Giants; and in Week 14 he had two catches for 18 yards against Minnesota. His long reception of the year came against the Colts (24 yards). Mark also proved to be a stellar contributor on special teams, particularly kickoff coverage. Against Minnesota he had a game-high of five hits, and was named special teams player of the week. He also had three blocks on the four kickoff returns he was on during the year, and two tackles on kickoff coverage.

Pro Career: A real fighter throughout his career, Mark finally saw hard work pay off for him last year. Twice he came into camps as an unknown free agent, and twice he made the team. The first time came in 1981. In 1980, the Seattle Seahawks signed him following the draft but he spent that season on injured reserve following a knee injury in camp. But he made the team the next season, playing in six games and catching four passes for 47 yards, before a broken hand suffered against the Oilers sidelined him for the year. Mark was waived by the Seahawks in 1982, before the Redskins signed him in April of '83. He then surfaced from a long list of receivers in training camp to make the Redskins' opening day roster. He responded by making an important catch in the opener on Monday Night against Dallas, a six-yard grab for a first down which kept a late-game drive going. Unfortunately, Mark took a hard hit on the catch and separated his shoulder, being placed on injured reserve the following week. He stayed there until finally being activated Dec. 16, prior to the season with the Giants. The Redskins used their last regular season move for Mark, as he was then on the roster for all three playoff games.

College, Personal: A two-time all-Big Sky performer at Montana State, Mark was a first-team College Division all-America choice as a senior, catching 19 passes for 315 yards and two TD's. He also returned 12 kickoffs for a 22.8 yard average, and 37 punts for a 10.0 average. He finished his career there with 55 catches for 914 yards and nine touchdowns. A runner on the school's 440-yard relay team as a freshman, Mark played on an NCAA Division II National Championship team at Montana State. A Criminal Justice graduate, Mark originally hails from Seattle, attending Shorecrest High, where one of his teammates was Raider QB Mark Wilson. He enjoys golf and tennis in the offseason, having once won a sports celebrity tennis tournament. Mark spent several hours visiting patients at area hospitals last year, and also appeared at many charitable events in Washington. A bachelor, he resides in Seattle in the offseason.

57 RICH MILOT
LINEBACKER

Penn State   Ht: 6-4 Wt: 237
7th Year   Born 05/28/57

How Acquired: Selected in seventh round of 1979 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 80/55 — 1979 (14/7); 1980 (16/5); 1981 (11/6); 1982 (9/9) [4/4]; 1983 (16/16) [3/3]; 1984 (14/12) [1/1]

1984 Season: To say Rich merely "got up" for the big games in 1984 is an understatement. Try "rocketed skyward." If the stakes were high, so became Rich's level of performance. Not that it wasn't high all along; it was. But like a Reggie or a Riggo, he rose during crunch time. Looking back — from end to beginning — let's start with the playoff game against Chicago. Rich played perhaps the finest game of his career, sacking quarterback Steve Fuller 3½ times, and recovering a fumble as well. In the regular season finale, with the Division title on the line, Rich made 16 tackles of Cardinals (12 solos) to help the Redskins to victory. That performance equalled the team high for tackles on the season. Then, heading back to Week 7, an early-season clash with Dallas, Rich came off a two-game layoff (elbow injury) to intercept two passes for 15 yards. It was the third time in his career that he had picked off two passes in one contest. On the season, Rich finished with a career-high 112 tackles (3rd on team), and three interceptions (the 2nd-best total of his career). He also recorded four sacks on the regular season, with two coming against Buffalo. His third interception came against the Vikings, as he returned it a career-high 27 yards to set up a Theismann to Didier TD and a 17-0 lead. One of the few Redskin defenders to play on every down, Rich made a game-high 13 tackles against the Giants in Week 3. His first interception against Dallas led to another Didier touchdown (the two are neighbors) and a 34-7 lead. He also plays special teams, blocking for extra points and field goals. Rich again received votes from his peers for a Pro Bowl selection; he might have gotten a trip to Hawaii if not for the injury, incurred against the Patriots. The two games missed were his first since 1981. Now in his seventh year, Rich is regarded as one of the finest all-around linebackers in football.

Pro Career: A seventh-round draft choice in 1979, Rich has patrolled each of the three linebacking spots during his six-year stint in Washington. As a rookie, he inherited Chris Hanburger's right-side spot and became the first Redskin rookie to start an opener since 1970 when Bill Brundige did so. After six games of his rookie year, Rich fractured his wrist and played the remainder of the season with it in a cast. He forced a fumble in the opening drive of the St. Louis game that resulted in a Redskin touchdown. The year 1980 saw him open the season at middle linebacker in place of injured Neal Olkewicz. Rich had 82 tackles, five quarterback sacks, and recovered a fumble that season. He also had four pass interceptions, including two against New Orleans to earn a game ball. In 1981, Rich started at right side linebacker, but sprained his shoulder and missed Week 2. He returned the next week, but was switched to the left side to replace injured Monte Coleman. He moved back to his right side spot in Week 6, but sprained his right knee the next week and was placed on IR. He was reactivated in Week 12 and used primarily in pass defense situations. For the season, Rich played in 11 games, started six, made 35 total tackles and recovered a fumble. He blossomed into a standout in '82, starting all nine games on the right side, and finishing third on the team in total tackles (73). He led the 'Skins with four forced fumbles, and also recorded three quarterback sacks. In the four playoff games, he registered 17 tackles and one fumble recovery. In 1983, Rich finally was awarded the recognition he deserved, being chosen by UPI to their second-team all-NFC. Considering Lawrence Taylor and Hugh Green were ahead of him, that's a prestigious selection. He finished third on team with 111 tackles, adding 1½ sacks. His finest hour came against the Rams in Anaheim, where he intercepted two passes and was named Player of the Game. Another in the long line of Penn State linebackers, Rich enjoyed two games of 11 tackles each. In the playoffs he added 16 tackles, one sack, and one recovered fumble (against the 49ers in NFC Championship Game).

College, Personal: Rich did not miss playing any positions at Penn State under Joe Paterno, seeing time at linebacker, strong safety, tailback, fullback, defensive end, and defensive back in his four years. As a senior, he had three pass interceptions. Previously, he had rushed for 191 yards and caught seven passes for the Nittany Lions. Rich owns a degree in marketing from Penn State. He spent much of the offseason working as a lobbyist in Washington for Sandoz Pharmaceuticals. He resides in Herndon, VA, and stays active in local charities.

81 ART MONK
WIDE RECEIVER

Ht: 6-3 Wt: 209
Born 12/05/57

How Acquired: Selected in first round (18th overall) of 1980 draft

1984 Season: George Orwell's 1984 may be a classic, but Art Monk's 1984 has to reign supreme. For while George Orwell wrote, Art rewrote; using the NFL record book as his text. When the 16th and final chapter ended, and the dust over RFK cleared, Art's favorite number was 106, the number of catches he made in 1984. That total shattered the 20-year old record of 101, established by Charley Hennigan of the Oilers. Only such a startling output could elicit this praise of a Mr. Gibbs: "Art's year was the most valuable contribution I've ever seen by a wide receiver to his team." All of RFK stood and hailed, not their Redskins but simply one Redskin, as Art hauled in number 102 in the last game, against St. Louis. A new collection of fans even formed to honor this receiver: THE "ART" GALLERY. His artistry was awarded by critics far and wide: all-Pro selections by AP, UPI, Pro Football Weekly, Pro Football Writers Association, and the Sporting News. The Pro Bowl welcomed Art for the first time, and the Washington Touchdown Club and Quarterback Club voted him their Player of the Year. Of course, the 106 catches led the NFL, but Art's 1,372 yards was also good enough to be fourth in the NFL, second in the NFC. That total was the 3rd-best in club history, trailing two of Hall of Famer Bobby Mitchell's seasons. Art was named Offensive Player of the Game twice: eight catches and 78 yards against the Giants (week 3); and 11 catches for 136 yards and two TD's against St. Louis (Week 16). In that Division-deciding contest, Art made the biggest catch of the Redskins season. With time running down, the Redskins down 27-26, and down to their next-to-last down, Art rose up once again. On the third-and-19 play, Art found a small opening between three defenders right at the first-down marker, and caught Theismann's perfect pass. The first down set up Mark Moseley's winning field goal soon after. Art caught 11 passes one other time, against Buffalo, gaining 104 yards and a touchdown. His best touchdown day (3) was witnessed first-hand by the Colts. (Art had seven TD's on the season, 2nd-best on the team.) Voted the Redskins' 1984 MVP (a landslide victory), Art enjoyed his best yardage day in San Francisco, catching 10 passes for 200 yards in a Week 2 loss to the eventual Super Bowl champs' top defense. It was only the fourth 200-yard receiving day in Redskin annals, and the second-highest single game in the NFL last year. By the way, his two 11-catch days were just one short of the Redskin record for one game. And his 18 points against the Colts tied him with six others (including Otis Wonsley) for most points in one game in the NFC last year. Also, Art's 1,390 total yards led the team. "He was always there to count on," said Joe Theismann. Amidst a season of casualties, Art didn't miss a play. Summing some more up, he had six games of eight or more catches, five 100-yard games, two games of two or more TD's (he now has five in career, three vs. Cardinals), and two carries for 18 yards. Dallas will long remember his second carry. That came on the Redskins' drive to the winning touchdown in the Week 15 showdown. Seemingly cornered in the backfield, Art somehow, stiff-armedly escaped for an 18-yard gain. Two plays later, his corner pattern reception brought the ball to the one. From there, John Riggins needed no help. Receivers' Coach Charley Taylor often preferred to compliment Art on his blocking. Coach Gibbs often pointed out the unique make-up of someone who could outrun a cornerback on a bomb one play, and then set up at tight end the next, and block a linebacker. In fact, on that clutch catch against Cardinals, Art was lined up as tight end. Though Washington bowed in the playoffs, Art shined once again, catching 10 more passes for 122 yards, a club playoff record. This "1984" certainly deserved a Pulitzer!

Pro Career Totals: Art now has caught 302 passes in his five-year Redskin career, fourth place on the all-time list, behind Taylor, Jerry Smith, and Mitchell. His 4.38 average catches per game though, ranks higher than each of those. Art's 4,256 receiving yards stands fifth on the all-time Redskin list. He now has 14 100-yard games in his career, has led the club in catches in three of his five seasons ('80,'82, and '84), and has led the club in receiving yards in three seasons as well ('80, '81, and '84).

Pro Career: As the Redskins' first-round pick in 1980 (their first since 1968), Art has proven to be very worthy of that distinction. A unanimous all-Rookie selection in 1980, he broke a club rookie receiving record set back in 1964 by football's all-time leading receiver, Charley Taylor. He led the Redskins in receptions that season with 58, as he did in 1982 with 35. His 58 catches (for 797 yards) were 10th in the NFC, as he enjoyed six games with five or more catches. His first NFL game (vs. Dallas on Monday Night) resulted in five catches for 55 yards, while his first NFL start was six catches for 85 yards vs. St. Louis. In 1981, Art's 894 yards receiving were the most by a Redskin since 1967, as he finished with 56 catches and six TD's. Starting all 16 games, Art had seven games with four or more catches, and two 100-yard receiving games. He also had a streak of 23 games where he caught at least one pass, that ended in '82. He has had nine catches in his Redskin career over 40 yards, and his best yardage total was 148 vs. Baltimore in '81. Art's 35 catches in 1982 were good for 447 yards, 12th in the NFC. He also ran seven times in '82 for 21 yards with a long gain of 14. Art has now caught at least one pass in 50 of his 53 pro games. He had his best all-around day as a pro in the 1982 season opener in Philadelphia, catching eight for 134 yards. His injury occurred in the regular season finale with St. Louis, as he attempted to make a diving catch. The ball floated just off his fingertips. Art missed the playoffs with that injury, the first action he had missed since high school. Unfortunately, 1983 picked up where 1982 left off as Art sustained a twisted knee in the first preseason game, and missed the first four regular season games. But once back, Art seemed intent on regaining his all-Pro form. He started the last 11 games, wound up with 47 catches (tied for second on team), 746 yards (2nd best on team), and five touchdowns. In the playoff game against the Rams, he caught two touchdowns among his four catches for 60 yards. His two biggest regular season days were seven catches for 106 yards versus San Diego, and 119 yards on six receptions in Dallas. He also completed a pass, tossing a 46-yard aerial to mate Charlie Brown off a reverse play in the regular season Rams game. Nicknamed "Money" for his clutch catches, Art has missed just four regular season games in his five NFL years.

College, Personal: At Syracuse, Art set receiving records with 102 catches for 1,644 yards, while rushing for 1,140 yards (4.5 average) and returning kicks for 1,105 yards for 3,889 total yards. His top receiving game was 14 catches for 188 yards and his top rushing game was 134 yards. He never missed a practice or game because of injury in his four years as an Orangeman. Art was a national interscholastic champion in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in 1976. He spent much of his offseason as manager for a basketball team of Redskins, arranging a 40-game schedule with road trips to Pennsylvania, Hampton, VA, San Francisco, North Carolina, and Dallas, TX, to play a team of Cowboys. After playing in 1984, Art mostly just coached this time. He is also Director of Outside Sales for Record Den, Inc., and from time to time, has done broadcasts for WRC-TV, most noticeably during the week leading up to Super Bowl XVII. Art and his wife, Desiree, have two children: James Arthur, Jr., 2½, and Danielle, 1. The Monks reside in Arlington, VA.

30 JEFF MOORE
RUNNING BACK

Jackson State
6th NFL Year
2nd Redskins

Ht: 6-0 Wt: 196
Born 08/20/56

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, October 16, 1984

Games Played In/Games Started: 63/7 — 1979 (16/1); 1980 (14/2); 1981 (2/0); 1982 (9/4); 1983 (15/0) [2,0]; 1984 (7/0)

1984 Season: The Redskins' sixth-leading receiver in '84 (17 catches), Jeff proved to be a clutch performer for the team. He was signed to provide a pass-receiving threat out of the backfield (with Joe Washington injured), and that's exactly what he did. In just his second game with the team, Jeff had an outstanding afternoon against the Giants (Week 9). In fact, his nine catches that day was the fourth-best reception-total of the season for Washington — Art Monk caught 11 twice and 10 once. He also scored his first Redskin touchdown that day. His second touchdown came on a seven-yard scoring pass to open the scoring against Detroit.

Pro Career: A 12th round 1979 pick of the Seahawks (319 overall), Jeff played in 32 games for Seattle before being let go. He caught 42 passes in that span, rushed 104 times, and returned 32 kickoffs. The next season ('82) he was signed by the 49ers and emerged as a starter, scoring three touchdowns in 30-24 win over Rams. He led the Niners in rushing that year with 281 yards, and his 37 receptions were first among backs and second on team.

College, Personal: Jeff was the MVP of the Southwestern Athletic Conference as a senior at Jackson State, and was named all-SWAC, Mutual Black Network all-America and national Offensive Player of the Year. He rushed for 1,205 yards on 169 carries (7.3 average) and 10 TD's as a senior. . . Born in Kosciusko, MS. (home of former Redskin Clarence Harmon), Jeff and his wife, Lisa, now make their home in Jackson, MS.

3 MARK MOSELEY
KICKER

Stephen F. Austin
14th NFL Year
12th Redskin

Ht: 6-0 Wt: 208
Born 03/12/48

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, Feb. 1, 1974
Games Played In/Games Started: 187/0—1970 (14/0); 1971 (12/0); 1972 (1/0); 1974 (13/0); 1975 (14/0); 1976 (14/0) [1/0]; 1977 (14/0); 1978 (16/0); 1979 (16/0); 1980 (16/0); 1981 (16/0); 1982 (9/0) [4/0]; 1983 (16/0) [3/0]; 1984 (16/0); [1/0]

Games Played Streak: 147 (second-best on club)
1984 Season: For the Redskins, the 1984 Eastern Division crown hinged on one kick. Which was just fine with Mark Moseley. ''These are the situations you live for,'' he said. ''It's what I've built my career on.'' With 1:33 left to play and the Cardinals up 27-26 in the all-or-nothing season finale, Mark showed why he puts on his burgundy and gold jersey each week just for kicks. The ice-veined veteran bisected the goalposts with a 37-yarder to deal the Cards a year-ending hand, 29-27. Dave Butz spoke for the team: ''There's no one I want on my team kicking for me in a situation like that except Mark. I've said it before; I'll say it again.'' For Mose, it was the 15th game-on-the-line field goal of his distinguished career, and capped yet another splendid season of work. Mark's 77.4 percentage for field goals (24-31) was his second-best ever (only exceeded by his remarkable NFL record of 95.2% in 1982). He was second in the NFL in kick scoring with 120 points, also his second best total ever (his 161 in '83 was an NFL record as well). Scoring in all 16 games, Mark has now scored in 62 straight regular season games, just shy of his club-record 69. Including playoff action though, both streaks are at an even 70. His 51-yarder against Buffalo was his 12th career 50-or-more yards kick. The lone full-time straight-on kicker in football, Mark was perfect in six games last year, including three field goals and three extra points against Dallas (Week 15), and four field goals and two extra points against New England. His 48 points-after-touchdown was the second-most in Redskin lore (after his 62 last year), and his 24 field goals made was fourth-best (after his 33 and 25, and Curt Knight's 29).

Pro Career Totals: Mark's 1,223 points place him seventh all-time, 125 behind Lou Groza in sixth place. His 266 field goals are sixth all-time, trailing both Fred Cox and Jim Bakken by only 16. He has also kicked 426 extra points plus 17 field goals with under four minutes to go in a game and the outcome hinging on the kick. Included in that are his NFL-record four overtime field goals of 29, 45, 48, and 26. His 12 points in overtime share an NFL record, and his 48-yard field goal is a record. He's scored in 157 of the 160 games he's played as a Redskin.

Pro Career: A 14th round draft choice of the Philadelphia Eagles in 1970, Mark scored 67 points as a rookie. The next year he was cut in training camp and signed by the Houston Oilers. He scored 73 points for them, but suffered an injury his second year after scoring five points and was later released. In 1974, Mark beat out incumbent Redskin Curt Knight and 9th round draft pick Mike Flater for the roster spot. Since then, he has gone on to rewrite all Redskin career kicking records. Over the past eight years, Mark has a better than 90 percent extra point average (300-326).

In 1981, Mark led the Redskins in scoring (95 points) for an eighth straight year as he provided the Redskins with two last minute victories. In Week 10 vs. Detroit, he booted a 44-yard field goal with just 43 seconds left for a 33-31 Redskin win. The next week, against the Giants in New Jersey, Mark had a chance with five seconds to play to kick a 49-yard field goal to tie the game. In the wind, rain and cold, Mark was successful in sending the game into sudden death. A few minutes later, Mark lined up in almost the same spot to make a 48-yard field goal to win the game for Washington. He booted 19 field goals and 38 extra points while hitting 14-17 field goals from 39 yards and in.

The year 1982 meant near perfection for Mark. He connected on his first 20 field goal attempts to set a record for consecutive field goals (23—he made his last three of '81). Mark finally missed on his last attempt, but still easily set another record for field goal percentage in one season (95.2%), topping Jan Stenerud's 91.7%. For his spectacular season, Mark was selected for the Pro Bowl, and also the AP and Sporting News NFL Player of the Year, and NFC Player of the Year by UPI. Mark's record-breaking kick could not have been more dramatic: it was at RFK against the Giants with the Redskins down 14-12. With snow falling and the clock almost expired, Mark set up at the 32 yard-line and proceeded to kick the ball through the uprights. In Super Bowl XVII, Mark was 2-2, booting a 20 and 31-yarder to help Washington to the world title. In the regular season opener, Mark kicked a 48-yarder with time running out in Philadelphia to tie the Eagles, and then a 26-yarder inn overtime to win. Mark added four more field goals in the playoffs, and was perfect on 14 extra points. He had enjoyed a four field goal day in St. Louis.

In '83, Mark gave the fans just what they were yelling for: more. He scored more points than any kicker ever had in the NFL, 161, breaking the mark Jim Turner set with the Jets in 1968 (145). The only player who has ever scored more in a season is Paul Hornung (176: 15 touchdowns, 15 field goals, 41 PAT's). Mark's 33 field goals broke Curt Knight's club record 29, and was the third-most in NFL history behind Ali Haji-Sheikh's 35 (1983) and Turner's 34 (1968). Only George Blanda's 64 PAT's were more than Mark's 62. Voted 2nd Team all-NFC by UPI, Mark made 33 of 47 field goals and 62 of 63 extra points. In the playoffs, Mark took on a starring role in the NFC Championship Game. With just :49 to go and the Redskins and 49ers knotted at 21, Mark drove home his first postseason game-winning field goal. He led the NFL in scoring, was second in FG's and first in PAT's. He had a long field goal of 51 against Atlanta, a 47-yarder and a 46-yarder. He enjoyed three days of four field goals each, vs Green Bay, The Giants (in NJ), and the Rams in Anaheim. Mark's other game-winning field goal of '83 came in San Diego, as his 37-yarder with just a few seconds left gave the Redskins a 27-24 win. He had a perfect day against the Rams in the playoffs, kicking field goals of 42, 36, and 41 yards.

Mark has led the NFL in field goals four times (1976, 1977, 1979 and 1982) and the NFC in kick scoring four times as well (1976, 1979, 1982 and 1983), while being selected for the Pro Bowl in 1979 and '82. He has kicked 12 field goals of 50 or more yards and 78 from 40 yards and out. He tied a club record with five field goals in a game (vs New Orleans in 1980) and had two of 50 or more yards in that game to match a feat accomplished only three times in NFL history. He has had seven games with four field goals and 25 games with three field goals in his career. Mark holds the Redskin record for longest field goal (54 yards). He has played in the last 147 Redskin games, second-most on the team to Theismann, and fourth most in the Redskin records. Mark's 160 games as a Redskin stands 4th on the all-time Redskin list. In the playoffs, Mark has now made 27 of his 28 career PAT attempts. He's also made 12 of 23 field goal attempts in his nine playoff contests. He has now scored 63 points in the playoff competition, with a long field goal of 47 yards. He has now scored in 62 straight games, and made 82 of his last 109 field goals (75.2) with a long kick of 51 yards. Mark remains the only kicker to ever win the League MVP award.

College, Personal: After transferring from Texas A&M, where he had played quarterback, Mark set Lone Star Conference records for field goals (season) and most points (game). His distance on kickoffs meant 30 of his 56 kicks were not returned. Mark's number 10 jersey was just recently retired by Stephen F. Austin. The only other jersey ever retired there was that of Bum Phillips.

Off the field, Moseley has been honored by both his local Virginia county and hometown Texas county for his extra efforts.

Many times during the past couple years Mark testified before the House and Senate Judiciary Subcommittees on issues relating to uniform sentencing, probation and assistance to victims of crime. He also appeared before a Congressional committee on the issue of voluntary school prayer.

Earlier, Mark served on a national task force, appointed by President Reagan, to help victims of crime and, at state level, headed a group, appointed by VA Gov. Robb, to make recommendations to deal with the problem of drunk driving. Two years ago Mark narrated "One for the Road," a television documentary portraying the devastation caused by teen drunk driving. He is much in demand to discuss issues raised by the film, working with groups of Mothers and Students Against Drunk Driving (MADD, SADD). Last year Mark was featured in "What About the Victim?" The documentary included the story of his own sister.

In several jurisdictions of Maryland and Virginia, Mark supports the efforts of Crime Solvers. He has visited the inmates in the District jail to encourage them to live law-abiding lives upon their release. Mark was featured in a film for the United States Navy, and kicked off the U.S. Savings Bond Drive sponsored by ACTION, the National Volunteer Agency. He was emcee at one of the several National Cherry Blossom Festival affairs. He has twice appeared with the United States Air Force Band, at Constitution Hall and at Wolf Trap for the Performing Arts, narrating "I Am an American." Recently he narrated "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra" with the McLean Symphony Orchestra. Mark gives commencement addresses and participates in student projects at various high schools and colleges, most recently at Bishop O'Connell High School, Northern Virginia Community College/Alexandria Campus and George Mason University. He served as Honorary Chairman of McDonald's Capital Classic in its tenth anniversary year. Mark is a past President of No Greater Love, bringing his family to the Christmas party each year, which he emcees. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Ronald McDonald House. During 1984-85, he was READaTHON Honorary Chairman for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, National Capital Chapter. Besides personal appearances in Metropolitan Washington, Mark has traveled throughout the United States— as far away as Alaska—to support projects of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, the Boy Scouts of America, Special Olympics, the YMCA, the Rotary Club, the United Way, the American Heart Association, the Leukemia and Kidney Foundations and the Sheltered Occupational Center. In an apron-covered tux, he participated in the "Gourmet Gala" for the March of Dimes. Also, last April Mark participated in Game Plan, a program sending Redskins to area junior highs to encourage students to make the right decisions.

In addition, Mark was appointed to represent the NFLPA in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

On the commercial side, Mark owns or co-owns several businesses. He is president of Mark Moseley Travel (an ever-expanding area business) and of Extra Point Productions, a principal in Triple R Western Wear, and conducts The Mark Moseley Kicking-Punting Specialist Camp during the off-season. For the past nine years Mark has had his own radio program, most recently with WMAL.

Mark is affiliated with Nike, maker of the shoes he wears and endorses; Desert Dry Waterproofing Contractors, Inc. in a multi-media campaign; and with Sport Chevrolet.

Mark's valuable public service was recognized by The American Shock Trauma Association which presented to him its Clutch Award "for coming through in tight situations." His record field goal streak is chronicled in the Encyclopedia Britanica Book of the Year/1982.

There are chapters about Mark in two books published last year, Pro Football's Great Moments and Redskin Country. The latter includes Mark among 14 all-time great Redskins. For his many community services, Mark was recently honored as a Washingtonian of the Year and was listed by The Washington Dossier in its selection of "The 500 Most Powerful People in Washington." Finally, Mark was selected to be in the last edition of Who's Who in America, published in September. He was also chosen as a 1984 recipient of The Catholic University of America President's Medal.

Native Texans, Mark and his wife Sharon Allison have made their home in Northern Virginia since 1974, presently residing in Haymarket. They have three children—Megan, 8; Lindsay, 7; and Mark, Jr.,5.

89 CALVIN MUHAMMAD
WIDE RECEIVER

Texas Southern
4th NFL Year
2nd Year Redskins

Ht: 6-0 Wt: 190
Born 12/10/58

How Acquired: October 3, 1984 trade with Los Angeles Raiders for 1985 4th round draft choice

Games Played In/Games Started: 35/12 — 1981 (0-injured reserve); 1982 (9/0) [2/0]; 1983 (16/4) [3/0]; 1984 (10/8) [1/1]

1984 Season: There were no inaugurations, parades, or front-page stories when Calvin arrived in Washington D.C. last October. But after his performance in the three months to come, maybe there should have been. Calvin caught on right away, to both the Redskins fans and the ball. He exploded in his second game in burgundy and gold, catching an 80-yard touchdown pass on the first play of the second half to give the Redskins a 24-7 lead over the Cowboys (week 7). That was the longest play of the Redskins' season, the longest TD pass of Theismann's career, and Calvin's longest career reception. For the Redskins, it was an important play since the team had lost a 20-point halftime lead in Dallas' '83 visit to RFK. Such history would not be repeated in '84. Calvin had shown his fondness for RFK a year earlier, however, scoring two touchdowns in the Raiders game here. That performance had convinced Redskin higher-ups to pursue the speedster in a trade. "I saw him play against us; that's enough for me," said Coach Gibbs. Indeed, it was enough. Calvin finished the season as the Redskins' second-leading receiver with 42 catches for 729 yards. Stepping right in for the injured Charlie Brown, he started eight of the last nine games, averaged a team-leading 17.4 yards per catch, and scored four touchdowns. He finished that first Cowboys game with a team-best five catches for 104 yards. In two other contests, Calvin also led the team in receptions: against Atlanta (six catches for 57 yards and a TD) and Detroit (seven catches for 105 yards). He was named the Offensive Player of the Week against Minnesota, opening the game with a 68-yard touchdown reception. He collected five catches for 115 yards in the 31-17 Redskins win. Other long plays he had in '84 included a 60-yard catch against the Cardinals (Week 16), leading to a TD and a 20-7 lead; and a spectacular 52-yard grab against the Bills which Calvin stole in mid-air out of defender Charles Romes' hands. That pass also led to a TD, and a 24-0 lead. In six games, Calvin had the team's longest reception. In the playoff game, he contributed five catches for 62 yards with a long of 23. Redskins coaches can't wait to see Calvin have a full training camp under his new Redskin belt. Neither can Redskin fans, for that matter.

Pro Career: A 12th round draft choice of the Raiders in 1980, Calvin chose to sign with the Toronto Argonauts of the CFL. He spent that season on injured reserve, however, then joined Hamilton Tiger-Cats for real short span in July of '81, before signing with Raiders. Bad luck continued, though, as he had to spend another year on injured reserve with a knee injury. Calvin finally joined the Raiders team in '82, playing in all nine games, catching three passes for 92 yards including a 35-yard touchdown, which beat Chiefs in Kansas City. In '83, he began to see more time, and caught 13 passes for 252 yards and two TD's, with a long of 43. Five catches and 112 of those yards came against the Redskins in that exciting game in RFK. He also played in the Super Bowl against the Redskins. For his career, Calvin has five games of 100 yards or more, and seven games with five or more catches.

College, Personal: A two-year starter at Texas Southern, Calvin led the team in interceptions in 1978-79. He was an all-Southwest Athletic Conference second-team selection as a senior, and played in the '79 Black College All-Star Game. Also an outstanding sprinter, Calvin was a music major. He was born in Jacksonville, FL., where he went to Raines High, running track, and playing football (with former Viking Terry LeCount one year). He was a Florida State Champ in the 100-yard dash as a senior, with a best time of 9.3. He did not play football until his junior year, when he quit band to do so. But the music never left Calvin's life. A jazz musician, he studied classical trombone in college. He now plays the bass and lead guitar, percussion, keyboards, synthesizer, soprano saxophone, and most other brass instruments. His goal is to become a classical conductor and composer, a feat he considers the ultimate in music. To that end, he has joined a Community Orchestra in Northern Virginia, and also works out of his home studio, appropriately named "Studio 89." He composes and arranges music for his group, "Saleem," named after founder Calvin Saleem Muhammad. He was one of a host of Redskins who participated in an offseason Coca-Cola school seminar program conducted throughout the Washington area. Obviously, he is quite well-spoken, too. A bachelor, Calvin resides in Reston, VA.

Games Played Streak: 5

1984 Season: After missing just one game in seven seasons, Mark caught the Redskin injury bug last year, hurting his knee in the 49er game (Week 2). The injury, thought minor at first, kept Mark on the sidelines for nine weeks — he was placed on injured reserve Sept. 25. Prior to the injury, he was having a typical Mark Murphy year, leading the team in tackles with 26 (13 each week). "Murph" was finally reactivated Nov. 17, and played in the team's final five games, primarily on punt coverage, where he had nine hits. He had game-highs of three hits against Dallas and St Louis (Weeks 15 & 16), respectively. In the playoff game with Chicago, Mark returned to his old free safety spot in the fourth quarter, when Curtis Jordan injured his shoulder. He made three tackles during that span.

Pro Career: Mark is another Redskin who has ran the incredible free agent to Pro Bowl route. The first free agent signed by Washington following the 1977 draft, Mark was one of just two rookies to make the team that season (Clarence Harmon was the other). With George Allen at the helm, it was a real accomplishment. The two rookies teamed for a TD vs the Cowboys in Texas Stadium when Murphy blocked a punt on the one yard-line and Harmon scored on the next play. He played on the special teams for two seasons (one fourth-down pass reception for 13 yards) and as a nickel back on defense, before replacing Jake Scott as the starting free safety. In his first year as starter, Mark led the team with 152 tackles and intercepted three passes. In 1980, he upped his team-high tackles to 186 (60 more than the runner-up) and intercepted six passes (tied for 3rd in the NFC) as he anchored the NFL's top pass defense. In '81 Mark again increased his tackles, this team achieving a team and personal high of 197, in addition to picking off seven passes (6th in the NFC and 7th in the NFL) and recovering three fumbles. He had a streak of eight consecutive games with an opponent turnover. A second-team all-NFC UPI selection in '82, Mark had a season which certainly merited a Pro Bowl berth: he led the NFL's stingiest defense (points-wise—128) in tackles again, piling up 100. His 38 playoff tackles was also a team high. He had a key interception in Super Bowl XVII, lunging at the Washington five yard-line to snare the ball just before it hit the gound to stop a third quarter Miami drive. He also grabbed two regular season thefts, forced one fumble, and recorded one sack. He had another sack in the playoffs, and helped limit the Dolphins to 80 yards passing in the Super Bowl. In '83, the Redskins reached the Super Bowl with only one holdover from the secondary of the past season: Mark Murphy. He was rewarded with a much-deserved Pro Bowl berth, after leading the NFL in interceptions with nine, and finishing second on the Redskins in tackles with 132. (Only an injury in the Week 15 Dallas game allowed Neal Olkewicz to move past him.) It was the season since 1978 which Murph did not lead the team. The Week 16 Giants game was the first missed by Mark in his career, snapping a consecutive game streak of 102, and start streak of 72. The Pro Bowl wasn't his only honor that year; the AP, Sporting News, Pro Football Weekly, and UPI also voted him to their all-Pro teams. The defensive signal-called, he returned in the playoffs to make 15 tackles. He also had one sack and two forced fumbles that year. His best game came against San Diego, as he finished with 14 tackles (9 solo) and three interceptions. His 27 career interceptions place him in a tie for sixth on the all-time Redskin list. In just over five years as a starter, he has made 794 tackles (over 10 per game) and recovered six fumbles.

College, Personal: Mark is a graduate of Colgate, where he established a school record for interceptions in a game (3) and earned all-ECAC honors as a senior of the Red Raiders' 8-2 squad. He had 10 interceptions and 180 tackles as a starter. Mark also played center field for three seasons at Colgate and received major league baseball contract offers. He played basketball there his freshman season as well after graduating from Clarence Central High in Clarence, NY (near Buffalo). His father, Hugh, played tackle at St. Bonaventure, 1947-50. An economics major, Mark went on to earn his Master's Degree in Finance at American University, and also took classes to earn a securities license...Popular with the media, Mark has a regular show on WMAL Radio during the season. But the big news for Mark last year came in two parts: first, he and wife Laurie welcomed a new addition to the family named Emily (their other daughter, Katie, is 2); and second, Mark was named the Redskins Miller Man of the Year for his off-the-field charitable activities. Among those activities have been joining with First Lady Nancy Reagan to kick off the Dept. of Justice/NFL "Team Up Against Drugs" program; speaking sessions at area schools (Coca-Cola's Game Plan) to discourage alcohol and drug use. He has served as Chairman of the March of Dimes Walk America and as celebrity host for the March of Dimes Golf Tournament. He also worked with the Easter Seals Society, United Way, Leukemia Fund, Children's Hospital, the Jaycees, the AFL-CIO Youth camp for under-privileged children, and for SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving). He also was one of several Redskins to appear at the No Greater Love Christmas Party for children whose fathers were killed in action. Mark is the Vice-President of the NFL Players Association. The Murphy family resides in Vienna, VA

1984 Season: The Redskins' records section for returns all but officially took on the subtitle, ''The Mike Nelms Story,'' in 1984. The durable veteran added a 9th and 10th category to his record cabinet, and is beginning to edge up the lists of some NFL records. After playing in all 16 contests in '84, Mike has now missed just five games in his five-year Redskin career — quite an accomplishment considering his dangerous occupation. Mike's 1,288 combined yards on returns last year led the NFC, and was his fourth 1,000-yard season (his third-highest total). The only season he did not reach 1,000 was 1982, when just nine games were played (he had 809). Mike's 8.7 punt return average was the fourth-highest in the NFC, and the second-highest average of his career. His 860 yards of kickoff returns was also the second-best total of his career, and the second-highest total in the NFC in 1984. Sure-handed Mike busted out for a 46-yard punt return against the Eagles in Week 5, his longest since 1981. He also had a 22-yard punt return against Atlanta, and a 21-yard punt return against the Vikings which set up a Redskins touchdown and a 24-0 lead. Mike finally called the first fair catch of his career, against the Colts last year; ironically, after all the times he could have saved himself a licking, he called it when no one was near him. But prior to that in the Colts' game, Mike had already returned a kickoff 36 yards. He also was a part of a couple nifty returns with friend Monte Coleman: he threw a lateral (on a punt return) across the field to Monte in the Lions' game, with Monte running 30 yards (Mike then threw big block); and Mike handed off to Monte on the opening kickoff in the Bears game with Monte running 25 yards to the 36. Later in the game, Mike had a 27-yard kickoff return, and a key 20-yard punt return in the fourth quarter which gave the Redskins a first down on the Bears' 36. On the season, Mike had five days of over 100 yards of combined returns, with a high of 124 against the 49ers. The new records he added to his cabinet were for most Redskin career kickoff returns (174) and most career kick return yardage (4,128). No return man has been Mike's equal in the 80's.

Pro Career: In Mike's first three NFL seasons, he made the Pro Bowl. In his fourth he was named all-Pro by AP. Not too bad for a player who was released in 1977 by the Buffalo Bills (who drafted him in the seventh round) in training camp. After that, he was signed by the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, going on to enjoy three sensational seasons in the CFL. A broken toe sidelined him there and soon he wound up with the Ottawa Roughriders. In '79, he led the CFL in punt returns (1,155 yards and a 10.9 average) and his conference in pass interceptions (10 for 124 yards) as he earned all-star honors. In his Pro Bowl 1980 season, Mike had 12 kick returns over 25 yards and 21 punt returns over 10 yards, with a 64-yard punt return vs. Atlanta and a 51-yard kickoff return that same game. In 1981, Mike topped the NFL with a 29.7 yard kickoff average and finished fourth in the NFC in punt returns with a 10.9 average. His 1,591 combined yards (a Redskin club record) ranked third best in NFL history. His 1,099 yards on kickoff returns and 29.7 average were also club records, and his two touchdowns on punt returns tied a club record. His touchdowns were 75 and 58 yards, and he also had kickoff returns of 84 and 65 yards. Mike also intercepted a pass and made 17 tackles playing in the "nickel" defense that season. The Pro Bowl opened its hallowed doors for Mike a third straight year in '82, as he placed second in the NFC in kickoff returns with a 24.2 average, while averaging 7.9 yards on punt returns. He also rose to the occasion, returning a third-quarter kick vs Dallas in the NFC Championship Game 76 yards to set up a key TD. Over the four post-season games, he averaged 11.3 on punts and 25.7 on kickoffs. Included in that is his 39-yard punt return against Detroit. During the regular season, Mike clicked on returns of 58 (kickoff) against the Eagles, 44 (kickoff) vs the Giants, and 28 (punt) against the Eagles. He set an all-time Redskin record in '82 for career punt return yardage with 1,231, passing Eddie Brown who had 1,150. He now has 1,948 career yards, and a record 212 returns. He also played some short yardage situations on defense, before making the switch to offense. In '83, instead of the Pro Bowl, Mike was honored by AP as the only return man on their all-NFL team. He set up the go-ahead points in Philadelphia with a brilliant 18-yard punt return, sidestepping and stepping over at least eight Eagles. Third in the NFC with a 22.9 yard kickoff return average, Mike excelled against the Raiders in regular season, running back a punt 35 yards, and returning five kickoffs for 103 yards. His longest kickoff return was 41 yards (vs. Green Bay) but he combined with Virgil Seay on 58-yard return vs. Giants. His combined yardage total (1,091) was 2nd in NFC among returners. He was placed on injured reserve Dec. 16 after incurring leg and shoulder injuries against Dallas. He was eligible to return for Super Bowl but had to miss game. He originally twisted his knee in Giants game, hit while lieing on the turf. Mike has seen little time at receiver in his two years there. One who rarely fumbles, he will always make any yards that are there to be gained. Mike remains one of the most popular Redskins, and a player who can bring the crowd to their feet by his mere presence on the field. Another full season with the Redskins and Mike will join the NFL all-time leaders in several categories. For example, he has 6,076 total combined return yards, and third-most in NFL annals is 6,740. Similarly, he has 386 returns (423 is 3rd all-time), and 174 kickoff returns (193 is 3rd all-time). The Mike Nelms Story continues to grow, literally by leaps and bounds.

College, Personal: A transfer to Baylor from Sam Houston State University, Mike tied a school record in 1975 with three interceptions in one game. He had six thefts for 107 yards in his two years as a starter. He also high-jumped 6'7 for the track team. Mike studied Radio and Television Communications at Baylor. Born in Fort Worth, he graduated from O.D. Wyatt High. His older brother, Alfred, played football at Oklahoma State. During the offseason between 1982 and '83, Mike was a member of the 'Skins Super Teams squad in Florida, stealing the show when he mastered the obstacle course like no one before him. His athletic skills were well-highlighted in that spotlight. He spent last offseason working at Seidel Chevrolet in Landover, MD, and doing occasional speaking. Mike also enjoys precious time with his wife, Michele, and daughter, Jennifer Ryann, 2. Mike has spent much time in the Team Up Against Drugs Campaign, a cause which Mrs. Nancy Reagan has taken a strong role in. He has also taken time to visit area hospitals every now and then. The Nelms family resides in Herndon, VA.

Games Played Streak: 41 (all starts)

1984 Season: There are a few middle linebackers around who might get more ink than Neal Olkewicz; but you would be hard-pressed to find one who gets more running backs. As the Redskins' immovable object in the middle, Neal led the team for a second straight season in tackles (with 149) — despite coming out on most passing downs! Equally impressive, "Olkie" was one of just two Redskin defenders to start every game in '84. The Redskins were glad for that, especially during Week 14 in Minnesota. In that game, Neal collected a Redskin season-high 16 tackles (8 solos and 8 assists) including one of the game's big plays. Storming in, he hit quarterback Wade Wilson, knocking the ball loose for Darryl Grant to scoop up and run 22 yards in for a touchdown. For his efforts, Neal was named the Redskin Defensive Player of the Week. Neal's second-best tackle game came in the regular season finale with the Cardinals. His 13 stops there enabled him to win the tackle title. He also added another 13 tackles in the playoff game with the Bears. His presence in the middle of the Redskins' vaunted run-defense helped the team finish second in the NFL in rushing yards allowed: 99.3 yards per game. He recorded a season-high nine solo tackles against Detroit, also recovering a fumble in the fourth quarter to halt a key drive. With the score tied at 14 against Atlanta, he recovered a fumble at the Falcons' 32 to set up a one-yard Riggins plunge soon after. Neal excelled on short-yardage plays, clogging the middle like a brick wall. His value to the team also was highlighted in another area: special teams. Of all the starters, Neal had the most special teams hits with 52, 45 of those coming on kickoff return blocks (fourth-best on team). His best special teams day came in New Jersey, with 8 hits against the Giants. Holding running back Ottis Anderson to just 24 yards rushing in the finale was also an impressive feat. But Neal specializes in those.

Pro Career: To acquire Neal, the Redskins didn't have to search too far. Playing just around the Beltway at Maryland, Neal was the Redskins' first free agent signing following the 1979 draft. He earned a roster spot with an aggressive camp, and went on to play all 16 games, becoming the starter in Week 7 (vs. Cleveland). He replaced Don Hover and ousted veterans Harold McLinton and Mike Curtis. Neal had 140 tackles, a pass interception (vs. Dallas), four forced fumbles and a quarterback sack that year. In 1980, he missed the first five weeks with a preseason knee injury but came on to make 107 tackles and recover a fumble. In 1981, Neal started 14 games before missing the last two due to injury. He was the second-leading tackler that season with 187½. The 1982 season saw Neal collect 88 regular season tackles and 27 postseason tackles, again second on team to Mark Murphy. His three fumble recoveries tied for first on club, and he added to that with 2½ quarterback sacks and a forced fumble. The Super Bowl victory over Miami was Neal's 26th birthday present. He had season-high nine tackles in win over New Orleans. In 1983, Neal was the number one tackler (144) on the NFL's number one run defense. He also added two sacks, two forced fumbles, and two recovered fumbles. His best game came in Seattle as his 14 tackles helped hold the AFC's leading rusher, Curt Warner, to 34 yards. That's the same total the Redskin defense held Tony Dorsett (14 carries) to in Week 15. "Olkie" had one interception on the year against San Diego on a Monday Night. He also led the Redskins tacklers in the playoffs with 25. In six seasons, Neal has 815 tackles (nearly 10 per game). He received the Brookland Club's Player of the Year Award in 1979. He scored his only career touchdown on a 10-yard interception return against Chicago in 1981.

College, Personal: As MVP and team captain at Maryland, Neal set team records for most tackles in a season (188) with a top game of 27 tackles against Penn State. He had three fumble recoveries, two forced fumbles, two quarterback sacks, and a blocked punt in his career...He earned his degree in law enforcement and spent two years (1980-81) as a Deputy in the Fairfax County Sheriff's Office. Born in Phoenixville, PA, he attended high school there...Neal is co-owner, quite obviously, of Neal Olkewicz's Sports Center, two sporting goods stores in Northern Virginia (6635 Backlick Road, Springfield and 13033C Lee Jackson Highway, Fairfax). The stores take up much of his offseason time. He also enjoys snowmobiling in the winter months. Neal and his wife, Nancy, reside in Rockville, MD. And by the way, it was Neal's idea to include the tackle charts in this year's player bio section. Thank you, Neal.

How Acquired: Selected in fifth round of 1984 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 0/0 — 1984 (0-injured reserve)

1984 Season: After showing some linebacking ability in training camp, Jeff injured his shoulder during the preseason and was placed on injured reserve. He remained there the entire season, though returning to practices by mid-year. Coaches feel Jeff has potential to develop into a real physical outside linebacker.

College, Personal: As a senior for the Pirates, Jeff led the defense with seven sacks, and was eighth on the team in tackles with 55 (30 solos). He had five tackles behind the line, playing the defensive end position. As a junior, he had four sacks and 41 tackles. Jeff attended Scotland High in Laurinburg, NC., where he made all-Conference at defensive end and flanker, and was selected for North-South all-Star game. He also ran nine different events in track, and played basketball. Born in Laurinburg, Jeff is a bachelor and now resides in Reston, VA. He was drafted by Redskins just three rounds after college teammate and close friend Steve Hamilton.

Born 04/28/53

How Acquired: On Aug. 17, 1979 in a trade with Cleveland for a 1980 and 1981 draft choice

Games Played In/Games Started: 123/96 — 1975 (14/12); 1976 (14/10); 1977 (14/14); 1978 (16/16); 1979 (16/5); 1980 (16/8); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9) [4/4]; 1983 (DNP); 1984 (8/6)

1984 Season: There was great news and bad news for Tony last year. The great news was that he returned to the Redskins where he had been an all-pro two years before. The bad news, however, was that he pulled a stomach muscle in training camp (lifting weights), and the fans never got to see the real Tony Peters in 1984. Instead of taking a rest and hoping the injury would heal, Tony played, knowing how important his presence was in the line-up, with Ken Coffey (the team's other strong safety) out with a separated shoulder. The veteran started the first five games, making eight tackles against the 49ers, and recovering a fumble against the Patriots. Tony would have had a long fumble return but the official incorrectly ruled he was down. Coffey returned, and Tony started just one more game, Week 8 in St. Louis, where he was noticeably slowed by the injury. Finally, after he played in Week 11 versus Detroit, Tony was placed on injured reserve (11/17). It was the first time in his career he had missed games because of injuries. For the season, Tony had 30 tackles.

Pro Career: A fourth round draft pick of the Cleveland Browns, he played right cornerback as a rookie, but later became their starting strong safety in 1977. An all-NFL rookie selection, he accumulated five interceptions for the Browns before coming to the Redskins in a training camp deal in 1979. He has played all four defensive backfield positions. Tony made 79 tackles his first Redskin season and followed that with 107 in '80, and 88 in '81. He's had nine interceptions as a Redskin and forced nine fumbles. Intercepting two against Oakland in a 1980 contest, Tony also had an interception against St. Louis that year when the Redskins set a club record for fewest yards allowed passing (-12). He was part of a Redskin secondary that held opponents to under 50% passing for three years straight. In 1982, Tony set the tone for the aggressive brand of Redskin defense, and was rewarded with his first-ever Pro Bowl nomination. With 51 regular season tackles (5th on team), 16 playoff tackles, one playoff forced fumble, and countless intimidations caus-ing dropped passes, Tony helped limit opposing offenses to a 53.1 completion percentage, second lowest in the NFC. He also had a crucial theft, preserving the victory over the Eagles at RFK Stadium. In addition, Tony proved to be a man of steel, playing in 115 straight games since coming into the league. He was named first-team all-NFC by UPI. During training camp of 1983, Tony was arrested in Carlisle, PA., (Aug. 3) and placed on immediate leave from the Redskins. After pleading guilty to two charges, including conspiracy to distribute cocaine, Tony was handed a four-year suspended sentence, fined $10,000, and ordered to perform 500 hours of community service. He was suspended (on Nov. 18) for'83 and '84 seasons, but later applied for reinstatement for'84 and had it granted — based on the service he had already performed.

College, Personal: A cornerback on Oklahoma's undefeated 1974 squad, Tony earned all-Big Eight honors that year. One of 11 children, he was reared in Paul's Valley, OK., and attended Northeastern Oklahoma before transferring. He is one of four brothers to play at Oklahoma . . . A licensed real estate agent, Tony would like to open his own firm. Meanwhile, he spent much of his offseason time speaking at schools and churches, and working with children. Tony is very concerned with children trying to get the most they can out of life. He calls his community service work "the most rewarding experience of my life." Tony also played for the basketball team of Redskins over the offseason. A busy man these days, he also found time to attend George Mason University, and to finish a basement in his house, doing all the carpentry work himself. Tony got a little taste of the public relations field, working with a mortgage company in the area. Tony and his wife, Jewell, have four children: Kim, 17; Tiffany, 13; Tony Jr., 6; and Justin, 3½. They reside in Chantilly, VA.

1984 Season: Riggo-nomics may now be the oldest subject amongst NFL running backs, but after 13 seasons, he's still posting straight A's. The inimitable John Riggins topped the 1,000-yard mark for the fifth season in 1984, accomplishing the feat in the Week 12 contest in Philadelphia. In so doing, he became the oldest player in NFL history to gain 1,000 yards in a season (35 and 4 months). His 1,239 yards in just 14 games placed sixth in the NFL, and was the second-highest total of John's illustrious career. The end zone was John's second home once again, as he scored an NFC-best 14 rushing touchdowns (his 14 TD's also tied the NFC lead for overall TD's). The fifth-best rusher of all-time, John has now scored a touchdown in 32 of his last 37 games, running off streaks of 13 (NFL record for games with a rushing TD) and eight (tied for fourth-best in same category). Beginning with the 1982 playoffs, John has scored an amazing 50 touchdowns in a 37-game span. His 84 points in '84 tied for the NFC lead for non-kickers. John's visited the end zone so much of late that RFK officials are considering Riggo welcome mats on the one-yard lines. The 1984 season saw John record the twentieth century-game of his Redskin career. The five 100-yard rushing games last year were a personal high for John, and gave him 22 as a Redskin, 32 as a pro. In the Week 7 game with Dallas, John rushed for a season-high 165 yards (on 32 carries), the fourth-highest single-game total of his career (2nd-best regular season effort, best as a Redskin). His other 100-yard games were against New England (140 yards, 33 carries, 1 TD — Offensive Player of the Game), Philadelphia (Week 5, 104 yards, 28 carries, 1 TD — Offensive Player of the Game), Atlanta (100 yards, 32 carries, 2 TD's), and Dallas (Week 15, 111 yards, 24 carries, 1 TD — Offensive Player of the Game). In the Diesel's 22 100-yard days as a Redskin, the team is 20-2, including wins in the last 16 such contests, and 11-0 at home. John's 22 100-yard games are also a Redskin record, surpassing the 21 by Larry Brown. The Man with the Golden Run now has 11 club records to his credit. John's average per carry for '84 (3.8 yards) was his highest since 1979. In the 13 games he played all the way — he took just three carries against Buffalo before departing with back pain — John averaged 23 carries and 95 yards. He also set club marks last season for career yards (6,795) and career attempts (1,812). Along with his five 100-yard days, John also had five days in the 90's last year. His 327 carries was the second-highest total of his career, and fifth-highest in the NFL for the season. John also caught seven passes for 43 yards. A charter starter on John Madden's all-NFL Team, John had some plays to remember last season. It took him a couple shots, but his one-yard TD burst against the Cowboys in the fourth quarter of the showdown in Dallas, put the Redskins on top to stay. His 13-yard run had helped set up the touchdown. He had a 13-yard touchdown run against New England (first quarter) to set the pace for the win there. And in the playoff game with the Bears, John scored the Redskin's only two touchdowns on short bursts. It was the seventh straight playoff game which John had scored a rushing TD, an NFL record. Only John Stallworth has scored a touchdown (of any type) in more consecutive playoff games (8) than John's seven.

Playoff Fever: In just the last three seasons, John has earned the nickname ''Mr. January'' and etched his name firmly into the NFL record annals. The Super Bowl XVII MVP (166 yards) has an NFL-record six 100-yard games to his credit in postseason play. Riggo's 12 career touchdowns (nine games) rank second all-time to Franco Harris' 17 (19 games). John's 996 yards rushing trails only Harris (1,556) and Dorsett (1,325). His 251 carries trail the same twosome, with Dorsett just 34 ahead. John holds the playoff record for most consecutive 100-yard games (6), and is tied for the record for most TD's in one game (3) and most rushes one game (38). John's first playoff game was in 1976 against the Vikings when he carried only seven times for 30 yards. He carries a superb 4.0 yards per carry average in the playoffs. John has also never fumbled in 253 attempts in postseason. His 36 attempts in the '82 and '83 NFC Championship Games are records for that game. He will always be remembered for the 43-yard touchdown run which put the Redskins in the lead to stay in Super Bowl XVII win over Miami.

Pro Career Totals: John continues to climb the ladder of the NFL record book. He is the number five leading ball-carrier with 10,675 yards (just 561 behind Simpson), and third leading carrier (2,741) behind Payton and Harris. John's 96 rushing TD's trail only Brown (106), and his 108 overall TD's trail only Brown (126) and Moore (113). In addition, John's 12,747 combined yards place him eighth on that all-time list. He is now the Redskins' all-time leading rusher with 6,795 yards on 1,812 carries. His 77 touchdowns are behind only Charley Taylor's 90 in Redskin records, though his 71 rushing TD's are a record. His NFL records include most TD's in a season (24), most rushing TD's in a season (24),and most consecutive games rushing for a touchdown (13). John has the most seasons of 1,000 yards for a player while over 30 (3).

Pro Career: What can you say? He's already established Hall of Fame credentials in his esteemed football career. The New York Jets thought enough of John to make him their number one draft pick (sixth overall) in the 1971 draft. That draft featured QB's Jim Plunkett, Archie Manning, and Dan Pastorini as the first three picks, while the Bills chose WR J. D. Hill and the Eagles DE Richard Harris ahead of Big John. He went on to lead the team in both rushing and receiving as a rookie. He played five seasons for the Jets before playing out his contract option and becoming a free agent. He rushed for 3,880 yards, had 10 100-yard games, and scored 31 touchdowns for the Jets. In 1977 with the Redskins, John suffered a knee injury in Week 5 and was placed on injured reserve. He earned the NEA Comeback Player of the Year Award in 1978 with a 1,000-yard season. John was selected for the Pro Bowl following the 1975 season. His top rushing game as a Redskin in the regular season was a 151-yard output in the 1979 season finale at Dallas, in which he broke a 66-yard TD run in the fourth quarter. In 1981, John came back from a year's layoff to gain 714 yards rushing. He had a 126-yard effort in the win over Chicago, while scoring two touchdowns. He then tied his personal best with a three touchdown game versus St. Louis and also scored two touchdowns against the Colts and Rams. John tied for first in the NFC with 13 touchdowns rushing.

John capped off his splendid 1982 season by being named Sport Magazine Most Valuable Player in the Super Bowl, rewarding his 38-carry, 166-yard game—numbers never achieved up to that point. Only his 185 yards two weeks before against the Vikings was a higher Redskin postseason total (John made his famous bow after that game.) The "Riggo Drill" became famous as the Redskins' sure-fire way of keeping leads in the fourth quarter. Of the 610 yards John gained in the four playoff games, 253 of those yards came in the fourth quarter. He concluded the regular season with 553 yards for eight games, 228 in the final period. He averaged 4.5 yards per carry in the playoffs. The Ground Hog of the Redskins, John became the first back in NFL history to have four consecutive 100-yard efforts in the postseason. (He increased that to six in 1983.) No back before had ever gained 100 yards in three straight playoff games. For the playoffs, John was 43.4% of the Redskin offense, and involved in 51.3% of the plays. He remarkably only fumbled twice on the season in 324 times handling the ball. Riggo's best regular season performance occured against Tampa Bay where he slid through the wet field for 136 yards. In eight of the 12 games, he lugged the ball over 25 times. He led the Redskins in rushing TD's with three, and finished with 1,163 yards, including the playoffs—the fourth time he exceeded the 1,000-yard mark. He was also presented with a Timmie Award from the Washington Touchdown Club for his play in '82.

In 1983, John's name appeared on most every all-star team: AP, UPI, Pro Football Weekly; and he received the Bert Bell Award as NFL Player of the Year (though he said he only won it because his career was nearing an end.) The reasons? Try an NFL-record 24 rushing touchdowns, a club-record, career-high 1,347 yards rushing (4th-best in NFC), 306 more in the playoffs, and a 13-game streak with a rushing TD carried over from 1982. All in all, it was a (record) smashing year. He lost the ball to the opposition just three times all year, covering the 468 times he handled the ball. When he did finally fumble (in Week 5), it broke his string of 685 carries without a fumble. But incredible was normal for John in '83. He continued to merit the name "Mr.

January" for his scintillating playoff performances, 119 yards against the Rams, and 123 yards in the NFC Championship Game versus the 49ers. John's final record-breaking touchdown (OJ had 23) came with under two minutes to go against the Giants (Week 16). He carried the ball six straight times from the Giants' 21 for the score. He enjoyed three 100-yard days: in Philadelphia, in St. Louis, and in that season finale against New York. He carried the ball over 20 times in 14 of the 15 regular season games he partook in, and all three playoff games, averaging 25.7 carries and 91.8 yards per game. He had 44-yard run against Giants to start comeback in finale. He had two three-touchdown days (in St. Louis and Anaheim), and six two-TD days. In addition, he completed the first pass of his career, a 36-yarder to Charlie Brown in the NFC Championship. John's 163 games played in the NFL are second on the Redskins behind Moseley. Since 1975, he has missed more than two games in a season only once, 1977. John has missed just 15 games in that span! (He sat out 1980, of course.)

College, Personal: When one breaks the records of Gale Sayers in college, one is running at a pretty good pace. So it was with John at Kansas where he gained 2,706 career yards and 1,131 as a senior. He was an all-American as a senior, and a three-time all-Big Eight choice. John never missed a game or practice at Kansas. He was a two-time State 100-yard dash champ with a 9.8 clocking in high school . . . John's camouflage wardrobe has become supremely popular in the Washington area, leading to an entire line of clothing with the words "Riggo's Rangers" on it. (John donated one-half of all the sales—$20,000—to the Disabled American Veterans last year.) He has also done work for the American Cancer Society, and filmed public service spots for the DAV. Originally denied entrance to the Hogs, John earned his way in and helped make the group famous. He presented them all with high-powered Weatherby Rifles at a 1983 offseason dinner. John has been a spokesman for Ford the last couple years, appearing in commercials on both television and radio. This past offseason, John ventured to Africa on a hunting safari. John and his wife, Mary Louise, have three children: Robert Krafton, 11; Portia, 5; and Emil, 2. The Riggins live in Vienna, VA.

38 GEORGE ROGERS
RUNNING BACK

South Carolina   Ht: 6-2 Wt: 229
5th NFL Year   Born 12/8/58

How Acquired: On April 26, 1985, in a trade with New Orleans. The Redskins sent their first round choice in '85 in exchange for Rogers and the Saints' 5th, 10th, and 11th picks in '85.

Games Played In/Games Started: 51/49—1981 (16/16); 1982 (6/5); 1983 (13/12); 1984 (16/16)

Games Played Streak: 27 (26 starts)

1984 Season: For the fourth straight season, George led the Saints in rushing in 1984, compiling 914 yards on 239 carries. The totals were more than enough to give George the all-time Saints records for career rushes (995) and career rushing yards (4,267). He had his best game of 1984 against the Falcons (Week 1), carrying 20 times for 102 yards, with two touchdowns (his only two of the year). George had a 1984 long carry of 28 yards, and also caught 12 passes for another 76 yards. The 100-yard game was the 16th of his career. Much of his time in the Saints' backfield was split with Earl Campbell.

Pro Career: As the Saints' top selection in the 1981 draft (1st overall), George did not disappoint a soul, bursting on the scene with a then-rookie record of 1,674 yards and 13 touchdowns. That record is now second only to Eric Dickerson. He tied or broke 11 Saints records as a rookie, leading the NFL in rushing. His awards that season included: Sporting News NFL Rookie of the Year and all-NFL, UPI NFC Rookie of the Year and all-NFC, AP all-NFL and NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year, Pro Football Writers Rookie of the Year (NFL) and 2nd-Team all-NFL, and selection to the Pro Bowl. His longest run that year of 79 yards for a TD against Cleveland was team record and NFL's longest of 1981. He enjoyed nine 100-yard plus games, and also caught 16 passes for 126 yards.

In 1982, George was selected for his second straight Pro Bowl, gaining 535 yards on 122 yards in the shortened season, with three touchdowns. He also had two 100-yard games, and caught four passes for 21 yards.

The 1983 season saw George rush for the highest average of his career, 4.5 yards, on 256 carries for 1,144 yards. The former Gamecock all-American accomplished this despite missing almost four complete games with torn knee ligaments (Weeks 2-5). He started the season in huge fashion with 206 yards on just 24 carries in Week 1, the NFC's second-best performance of that season. He then had 42 yards in the first quarter of Week 2 against the Rams before incurring the injury. He returned though to have three more 100-yard days: 114 yards at Buffalo, 137 against Atlanta, and 124 against the Rams. He finished seventh in the NFC in rushing, leading the Saints to only their second .500 finish in team history. Only a field goal prevented the Saints from reaching the playoffs. He caught 12 passes for 69 yards, and had a long run of 76 yards.

Over the last four years, George stands fourth among NFL running backs in yards gained. His 4,267 yards is behind only Payton, Dorsett, and Ottis Anderson.

College, Personal: The NCAA rushing leader in 1980 with 1,781 yards at South Carolina, George won the coveted Heisman Trophy for his efforts. (He will be the first Heisman Trophy recipient to play for the Redskins since Gary Beban in 1969.) Missing just one game in college, George is the NCAA's fourth-ranked all-time rusher with 4,958 yards. He rushed for 100 yards or more in his final 22 games for the Gamecocks, and was the school's first consensus all-American. George had 1,000-yard seasons in each of his last three years at South Carolina. His jersey number (38) was retired there as a tribute to him...He attended Duluth (GA) High and was voted high school back of the year in Georgia as junior and senior. George Washington Rogers Jr. (his full name) also participated in basketball and track there. He spends his offseasons in Columbia, SC. George is a supporter of the March of Dimes Foundation, and has pledged time to work with the handicapped in activities in Columbia.

10 JAY SCHROEDER
QUARTERBACK

UCLA
2nd Year

Ht: 6-4 Wt: 215
Born 06/28/61

How Acquired: Selected in third round of 1984 draft (83rd overall)

Games Played In/Games Started: 0/0 — 1984 (0/0)

1984 Season: After a fine training camp, Jay made the 49-man roster as the number three quarterback. Though he did not see any action, he is considered by Coach Gibbs to be an excellent prospect for the future. His draft status (83rd) made him a higher selection than Theismann in 1971 (99th).

Against New England in the preseason, Jay completed three of five passes for 69 yards. He has shown a strong arm consistently in practices. With Jim Hart retired, Jay will be competing for vacant number two spot.

College, Personal: Jay played two seasons at UCLA in 1979 and '80, seeing action in '80. That season, he completed 37 of 65 passes (56.9%) for 634 yards, four touchdowns and three interceptions. His season highlight package came in two games: against Arizona State he came off the bench to complete eight of 18 passes for 157 yards and two touchdowns in a 23-14 win for the Bruins; against USC Jay had his best game, completing nine of 11 passes for 165 yards and two TD's, one of those scores being the winning touchdown, a 58-yard tipped pass to Freeman McNeil. In his only start, Jay completed 5-10 passes for 120 yards against Oregon State in a game played in Tokyo. The next season Jay signed a pro baseball contract with the Toronto Blue Jays, heading for Class A ball in Florence, SC. The next two years he spent in the Carolina League with Kinston. It was there that Jay and Dwight Gooden helped each other's career along, by way of a few strikeouts. "I helped put Dwight in the majors, and he helped put me in football," Jay says now. He contacted UCLA Offensive Coach Homer Smith and they sent letters to NFL clubs that he was eligible for the draft. He attended high school at Palisades High in Pacific Palisades, CA. He was all-City his senior year in football and baseball . . . Jay and his wife, Debbie, welcomed a son last year, Brian Jay, born 11/19/84, just after Jay returned from the team's road game in Philadelphia. Jay has spent time working for the United Way, the DC Association of Retarded Citizens, and has visited Children's Hospital. The Schroeders reside in Reston, VA.

60 CURT SINGER
OFFENSIVE TACKLE

Tennessee   Ht: 6-5 Wt: 275
1st Year   Born 11/04/61

How Acquired: Selected in Round 6 of 1984 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 0 — 1984 (0-injured reserve)

1984 Season: Curt looked to have a roster spot sewn up, until he injured his back in practice on August 30, and had to be placed on injured reserve. Although he was eligible to be activated four weeks later, the Redskins could not afford to use one of their five moves with all the other injuries. Curt had looked impressive in preseason, and should benefit from another year with Joe Bugel.

College, Personal: A two-year starter for the Vols, Curt was regarded as one of the most consistent and dependable linemen of recent Tennessee teams. From the same high school as Tony Dorsett (Hopewell in Aliquippa, PA), Curt was co-winner of Tennessee's Offensive Player of the Game incentive award for play against Georgia Tech, only one of three Vol linemen to receive such an honor in '83. He did not miss a start in his final two years there. A Vocational Technical Education Major at Tennessee, Curt is an avid hunter and fisherman. He has a hunting guide service in Tennessee known as the Bands Guide Service. Curt was married in June to Kelly Bowman; the couple resides in Knoxville.

75 BOB SLATER
DEFENSIVE TACKLE

Oklahoma   Ht: 6-4 Wt: 265
1st Year   Born 11/14/60

How Acquired: Drafted in second round (31st overall, 1st Redskin) of '84 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 0 — 1984 (0-injured reserve)

1984 Season: Bob showed tremendous quickness for a player his size in training camp last year, looking very impressive. But then, bad luck and astroturf combined to shelf Bob for the season. He first hurt his knee in the last preseason game, in the Superdome in New Orleans, when his knee locked on the carpet. Bob was placed on injured reserve after being placed on the final 49-man roster. That meant he could be activated with a move after four weeks. But it wasn't to be as he re-injured his knee in practice later in the year, and finally underwent an arthroscopy. Bad luck continues to haunt Bob. He recently required reconstructive surgery on his knee (May) and will miss all of 1985. Doctors are optimistic, however, that Bob will return in 1986.

College, Personal: A UPI Second-Team all-Big Eight selection in '83, Bob finished as the Sooners' 7th leading tackler with 66 stops, including 41 solos. Against Missouri, he had a careeer-high 14 tackles and was nominated for Big Eight Defensive Player of the Week. He also had 13 tackles against Ohio State, and 12 tackles in 21-20 come-from-behind win over Oklahoma State, his "most exciting game" as Sooner. An East-West Shrine Game performer, he started for three seasons, totalling 10 sacks, four as a senior. He had 66 tackles as a junior (38 solos) with five stops for losses adding up to 22 yards. He had a sack for a safety at Kentucky, and another sack in Fiesta Bowl. As a sophomore, Bob was second-leading tackler among linemen with 82. He was redshirted in 1980, and started as offensive tackle in '79. A standout lineman at Mason High in Tulsa, Bob was a Business Major at Oklahoma where he received his degree in May of '84. Bob was married in the offseason to Cheryl; the couple expects their first child in early November. They reside in Fairfax, VA.

26 RICKY SMITH
CORNERBACK/RECEIVER

Alabama State
4th NFL Year
2nd Redskins

Ht: 6-0 Wt: 182
Born 07/20/60

How Acquired: Sept. 11, 1984, trade with New England for 1985 draft choice

Games Played In/Games Started: 37/0 — 1982 (9/0); 1983 (16/0); 1984 (11/0)

1984 Season: Ricky was acquired by the Redskins at the start of the season to help the secondary. A fine athlete who had mostly returned kicks at New England, Ricky was employed in some nickel situations by the Redskins. He intercepted his first career pass against Detroit to end the first half, returning the ball 37 yards. Ricky also contibuted seven tackles on defense, and 26 hits on special teams, with a best-game of seven hits against the Colts. In the preseason, he played wide receiver for New England and caught 3 passes for 30 yards. He was used at wide receiver in the Redskins May mini camp.

Pro Career: A sixth round draft choice of the Patriots in 1982, Ricky handled the team's kickoff and punt returns in '82 and '83. His 23.6 yard kickoff return in '82 ranked third in the AFC and sixth in the NFL. He returned a kickoff 98 yards for a touchdown in Foxboro against the Jets, the NFL's top return of '82. His 8.7 punt return average ranked 6th in the AFC. He also saw spot duty as a cornerback. In the '82 preseason, he picked off a Lynn Dickey pass and returned it 78 yards for a TD. In 1983, Ricky finished fifth in the AFC in punt returns with a 10.5 yard average. He ran a kick back 53 yards in the snow and sleet to set up the lone score in a win (7-0) over the Saints. On opening day, he returned a punt 55 yards against the Colts to set up a touchdown. He also had a 43-yard punt return in that same game. Ricky averaged 35.7 yards for three punt returns that day.

College, Personal: Ricky had seven career interceptions at Alabama State, including three his senior year. He also punted 221 times there for a 33.7 career average. He was the NAIA National Indoor Long Jump champion in '79 and '80, and has a personal best leap of 25'3. He also played centerfield on the Hornets' baseball team. He graduated from Alabama State with a B.S. in Human Services and a minor in Health and Recreation. Ricky and his wife, Chinetia, have one child, a daughter, Shandelyn LaCarla, 1½. He enjoys listening to music and playing the drums, and has become involved in the real estate business. He attended James A. Shanks High School in Quincy, FL., and now resides in Pensacola, FL.

74 GEORGE STARKE
OFFENSIVE TACKLE

Columbia   Ht: 6-5 Wt: 260
13th Year   Born 07/18/48

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, Aug. 2, 1972, after being acquired on waivers from Dallas.

Games Played In/Games Started: 156/146 — 1972 (0- taxi squad); 1973 (14/7) [1/1]; 1974 (14/14) [1/1]; 1975 (14/14); 1976 (14/14) [1/1]; 1977 (14/14); 1978 (9/9); 1979 (16/16); 1980 (13/13); 1981 (14/13); 1982 (9/9) [4/4]; 1983 (16/16) [3/3]; 1984 (9/7)

1984 Season: The veteran leader—alias Head Hog—of the offensive line, George was troubled by knee problems last year, though still managed to start seven games. But it was one of the two games in which he played but did not start that proved to be George's season highlight. That came in the Week 15 showdown in Dallas. With Russ Grimm unable to play with an eye injury, George hobbled in to his right tackle position and played exceptionally well, helping the Redskins to victory. George was also a key force in the New England contest, as the team collected 235 yards on the ground. He started the first five games before sitting out the Colts game. George's knees finally became too painful, keeping him on the pinewood for the playoff game. He underwent arthroscopic surgery Jan. 25, and should be ready to go by training camp.

Pro Career: In 10 pro seasons now, George has missed just 17 games, playing in 156 as a Redskin (3rd most on team), and starting 146 (most on team). But before settling down with the Redskins, George did a little travelling. An 11th round draft pick of Washington back in 1971 (272nd choice), George was traded to Kansas City on July 24 for a draft choice. The Chiefs released him that summer and he signed with the Dallas Cowboys in the 1972 off-season. He was claimed by the Redskins when Dallas released him Aug. 2, 1972, and George spent that Redskin Super Bowl season on the taxi squad. (He is the only Redskin to have spanned all three Super Bowl appearances.) In 1973, he saw his first action and by 1974 he was a starter at right tackle. George had a 65-consecutive games played in streak snapped in 1978 with a knee injury on an extra point play that came when the club was 7-2; they went on to finish 8-8 without his services. He also has six career fumble recoveries to his credit. In 1981, George and his offensive linemates helped the Redskins set a new club total offense mark, while allowing the fewest sacks since 1976. He showed his durability that season by missing a mere two games when breaking two bones in his hand. George started all nine regular season games, and all four playoff games in 1982, including Super Bowl XVII. In that game, he and his fellow Hogs helped plow the way for 276 yards of Redskin rushing on a season-high 52 carries. In '83, George was, of course, instrumental in helping the Redskins along to a record 541 points. The offensive line allowed just 35 sacks of Redskin quarteracks for the year, tied for second-best in the NFC. He did not miss a start all season.

College, Personal: As a Columbia Lion, George played tight end and defensive end, catching 35 passes for 478 yards. He was also the starting center on the school's 20-4 and 20-5 basketball teams with former pro Jim McMillan and Rhodes Scholar Heyward Dotson that were ranked as high as fourth in the nation. A liberal arts (film production) major, he is president of Starke-Reid Televideo (a production company) and George Starke Communications (a distribution company). He has done a film on the Boston Marathon featuring a wheel chair participant. In 1984, George appeared on WTTG (Channel 5) 10:00 o'clock news twice a week with his comments on the games. He also put together his own weekly segment for Channel 5's PM Magazine, which aired every week. Several of those revolved around Redskin topics the fans usually don't see, like the equipment men or trainers. He was quite adept in each of these endeavors. The White Plains, NY, native also found time to appear in a McDonald's television commercial, with other members of the Hogs. He has pointed the Hogs in the direction of two main charities which he devotes much time to: Martha's Table and the Soup Kitchen. George enjoys travelling and has visited China with an Athletes Friendship Tour. The son of a high school principal, he is a bachelor and resides in Washington, the only player to live in the city. George was the subject of a Sports Illustrated story a couple years back, highlighting his various talents.

SERVICE ABOVE AND BEYOND...George Starke's 12 Redskin years tie him for the fifth-longest tenure in the team's history. Sammy Baugh played 16 years, followed by Len Hauss' and Charley Taylor's 14, and Jerry Smith's 13. Brig Owens also played 12 years. This season is actually George's 14th with the organization since he spent the Super Bowl 1972 season on the Taxi Squad.

7 JOE THEISMANN
QUARTERBACK

Notre Dame
12th Year

Ht: 6-0 Wt: 198
Born 09/09/49

How Acquired: Signed on March 1, 1974 after Redskins traded a first round 1976 draft pick to Miami for his rights.

Games Played In/Games Started: 156/114—1974 (9/0) [1/0]; 1975 (14/0); 1976 (14/6) [1/0]; 1977 (14/6); 1978 (16/14); 1979 (16/16); 1980 (16/15); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9) [4/4]; 1983 (16/16) [3/3]; 1984 (16/16) [1/1]

Games Played Streak: 152 (60 starts)

1984 Season: It was in the rain in Philadelphia that the Redskins' ship almost sunk. Almost. With casualties all around him, the field general with the burgundy and gold seven on his chest could have surrendered. At 7-5, four wins were needed to make the playoffs. But Joe Theismann had not yet begun to fight. Over the last four games, he merely completed 82 of 123 passes (66.7%) for 931 yards, seven touchdowns, and just two interceptions—a spectacular 101.6 rating. And he made the plays: a perfect 68-yard TD pass to Calvin Muhammad to open the Vikings game; a key block on Art Monk's big 18-yard run in Dallas; and two third-down conversions on the final game-winning drive against St. Louis—a nine-yard scramble and a thread-the-needle 19-yard pass to Art Monk. For the third year in a row, the last four games had been won and a Division Title claimed. And Joe T once again stood proudly atop his Redskin A-Team.

Joe became a Redskin "record-player" in 1984, rising to the top of the team's all-time charts in attempts, completions, and yards. Despite seeing four of his top five receivers from 1983 sidelined, he still managed to throw for the three best games of his career (passing efficiency): 17-20 against Colts (85%); 19-24 against Vikings (79.2%); and 26-33 against Bills (78.8%). His 19-25 performance against Falcons (76%) was sixth-best of career. Joe finished among the top five NFC quarterbacks in five important categories: completions (283), touchdowns (24), yards (3,391), interception percentage (2.7), and rating (86.6). That rating marked the third straight year he had been above 86. Joe's 3,391 yards was his third 3,000-yard plus season, equaling Jurgensen's club mark. His high yardage game of 1984 came against the 49ers (331), followed by a 311-yard effort against Buffalo. The two-time Pro Bowler now has 13 300-yard plus games to his credit.

Named the Offensive Player of the Game versus Indianapolis and Buffalo, Joe threw four TD passes in that Colts game (for the 3rd time in his career). He also had three touchdown passes against Dallas (Week 7), for his 12th such game. In that contest, he recorded the second-longest completion of his career, an 80-yard TD pass to Muhammad to open the second half. In the one playoff game, Joe completed 22 of 42 passes for 243 yards, while avoiding a fierce Bear rush. Overall, Joe completed six passes over 50 yards.

The other dimension he adds to the Redskins offense is his running ability, which he really showed off in '84. Joe's 314 yards (on 62 carries) led all NFL quarterbacks. He had individual runs of 27, 25, and 24 yards, and had the team's longest run in six of the 16 games. Joe even led the Redskins in rushing one game, gaining 35 yards in seven attempts against 49ers. He started all 16 games in '84, giving him a start streak of 60, longest on the team, and a games played streak of 152, also longest on team. Said Coach Gibbs: "Joe had a tremendous year for us in 1984. He had to adapt to all different receivers, two or three centers, and many blitzing defenses. To go through all that and lead your team to a Division title is something special; which describes Joe."

One other note: he continues to hold for long-time teammate Mark Moseley's place kicks.

Pro Career Totals: Joe is the most productive passer in Redskins annals, with 23,432 yards passing, 1,877 completions, and 3,301 attempts. His career rating of 79.0 puts him past Johnny Unitas into 11th place on the all-time list, behind Starr's 80.3. With just 122 career interceptions, Joe ranks fourth on that all-time list (3.695) behind Montana, Gabriel, and Anderson. Joe's playoff rating is an amazing 91.5 with 1,782 yards and a 61% completion rate. His average attempt of 8.45 yards is among the highest in playoff history.

Joe's 1,700 yards rushing is the 10th best in club history, but his 5.2 yard average per carry is tops. He is the only Redskin quarterback ever to rush for over 1,000 yards for a career. His 156 games played tie him with George Starke for fifth-most in club annals, while the 152 consecutive games give him the third-best Redskin streak ever behind Hauss (196) and Owens (154).

He's had 13 games of 300 yards passing (one with 400), three games with four TD's, 12 games with three, and 15 games completing over 70% of his passes.

Pro Career: As Miami's fourth pick in the 1971 draft, Joe opted to bypass the Dolphins and head for Toronto to play with the Argonauts of the Canadian Football League. He led the Argonauts to the Championship Game his first year, passing for 2,440 yards and running 564 yards. In three CFL years, Joe connected on 56 percent of his passes for 6,093 yards, and 40 touchdowns, while running for 1,054 yards. He also punted three times for 182 yards and kicked one conversion.

The Redskins obtained Joe's NFL rights in 1974 from the Dolphins. His rookie Redskin season saw him hit 9-11 passes for 145 yards, return 15 punts for 157 yards (10.5 average), and rush three times for 12 yards and a touchdown. Joe's first NFL touchdown pass was completed to Charley Taylor against the Chicago Bears in the 1974 season finale.

Joe's first NFL start came in Week 5 of the 1976 campaign against the Kansas City Chiefs at RFK Stadium. He passed for 270 yards (20-37 and two touchdowns), ran for 38 yards (one touchdown) and led the club to 30 points and 438 yards offense. The Redskins, however, lost 33-30 as the Chiefs executed a 63-yard flea-flicker play with 64 seconds remaining.

In 1978, Joe became the permanent starter when Jack Pardee took over as head coach. He has passed for over 2,000 yards in each of the seven seasons he has started, and run for at least 150 each year as well. In 1979, Joe was the second-highest rated quarterback in the NFL in the final ratings (84.0) and earned second-team all-NFC honors by UPI as well as team most valuable player honors.

In 1981, Joe ranked in the top five NFC quarterback ratings in six categories: Yards (3rd); completions (4th); completion percentage (2nd); touchdowns (5th tie); lowest interception percentage (4th tie); and overall rating (5th). He established a club record for pass completions (293) and was second all-time for season passing yards (3,568) and attempts (496). The starter for all 16 games, Joe has missed the starting whistle only three times in the past 106 games. He had three 300-yard passing games (personal best to that point of 388 vs St. Louis) and three more games over 250 yards. In 10 of the 16 games, Joe completed over 60 percent of his passes and had a four-touchdown passing day vs the Cardinals. He had seven games with 20 or more completions.

Joe was the number one rated quarterback in the NFC in 1982, earning him a berth as the Pro Bowl starter (his first). The veteran completed 64% of his regular season passes and 68% in the playoffs. Joe led the Redskins to a Super Bowl triumph, completing 15 of 23 passes for 143 yards and two touchdowns, including game-clincher to Charlie Brown in final two minutes. Joe threw only three interceptions in last 26 quarters of play, including an interception-less streak of 96. Joe's top yardage game of '82 was 382 yards in opener against Eagles. His 63.9% pass completion rate made him the most accurate Redskin passer ever for one season with over 200 attempts. His nine interceptions represented a Redskin team low for a season. In the playoffs, Joe had a phenomenal 110.8 rating, with eight touchdown passes. He tied a Super Bowl record with eight consecutive completions. But the play he is most remembered for that season was a defensive one, knocking down his own deflected pass from the hands of Dolphin end Kim Bokamper, who was steps from the end zone. In another unusual play, Joe threw a great block that sprung Joe Washington for a touchdown against the Giants. He also achieved fame as the holder for Moseley's record field goal streak.

In addition to his Pro Bowl berth, Joe was also selected for the Maxwell Club's Bert Bell Award as the NFL's top player, first-team NFC by UPI, all-Pro by Football Digest, and Player of the Year by Football Digest. Joe has now finished in the top five in the NFC quarterback ratings for the last six seasons.

In 1983, Joe was so super at the helm of the 14-2 Redskins that you'd have sworn he had a big red "S" on his chest. He quarterbacked the Redskins to an NFL-record 541 points to earn the NFL's Most Valuable Player Award. For the second straight year he was chosen by his peers as Pro Bowl starter. His 97.0 rating was second-best in the League. To complement his MVP honors, Joe was also named all-NFL by AP and the Sporting News, all-NFC by UPI, Offensive MVP by Pro Football Weekly, Redskin Player of the Year by the Quarterback Club, and Offensive Player of the Year by the Kansas City 101 Club. To deserve these accolades, Joe completed 60.1% of his regular season passes, for 3,714 yards, 29 TD's (tied for second-best in NFL), and just 11 interceptions. His 417 yards against the Raiders (Week 5) was an NFC best for 1983, and he had three other 300-yard games in addition (Dallas, Green Bay, and San Diego—all Monday nights). He reeled off interceptionless streaks of 161 and 104 passes, and was sacked just 35 times. He was also the Redskins' third-leading rusher with 234 yards on 37 carries (a 6.3 average) with a long of 22 and one touchdown. He engineered successful two-minute drills against the Raiders, Chargers, and 49ers (in the NFC Championship) all to win those games in the final seconds. A similar exploit versus Green Bay just failed when Moseley's 37-yard field goal went wide. In the playoffs vs. the Rams, Joe completed 18 of 23, which combined with Bob Holly's 2 of 2 gave the Redskins an NFL playoff record for percentage (80%). In the postseason, he completed 48 of 84 passes for 774 yards and three TD's. His long was a 70-yard TD pass to Brown in the 49er game. His regular season (and career) long came in the regular season, an 84-yard pass to Alvin Garrett vs. Lions. Joe's 3,714 gross yards was 3rd in NFC; his 60.1 passing percentage 4th; and his 2.4 interception percentage 3rd. Joe capped his fine season off by leading the NFC to victory in the Pro Bowl. His Super Bowl XVIII stats were 16 of 35 for 243 yards.

College, Personal: In leading the Fighting Irish to back-to-back Cotton Bowls, Joe was runner-up to Jim Plunkett in the Heisman Trophy balloting his senior year. That 1971 draft saw Joe as the 99th player chosen and 8th quarterback taken. The more notable QB's ahead of him were Plunkett, Archie Manning, Lynn Dickey and Ken Anderson, quite a crop of QB's for one draft. He set numerous Notre Dame passing marks, still holding the season passing record. Joe was also an academic all-American and earned his degree in Sociology. Born in New Brunswick, NJ, Joe teamed with Cowboy receiver Drew Pearson at South River (NJ) High on an undefeated and top-ranked team his senior year. An outstanding baseball pitcher as well, he received a pro offer from the Minnesota Twins. An excellent athlete, Joe has been a Virginia State Class Racquetball champion, has gone to the World finals in TV's "Superstars" competition, and is above average at golf, tennis, bowling, and billiards.

Off the playing fields, however, is where the Theismann Story grows even longer. In 1981, he was the Redskins Man of the Year, earning a $1,000 college scholarship for an area youth. He was selected to receive a humanitarian award by the Lions Club International. Joe is on the corporate board of Childrens Hospital (where his daughter underwent open-heart surgery), and has worked in the past and present with the United Way, March of Dimes, American Heart Association, Cystic Fibrosis, Mental Health Association, Special Olympics, Boy Scouts, No Greater Love for MIA-POW and hostage children (where he appears each Christmas to entertain the children), and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He also started a scholarship fund of $1,000 to South River High, awarded annually.

Two Januaries ago, Theismann became involved in a public service announcement to make the public more aware of the need for vital organ donors, specifically livers. The message concerned, in particular, a two-year old girl named Trine Engebretsen, who was within two weeks of death if she did not receive a liver transplant. Walt Disney Productions filmed the public service announcement, Pub Sat Corporation broadcasted it and the result was the receipt of 11 livers for transplantation, and the successful transplanting of these livers in 10 children, including Trine. On April 13, 1984, the National Organ Transplant Educational Foundation, Incorporated was founded, with Joe on the Board of Directors.

He also recently got involved with The Virginia Coalition for Child Abuse Prevention (spokesman), The National Orphan Foundation (spokesman), the National Association for Neural Injury (the Board); and made an appearance at Riverview Hospital in Red Bank, NJ, to raise funds for hospital equipment. Joe received the "Secretary of Offense" Award from Caspar Weinberger, the Secretary of Defense for his contribution to the success of the United Way Combined Federal Campaign. He also appeared as a motivational speaker for companies such as IBM, GE, GM, among others.

Joe opened two more restaurants in Northern Virginia recently to go with the very successful one he already has in Baileys Crossroads. The new ones are located in Alexandria and Vienna. The resturants are called what else but "Joe Theismann's." He is the co-host along with George Michael of the weekly television show, "Joe Theismann's Redskin Report." He has also worked as a morning disc jockey on WPGC Radio, and conducted a call-in show twice a week on that station during the season. Joe has published several editions of a book, Quarterbacking, appeared on the "Tonight Show," "Late Night with David Letterman," on prime-time in "BJ and the Bear," in two movies—The Man with Bogart's Face and Cannonball Run II with friend Burt Reynolds—and hosted a show for NBC called "America's Heroes: The Athlete's Chronicle." He has become very serious with his acting career and hopes to pursue it more. He is also on the tube these days in several commercials from the Igloo coolers to the Russell Corporation Sportswear (where Too Tall Jones hangs him up), to Holiday Spas. Joe was seen for many years as a spokesman for Canon Cameras. In short, and quite needless to say, Joe's appointment calendar is almost always filled. He also travelled to Tokyo last June. Joe has three children: Joey, 13; Amy, 11; and Patrick, 6.

TACKLE

Missouri
9th NFL Year   Ht: 6-4 Wt: 275
2nd Year Redskins   Born 01/10/54

How Acquired: August 30, 1984, trade with Los Angeles Raiders for 1985 draft choice

Games Played In/Games Started: 94/67 — 1977 (1/0); 1978 (16/12) [3/3]; 1979 (16/14) [3/3]; 1980 (16/13) [1/1]; 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/3); 1984 (4/0) [1/0]

1984 Season: Morris arrived in Washington just in time for the season to begin. The Redskins acquired him because of his relationship with Coach Joe Bugel in Houston. Bugel thought Morris could be a very capable insurance player. Unfortunately, just a few weeks later, Morris broke his ankle and had to be placed on injured reserve (Sept. 29). He was not reactivated until Dec. 29, prior to the playoff game, when George Starke seemed unfit to play. Not only was Morris placed back on the roster, but he was forced into the game when Ken Huff broke his ankle at the end of the first quarter.

Pro Career: A first round draft pick of the Oilers in 1977, Morris had played in 89 consecutive games entering the 1984 season. In 1977, he saw action in just one of four games before being placed on injured reserve. But while playing in every game from 1978-80, he was also fortunate enough to see action in seven playoff games. He built up a consecutive start streak of 27 during the 1981-82 season, but then became a reserve in '83. He started just three games that season, when Doug France was injured.

College, Personal: An NEA First-Team all-American his senior year at Missouri, Mo participated in three all-star games that season: Blue-Gray, Hula and Japan Bowls. A three-year starter at guard, he finished his technology degree in '82 at the University of Houston. Mo attended Vashon High in St. Louis, where he was born. Morris and his wife, Iris, reside in Houston. He enjoys fishing, camping, reading, and all outdoor activities.

RUNNING TO VICTORY...The Redskins have won 19 straight games in which one of their backs has rushed for 100 yards or more in a game. Sixteen of those games belong to John Riggins. The 19-game streak (6-0 in '84) includes 12-0 at RFK, and 6-0 in the playoffs, all by Riggo. In Riggins' 22 Redskin 100-yard games, the team is 20-2, 11-0 at home...

1984 Season: Rick proved once again in '84 that he is the type of player you find on winning teams. As the move tight end (often in motion), he started 14 games, and played in all 16. But Rick proved even greater value when, at midseason, he was asked to help out the special teams. Like everything he does, "Doc" excelled there, collecting 20 hits on the season, with a best game of five against the Vikings. Rick is counted on more for his blocking — from the tight end position — than his receiving; but he still managed to catch five passes for 52 yards. The 10.4 average was the highest of his career. Rick also scored one touchdown, catching a seven-yard pass in the Week 8 contest with St. Louis. He had two grabs in the opener with Miami, and also carried the ball once against the Giants (Week 3) for two yards. Only Theismann and Moseley have played in more consecutive Redskin games than Rick; he has not missed one since early 1980. In the offseason, Rick had an arthoscope done on his knee, something he said bothered him from midseason on.

Pro Career: A 27-yard catch and six-yard run on back-to-back plays in Super Bowl XVII helped the Redskins toward their first NFL Championship in 40 years, and stands as a highlight during Rick's eight years of pro football. As he hails from Southern California, the Super Bowl in Pasadena was like a homecoming to Doc before family and friends. As a fourth-round 1977 draft choice of the Cincinnati Bengals, he played six games as a rookie before fracturing his wrist and being placed on injured reserve. Rick's second season he caught 12 passes and scored three touchdowns. After being waived in camp the next season, he was re-signed by the Bengals in October of that year and saw spot duty in 10 games, catching a TD pass to help beat the Steelers. In 1980, after the Bengals released him, the Redskins signed Rick. After one week here, he started against the Raiders and caught five passes for 53 yards, including a 15-yard touchdown. He started four games and caught ten passes that year. In 1981, the Redskins switched to a two-tight end offense in Week Three and Rick became a starter, responding with three catches for 44 yards and a 20-yard TD vs. the Cardinals. He started 14 games and caught 11 passes for 112 yards. In 1982, Rick was the Redskins' fifth-leading receiver with 12 catches for 92 yards and a touchdown. He also caught eight passes in the playoffs for 67 more yards, his 27-yard Super Bowl grab included (that was the Redskins' longest completion of the game). He also ran three times in the playoffs for 20 yards, and twice in the regular season for 11 yards. In '83, starting every game, "Doc" was a man on the move for the Redskins, enjoying the best season of his career. He was one of seven Redskins to catch more than 15 passes (17 exactly for 168 yards and two touchdowns). Adding two catches for 25 yards in the playoffs, Rick was also frequently singled out for his devastating blocking, which earned him several "kayoes" from the coaches. Rick moved on the ground as well, running twice in the regular season for 10 yards. His efforts to produce extra yards on runs and catches often ignited both the crowd and the Redskins. And last but never least, Rick was moving up and down all season as a member of the celebrated "Fun Bunch," a group he created during the 1982 season to help fill the hole left by the injured Art Monk.

College, Personal: Voted 1977 Lineman of the Year at UCLA, Rick was an AP all-American selection that season for the Bruins. He made his first college catch a big one, scoring a touchdown against Michigan State in 1974. He went on to earn all-Pac 8 honors at both tight end and wide receiver under coaches Dick Vermeil and Terry Donahue. Doc transferred from Santa Ana Junior College, and proceeded to earn trips to the East-West, Hula, and Japan Bowls as a senior. The son of a U. S. Marine, he was born in Cherry Point, NC, but graduated from Santa Ana Valley High (CA). He has won various championships at the high school, college, and pro levels . . . Doc is one of the most active Redskins in the offseason, in both business and charity. He is part-owner of the very successful "Record Den, Inc." stores (Alexandria and Arlington), which specialize in video and stereo equipment. Doc also continued as a sports reporter for WRC-TV (Channel 4) in Washington. As President of Sports Image, Inc., Rick does commercials and advertisements for a host of companies: they include Woodbridge Lincoln-Mercury (for which he is main spokesman); Davis Antenna; and American Securities Company of VA. Much of Rick's time also goes towards helping charities. He is the 1985 Chairman of the local Muscular Dystrophy Association. Rick also aligns himself with the National Arthritis Association, the National Stay in School Fund, the DC Boys and Girls Clubs, the DC Special Olympics, the Easter Seals Society, and the Ronald McDonald House. He has a strong commitment to his church and working with youth to combat alcohol and drug abuse. Doc enjoys home cooking, jazz, and travelling, and plans a career in either broadcasting or acting. Rick was the creator of the now-outlawed Fun Bunch, and also an original Hog. One of the funnier incidents at Redskin Park last year came when team doctor Donald Knowlan presented Doc with an honorary labcoat, "for the times when I'm not here," said Dr. Knowlan. Rick was also a winner last year of the Rocky Robinson Best Dressed Award in Virginia. In 1984 Rick was featured in a McDonalds commercial with some Hogmates of his. Doc's biggest news of the offseason, however, came on June 29 when he wed the former Carol Donnette. The Walkers now make their home in McLean, VA.

85 DON WARREN
TIGHT END

San Diego State
7th Year

Ht: 6-4 Wt: 242
Born 05/05/56

How Acquired: Selected in fourth round of 1979 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 83/76—1979 (16/10); 1980 (13/12); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9) [4/4]; 1983 (13/13) [3/3]; 1984 (16/16) [1/1]

Games Played Streak: 17

1984 Season: Question: Which Redskin is one of the hardest-blocking Hogs, was the team's fourth-leading (tied) receiver last year, and is now the ninth all-time leading receiver in Redskin history? Well, of course, Don is the answer, but cover the picture and ask a friend and see what happens. The point being that when the word "underrated" enters a conversation, so should Don Warren. He has been a Redskins' starting tight end for six seasons now, improving every year. His 18 catches for 192 yards last year included many important ones: most important was his third-down catch late in the game in Dallas for a first down. The catch allowed the Redskins to use up most of the game clock in preserving their 30-28 win. Don later got kidded about the play later, since he caught the ball with nobody in front of him, and ran sideways until finding a Cowboy. Evidently, he just must love the contact. That's also evident by his excellent blocking. Running plays will more often than not head to Don's side of the line. His best games for catches came against the 49ers (3 for 37 yards) and Giants (Week 3: 3 for 23 yards). Don's season long occurred in the opener against Miami, a 26-yarder. He had a 23-yarder in a fourth quarter TD drive in San Francisco, which cut the margin to 34-24. Since the '81 opener, Don has missed just three games, and started all the rest. Don was one of just eight players to start every game last year.

Pro Career: The 103rd player chosen in the 1979 draft, Don was the Redskins' first pick that year. Don came on to start 10 games and catch 26 passes his rookie season, earning his first game ball against St. Louis. In 1980, he fractured his leg and didn't start until Week 5, but still finished with 31 catches for 323 yards (third on team). His best effort was five catches for 51 yards vs. Minnesota and five catches for 44 yards vs the Giants. In 1981, Don started all 16 games, catching a pass in 15 of those games. He scored his first touchdown and finished fourth on the club with 29 catches. Starting all games again in 1982, Don was the Redskins' third-best receiver, catching 27 aerials for 310 yards—an 11.5 average. He also played a major role in Washington's Super Bowl victory, grabbing five passes for 28 yards. Don caught 11 passes in the playoffs for 72 yards and one touchdown, that coming against the Vikings. He also enjoyed the two biggest yardage games of his career—up to that point—in '82, gaining 73 yards on four grabs against Philadelphia in the season opener (still a career best), and 59 yards on five catches in the loss to Dallas. Don was dubbed an original Hog in summer camp of 1982 when the group formed. In '83, Don was the team's sixth-leading receiver with 20 catches for 225 yards. His long gain was 33, and he scored two TD's. His best game was a Monday Night contest in Green Bay, where he caught four passes for 70 yards, both season bests. In three playoff games, he caught three passes for 23 yards. Don missed three games after being hit hard in the back in the regular season Rams' contest. Don's first TD was in RFK against Dallas. His second touchdown came on a deflected pass, off teammate Nick Giaquinto's hands. "We planned it that way," said Don. His 151 catches as a Redskin place him ninth on the all-time list, 17 behind Bill Anderson. Don is one of nine Redskins with six or more years on the club.

College, Personal: In two seasons at San Diego State, Don caught 56 passes for 711 yards and six touchdowns. After transferring from Mt. San Antonio Junior College, Don earned both honorable mention all-American playing honors and second-team all-America academic honors. For four seasons, Don pledged $25 per reception to the American Heart Association. His grandmother died of a heart attack and his father is partially paralyzed from a stroke. Don raised over $4,000 for the charity, and presented a check to the President of the Washington Chapter of the Heart Association, at Redskin Park. Don and his wife, Irene Deutsch, live in Huntington Beach, California in the offseason, with their two year old son, Blake Davis, and newly born Brett Davis. Don enjoys boating whenever he can in the offseason. He appeared in the McDonalds commercial which the Hogs did last year.

24 ANTHONY WASHINGTON
CORNERBACK

Fresno State
5th NFL Year
3rd Redskins

Ht: 6-1 Wt: 204
Born 02/04/58

How Acquired: Aug. 17, 1983, trade with Pittsburgh for 1984 draft choice

Games Played In/Games Started: 57/6—1981 (16/1); 1982 (9/0) [1/0]; 1983 (16/3) [3/3]; 1984 (16/2) [1/0]

Games Played Streak: 57 (never missed one)

1984 Season: Durable Anthony increased his games played streak to a robust 57 last year, the fifth longest span on the club. He began last season as starter and then was moved to nickel back for last 14 games. In that capacity, he made one interception, returning it 25 yards against the Eagles in Philadelphia. Theft brought ball into Eagle territory near end of first half, but Redskins could not convert. He made 23 tackles on the year, with a game-high of four against the 49ers, and forced a fumble in the Week 8 game in St. Louis, jolting all-Pro Roy Greene. Also a contributor on special teams, Anthony had one of the team's biggest fumble recoveries of the year, pouncing on fumbled Cowboy kickoff return in the Week 15 showdown in Texas Stadium. That recovery led to a Calvin Muhammad touchdown which brought the Redskins within 21-20. He added 64 hits on special teams over the season, including 51 blocks on punt returns. His game-high for hits was seven, achieved in Week 7 against Dallas.

Pro Career: Pittsburgh chose Anthony in the second round of 1981 draft. He played two seasons there before being traded during the 1983 training camp. As a rookie, he saw a great deal of playing time, intercepting three passes (two at Cleveland, 11/22), and earned his first start versus New England in place of injured Dwayne Woodruff. "Wash" finished that season with 25 tackles (18 solos). In 1982, he saw mostly special teams action, before replacing injured nickel back Rick Woods late in season. He collected 20 tackles (14 solos), and showed knack for blocking punts and field goals from wing of rush formation. In '83, his fine play all season earned him the starting nod in Week 14 against the Falcons, and he responded with his best game as a pro, picking off two passes. Tied for third on team with four regular season interceptions, he started remaining games, including all three playoff contests. He added an interception in playoff win over Rams. Anthony compiled 34 regular season tackles, and 21 postseason tackles, second on the club to Neal Olkewicz. He also added a forced fumble and recovered a fumble in the playoffs. He now has eight career interceptions for 83 yards.

College, Personal: The Most Valuable Defensive Player at Fresno State his senior year, Anthony was named all-Pacific Coast Athletic Conference. Fresno was third stop of college career, having begun as all-California Junior College performer at Fresno City College, and then starting two seasons for California (1977-78). He earned all-PAC 10 honors in 1978 when he led team in thefts with six, then transferred to Fresno to finish career. As junior college player, he had a 99-yard interception return and a 96-yard punt return. As a senior, he played in the East-West game. A sociology major, Anthony graduated Fresno High where he was a track MVP and a 13.7 high hurdler. A bachelor, he has had formal karate training, and resides in Fresno in the offseason.

47 GREG WILLIAMS
FREE SAFETY

Mississippi State   Ht: 5-11 Wt: 185
4th Year   Born 08/01/59

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent following 1982 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 41/1—1982 (9/0) [4/0]; 1983 (16/1) [3/0]; 1984 (16/0) [1/0]

Games Played Streak: 41 (never missed game)

1984 Season: Greg made the Redskins' special teams quite special once again last year with his tremendous hustle and all-around play: He earned constant praise at each team meeting for his efforts. Playing on every "team," Greg finished second on the Redskins in total hits with a career-high 144. He led the team, though, in blocks with 105, including 56 on punt returns and 49 on kickoff returns. Greg received some votes for the one NFC player selected to the Pro Bowl for special teams. Had it not been for teammate

Otis Wonsley (and vice versa), Greg might have been the one. Greg also came up with a couple of big plays. He fell on a fumbled punt return in the Week 9 Giants game, and then in the Week 16 finale against St. Louis he turned just in time to catch a short punt and save the Redskins at least 25 yards. Greg was named Special Teams Player of the Week in three of the Redskins' 11 victories: against the Giants (Week 3, 9 hits), the Lions (10 hits), and the Bills (11 hits). His best game in the "hit" parade was a 12-hit performance against the Giants in New Jersey. He also had 11 hits and five tackles against the Falcons, and five tackles against the Cowboys (Week 7) and Lions. Also the reserve free safety, Greg played on all short-yardage situations, making seven tackles. A real arm-waver when it comes to arousing RFK crowds, Greg was one of the captains of special teams last year.

Pro Career: Free agents can make it in the NFL, and Greg is solid evidence. He surfaced out of a host of free agent faces in 1982 training camp to make the Redskins team, and has been to the playoffs in each of his three years. His work on special teams as a rookie—96 total hits (best on team), 24 blocks on kickoffs (also best), and 35 blocks on punt returns (second-best)—showed the coaches knew what they were doing. He was the leading tackler (16) on the number two punt coverage unit in the entire NFL. He played in the Super Bowl despite a nagging hamstring injury. In '83, Greg was again a major force on special teams, but his headlines were achieved somewhere else. Like the cavalry, Greg came to the rescue in the Week 15 showdown with Dallas, when Mark Murphy injured a hamstring. He stepped in to the Division-deciding game and intercepted two big passes to preserve the victory. Both times, he stepped in front of the receiver at the last minute to snare the ball. Greg had been targeted for more work at free safety but a preseason knee injury set him back. He instead had to settle on being a superb special teamer, recording 136 hits (3rd best), and an amazing seven special teams fumble recoveries. He had two big plays against the Raiders: recovering an onside kick which enabled the Redskins to come from behind and win the regular season game; and recovering a fumbled punt in the Super Bowl to give Washington a first down in Raider territory. He also recovered onside kicks against Atlanta and the Giants, a fumbled kickoff vs. St. Louis, and fumbled punts versus the Giants and Eagles. He contributed 20 regular season tackles to the defense, starting the season finale against the Giants. His 55 blocks on kickoff returns led the team.

College, Personal: The starting free safety on Mississippi State's Hall of Fame Bowl squad in '81, Greg was a transfer from Mississippi Delta Junior College. He was Mississippi State's second-leading tackler that season. Born in Greenville, MS., Greg is an avid and excellent golfer. He has spent time working for the March of Dimes, and playing charity golf events such as the NFL Alumni Golf, and the Vince Lombardi Alumni Golf Tournament in Atlantic City. A bachelor, he resides in Centreville, VA.

39 OTIS WONSLEY
RUNNING BACK

Alcorn State
5th Year

Ht: 5-10 Wt: 214
Born 08/13/57

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, April 6, 1981

Games Played In/Games Started: 56/0—(15/0); 1982 (9/0) [4/0]; 1983 (16/0) [3/0]; 1984 (16/0) [1/0]

Games Played Streak: 41

1984 Season: As the Redskins' leading "hit man" last year, Otis was such a dangerous weapon that he probably should have been registered with the FBI. (That's Football Blocking Institute.) For not only did he block—a team-leading 150 hits on special teams—he socked (a Cowboy from the ball), he rocked (RFK with his hustle), and he flocked (into the end zone, scoring four touchdowns). "O.T." was rewarded with a selection to John Madden's (CBS) all-Pro team as the top special teamer. The all-purpose player led the Red-skins with 56 tackles on special teams, and was voted Special Teams player of the Game four times (out of 11 victories): New England, Philadelphia (Week 5), Dallas (Week 7), and Atlanta. With John Riggins on the sidelines against Detroit, Otis was called upon near the end zone and responded with three touchdowns in just six carries. He scored a fourth touchdown in a similar situation against Buffalo. Against the Patriots, Otis made four tackles on four returns. He was in on five tackles against Atlanta, and had a season-high six tackles against Detroit—talk about your all-around games! A sledge-hammer hitter, Otis made one of the biggest plays of the Redskins season when he separated Chuck McSwain from the football on a third quarter kickoff return in the Week 15 showdown with Dallas. That play allowed the Redskins to score a quick touchdown and cut the deficit to 21-20. His high game for hits was 14 in the Week 7 meeting with Dallas; he had 13 versus the Falcons. Otis carried for 38 yards on the season on 18 carries, mostly on short yardage. Coach Gibbs would have liked to use Otis more as a running back, but decided he was too valuable on special teams. He often talked about trying to clone him. That would suit the Redskins organization just fine, but the rest of League might have something to say. He also continued to do a superb job blocking for John Riggins on short yardage plays (Riggo had NFC-best 14 rushing TD's).

Pro Career: In four seasons, Otis has played in two Super Bowls, though things didn't always look that bright for him. Despite being the New York Giants ninth round draft choice (229th player overall) in 1980, Otis was released on the final cutdown. The Redskins soon signed him, however, and the Otis Wonsley story has been a happy one since. As a rookie in '81, he began to display his knack for short yardage blocking, allowing John Riggins to set a Redskin rushing touchdown record of 13. He returned six kickoffs for 124 yards, rushed three times for 11 yards, and caught a five-yard pass. He also finished second on the squad in special teams with 91 total hits, excelling on the punt coverage unit. Otis capped off a fine '82 season with his crushing block on the famous TD run of Super Bowl XVII. He scored his own touchdown, the first of his career, against the Giants, catching a one-yard pass. Otis also carried the ball 11 times during the season, gaining 36 yards with a long run of seven. He again excelled on the Redskins' highly ranked special teams, finishing third with 79 total points. He led the team with 18 tackles on punt coverage and was second with 20 tackles on kickoff coverage. Otis also was an original member of the renowned Fun Bunch. He added one kickoff return for 14 yards in the regular season, and one for 13 yards in the playoffs. In '83, Otis carried 25 times for 88 yards (4th-best on team), and was big factor on fourth down and short situations (11-14 on season). His 157 total hits was a Redskin record that season. He led in both tackles on punt coverage (18) and kickoff coverage (43). He also recovered a fumble against Cardinals at RFK, leading to a TD and 31-7 lead. Powerfully built, Otis was instrumental in John Riggins' record 24 rushing touchdowns. Over four seasons now, Otis has averaged an incredible 119 hits per year, and has missed just one game, when he was placed on injured reserve at the end of 1981 for a knee injury. For one who sacrifices his body left, right, up, and down, that's an impressive log.

College, Personal: Otis started three seasons for Alcorn State, rushing for over 1,500 yards to finish second in that school's history, while also catching 22 passes. He was a second-team all-SWAC from his 8-2 conference champion squad senior year. Born in Pascagoula, MS., Otis graduated from Moss Point High, the home base of the famous Wonsley brothers. Otis is one of eight brothers, all very athletic. George is currently a member of the Indianapolis Colts (in fact the two squared off against each other on special teams last year); Nathan is a star senior at the University of Mississippi; Leroy plays at Perkington Gulf Coast; Josea is a sophomore at Lenoir-Rhyne; Alexander also played at Alcorn; Larry was a track star; and young Robert is just beginning his football career in high school ("but he may be the best of us all," said Otis). That's quite a family. Otis and his wife, Carolyn, reside in Reston, VA. Otis received his degree from Alcorn in Physical Education. He has had his own day given to him by the town of Moss Point. Otis was also on hand for the No Greater Love Christmas party last year, and finds time to visit area hospitals.

BREAKING IN A NEW HOME... It took the Redskins the entire 1961 season, but at last, they got their first DC Stadium (now RFK Stadium) win in the season finale with Dallas. Dickie James scored four touchdowns, a Redskin single-game record that still stands today (Larry Brown tied it in 1973), to lead the 'Skins to a 34-24 triumph. The season ended at 1-12-1...

THE SUPER BOWL

In 1970, the NFL was divided into two 13-team conferences, comprised of the 26 teams formerly competing in the National Football League and the American Football League. Each conference was further divided into three divisions, the winner of each conference to be determined by a playoff of the three division winners plus the second place team within the conference with the best record. The winner of the two conferences meet in the NFL title game—The Super Bowl. An additional wild card team from each conference was added in 1978. In 1982, a special 16-team Super Bowl Tournament determined the NFL Championship.

Dave Butz gets to Cowboys QB Danny White for another big sack. The 13-year veteran defensive tackle has been a major ingredient in the Redskins three straight Division titles, anchoring a line that excels in stopping the run.

ON HIS WAY: Pro Bowler Darrell Green heads for the end zone in week 15 Cowboy contest. The speedster finished the game with two interceptions and eight tackles en route to being named Defensive Player of the Game.
